Shopping spree nets $499.99

Tony Lococo, top photo left, of Matthews scooped up $499.99 worth of groceries Saturday morning at Marks Food Mart after winning the annual Sikeston Jaycee Shopping Spree. David Sloan, center, project chairman, presented the check from the Jaycees to Mrs. Rosetta Maggi, who checked out the groceries. Lococo was given three minutes to collect as many items as he could, photo at right, in grocery carts and return them to the checkout counter, not exceeding $500. He selected mostly meat, but grabbed a few packages of aluminum foil to wrap the meat in. He also included two jars of coffee and a handful of bubble gum, trying to round off the figure as close to $500 as he could. The Jaycees sold tickets for the $500 shopping spree and bought toys for needy children at Christmas with profits from the project. Lococo, who bought only one $1 ticket, said he had to buy a deep freeze after learning that he was the winner.

Carter says Mondale taking European trip

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Carter said Saturday he will send Vice Presidentelect Mondale on a get-acquainted trip to Europe and Japan the first week of the Carter administration.

The President-elect said he himself probably will attend an economic summit meeting of the world's industrialized democracies this year, probably in late May or June.

Carter also said he likely will meet with Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev sometime before next fall and hopes by that time to have achieved "substantial" progress on a new strategic arms limitation treaty.

On another subject, Carter said he has every hope that tax rebate checks, a key element of his plan to stimulate the lagging economy, will be sent to millions of taxpayers by early spring.

Carter said he still intends to minimize his own travel in the first year of his administration but would make an exception for the economic summit.

Carter talked to reporters at a chilly outdoor news conference on the lawn of his home.

"I've asked Sen. Mondale to go to West Germany, to France, to Great Britain, to the European Community headquarters in Brussels and also to Japan," Carter said.

He said arrangements for the trip already have been made and that he will speak with the prime ministers or leaders of those nations by telephone sometime next week.

He said the purpose of the Mondale trip is to let America's closest allies "know in some detail what I and the United States Congress propose to do about the stimulation of our economy.

"In addition to that he will explore with them better means by which we might coordinate our NATO policies, deal with the problems of the increased oil prices, and also share with them some of our potential plans at that point for helping to resolve the potential problems surrounding Cyprus and Turkey and Greece, the Middle East, and of course the southern Africa question."

In the latter case Carter said that the United States plans to play a supportive role and will not pre-empt the leadership position taken by the government of Great Britain.

Carter said he himself probably will meet with the leaders of the nations Mondale will visit later in the year, "probably in the framework of an economic summit meeting."

He expressed the hope that other meetings with foreign leaders during his administration's first year take place in the United States.

Carter said he has exchanged messsages with President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France about the timing of an economic summit. The meeting is expected to be held in Japan.

Carter said Mondale will be his personal emissary.

"As a means of getting acquainted with them, letting them know in some detail the hopes of our own administration in international matters — particularly relating to tension in world trouble spots — I think Sen. Mondale can do as good a job on his first trip as I could do myself," Carter said.

He said the Mondale trip will be just the first in a series to be made early this year by other members of the administration.

On Friday Carter and key congressional Democrats proposed a two-year program to stimulate the economy through jobs and public works programs, a permanent tax cut and a one-shot tax rebate that could give individual taxpayers up to $200.

A reporter asked Carter about reports that Congress might not be able to act on the rebate portion of the plan for several months.

"I would hope the information from Washington is erroneous," Carter said.

"I don't foresee any difficulty in getting the rebate checks out very rapidly," he said.

Carter said also that he intends to announce next week the legal details of the trust he is setting up to manage his farm lands and peanut business while he is in the White House.

Congress to act soon on job-creating programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress wants to act as soon as possible to expand two job-creating programs which have high priority for President-elect Carter.

Action could come in early spring, congressional sources say.

Carter also has encouraged individual members of Congress to go ahead with plans for expanding other programs, such as a year-round conservation corps.

The House Democratic leadership has agreed to push for quick expansion of the public works jobs program, which currently has $2 billion worth of projects already funded and has a backlog of $22 billion of additional project requests.

At his news conference Friday, Carter said he was proposing to add $4 billion worth of public works jobs during the next two years. This is designated to create 600,000 jobs, directly and indirectly, during the two years.

The second job-creating program that Carter and Congress want to expand is the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, which currently subsidizes about 310,000 public service jobs.

The CETA act expires at the end of September. Carter is expected to ask for another $1.7 billion to $2 billion for an additional 200,000 public service jobs in a one-year extension of the program.

Carter and key congressional Democrats have agreed on a $30-billion, two-year program to stimulate the economy. It includes tax cuts and one-time tax rebates of up to $200 for individuals.

The proposals also include an additional $5 billion to $8 billion in federal spending aimed at creation of jobs and the $4 billion more for public works projects.

One proposal in Congress is a comprehensive government planning and full employment program known as the Humphrey+Hawkins bill, sponsored by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, DMinn., and Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D+Calif.

The concept was endorsed by Carter late in the presidential primaries but he gave the bill his full endorsement only after the House Education and Labor Committee revised it along his recommendations to lower the three-year target goal of unemployment. As it now stands, the goal would be 3 per cent adult unemployment within four years. Some economists say this could hardly be reached without risking dangerous new inflation.

Hawkins has already reintroduced the bill in the House and Humphrey was to follow with his companion version on Monday. They claim full support of Carter. But many Carter aides, including his campaign economic advisor Lawrence Klein, say the bill will be watered down or shunted aside for the time being.

Most of the dozens of jobs bills introduced so far this session focus on increasing the job opportunities for youths and the hard-core urban unemployed.

The overall unemployment rate is 8.1 per cent but it is much higher for youth, women and minorities.

Next week, the chairman of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, Newark Mayor Kenneth Gibson, and General Electric's Reginald H. Jones, are to sketch out their proposals for jobs-creating programs to the Senate Budget Committee.

The mayors have asked for $4 billion in public works jobs programs; $3.5 billion in revenue-sharing funds to areas with unemployment above the national average; $2.5 billion for increased public service jobs under CETA, $200 million for construction of environmental improvement projects and $1 billion for more educational spending above current levels.

Missourians invited to $55,000 party Monday

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — They're throwing a $55,000 party here Monday and you're all invited.

The party is for Democrat Joseph P. Teasdale, the former Jackson County prosecuting attorney who will be sworn in at high noon Monday as Missouri's 48th governor.

The 40-year-old Teasdale, who has the least amount of state government experience of any man to assume the executive office in the last three decades, succeeds Republican Christopher S. Bond, whom Teasdale defeated Nov. 2.

The inaugural festivities, which are expected to cost $15,-000 more than the $40,000 spent on Bond's installation four years ago, will formally begin with a closed religious service Monday morning. But Teasdale and his supporters are already in the state capital for celebrations.

A party for those contributing $500 or more to his campaign was set for Sunday evening, following an afternoon reception sponsored by local supporters. Jefferson City hotels and those in nearby communities are booked solid. The tight room situation forced one state senator, John D. Schneider, a St. Louis Democrat, to go to court to force the Rodeway Inn to honor an earlier agreement to provide him with 15 rooms.

Cole County Circuit Judge James Riley ordered hotel officials Friday to provide the rooms, and court testimony indicated that some of Teasdale's Transition Commission members might be pumped out of the hotel to provide the space. It was noted during the hearing that a deposit had not been placed on the room reserved for Teasdale and his wife, Theresa, although one was required for everyone else.

An inaugural Mass of thanksgiving will be celebrated for Teasdale and his family at 8:30 a.m. Monday at St. Peter's Catholic Church near the Capitol. Once Teasdale moves into the governor's mansion, the church will be his regular place of worship.

State historical records indicate Teasdale will be the first Roman Catholic to be sworn in as governor in the history of the state.

Rev. Dominic Lavan, a member of the Benedictine Order of Conception, Mo., and a longtime friend and spiritual adviser to the incoming governor, will be the principal celebrant. Teasdale's sister, Sister Bernatte Marie, a member of the religious order of the Sisters of Charity, is to read scriptural passages at the service.

A smaller than usual parade will highlight Teasdale's inauguration ceremonies, with only 10 units taking part as compared with the 23 that were in former Gov. Waren E. Hearnes' second inaugural eight years ago, and the 60 which participated in Bond's in 1973.

Col. Bill Hasler of the Missouri National Guard, said the reason for fewer units "is the governor-elect's desire to have a small parade."

But Maureen Galey, Teasdale's sister who is supervising inaugural planning, says she doesn't recall any such request being made.

Another deviation from tradition will be Bond and his wife, Carolyn, riding together in the parade, while Teasdale is accompanied by his wife, and weather permitting, their young son William.

In 1973, Bond and Hearnes rode together while Mrs. Bond and Betty Hearnes traveled in the same car.

Although security will be tight for the inauguration, security was not given as the reason for separating the governor and the governor-elect.

Teasdale said he thought it better to have the families together for the parade, and that he offered the option to the Bonds and that they agreed. Bond, on the other hand, said he had thought it a good idea and that he had recommended it after his 1973 inauguration.

Teasdale will take the oath of office after it has been administered to other statewide officials—Republican Lt. Gov. William Phelps, who is beginning his second four-year term; Democrat Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick, beginning an unprecedented fourth term, and State Treasurer James I. Spainhower, a Democrat, who will be taking the oath for the second time. Republican John Ashcroft was sworn in as attorney general two weeks earlier following the resignation of John C. Danforth to take his seat in the U.S. Senate.

Phelps is only the second Republican lieutenant governor in Missouri history to serve under a Democratic governor.

Sister Marie, who is stationed at St. Mary College at Leavenworth, Kansas, has asked 120 of her fellow nuns there to pray for good inaugural weather. It snowed six inches for Bond's inaugural on Jan. 8, 1973, and the temperature was in the mid teens that day.

Forecasters have predicted cloudy skies and cold tempratures for mid+Missouri with a chance of snow Sunday and a good chance of snow about Tuesday, with the high ranging from the mid teens to about 20.

State workers have been given Monday off, and Monday's convening of the state legislature will be little more than a formality. No business is expected to be conducted this week, although Teasdale is scheduled to deliver his legislative message to a joint session of the General Assembly on Wednesday.

The inaugural festivities conclude Monday night with the inaugural ball in the state Capitol.

Bond is to leave the governor's mansion and the state capital shortly after noon. He will be staying at his home in Mexico, Mo., until he decides on what job he'll pursue in private life.

At the close of his last working day Friday, Bond's staff members presented him with a shotgun and winter hunting outfit.

Cotton Boll Scouts named pilot council

The Cotton Boll Girl Scout Council has been selected by the National Organization of Girl Scouts as one of 20 councils in Region 5 to be a pilot council for the "new council evaluation tool." During the coming year the Cotton Boll Council will utilize this tool as part of its evaluation process to test the strengths and weaknesses of the council's program, which will lead to the renewal of the council's charter.

Barbara Alderson, a National Girl Scout staff member and a council consultant in Region 5 will be in the Cotton Boll area Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday to assist the council evaluation team, which consists of Mrs. Taylor Miles of Kennett and Council President Lu Dye and Executive Director Ilena Aslin of Sikeston, in learning how to utilize the "new evaluation tool."

While in the area, Ms. Alderson will also meet with the long range committee and participate in a board training session at Dexter at 10 a.m. Tuesday in First Baptist Church on Walnut Street.

It is standard procedure for a Girl Scout council to have its charter renewed every three years. Through participation in the "new council evaluation tool" program, a council does not have to undergo the evaluation process for a period of six years.

To be selected for a pilot council is indicative of the high standards and programs the Cotton Boll Council has maintained over the years.

3 persons injured in area accidents

Three persons were injured in separate area traffic accidents Friday and Saturday, according to the highway patrol.

A Broseley woman suffered moderate injuries in a two-vehicle accident at 9:30 a.m. Saturday on a Butler County road nine miles southeast of Poplar Bluff.

Taken to Lucy Lee Hospital at Poplar Bluff was Lana Diane Hon, 27, of Broseley, driver of a southbound car.

The patrol reported the accident occurred on the ice-covered road when the Hon car collided head on with a northbound car driven by Candace Gale Brown, 28, of Broseley.

A two-vehicle accident at 3:45 p.m. Friday on an unmarked road 12 miles west of Poplar Bluff resulted in minor injuries to Carol Freeman, 33, of Poplar Bluff, a passenger in a car driven by Samuel Larry Freeman, 40, of Poplar Bluff.

The injury victim was taken to Doctors Hospital at Poplar Bluff.

The accident occurred when a trailer being towed by an eastbound car driven by Kenneth Dowdy, 31, of Grandin slid sideways on a curve and struck the eastbound Dowdy car nearly head on.

A one-car accident on Route N five miles north of Ironton at 5 a.m. Saturday brought minor injuries to a passenger in a northbound car - Kathy Winterton, 19, of St. Louis - who was taken to Arcadia Valley Hospital at Pilot Knob.

According to the patrol, Barbara Krueger, 19, of St. Louis lost control of her car on the snow-packed road. The vehicle ran off the road, down an embankment and struck some boulders.

Cotton Boll Scouts named pilot council

The Cotton Boll Girl Scout Council has been selected by the National Organization of Girl Scouts as one of 20 councils in Region 5 to be a pilot council for the "new council evaluation tool." During the coming year the Cotton Boll Council will utilize this tool as part of its evaluation process to test the strengths and weaknesses of the council's program, which will lead to the renewal of the council's charter.

Barbara Alderson, a National Girl Scout staff member and a council consultant in Region 5 will be in the Cotton Boll area Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday to assist the council evaluation team, which consists of Mrs. Taylor Miles of Kennett and Council President Lu Dye and Executive Director Ilena Aslin of Sikeston, in learning how to utilize the "new evaluation tool."

While in the area, Ms. Alderson will also meet with the long range committee and participate in a board training session at Dexter at 10 a.m. Tuesday in First Baptist Church on Walnut Street.

It is standard procedure for a Girl Scout council to have its charter renewed every three years. Through participation in the "new council evaluation tool" program, a council does not have to undergo the evaluation process for a period of six years.

To be selected for a pilot council is indicative of the high standards and programs the Cotton Boll Council has maintained over the years.

3 persons injured in area accidents

Three persons were injured in separate area traffic accidents Friday and Saturday, according to the highway patrol.

A Broseley woman suffered moderate injuries in a two-vehicle accident at 9:30 a.m. Saturday on a Butler County road nine miles southeast of Poplar Bluff.

Taken to Lucy Lee Hospital at Poplar Bluff was Lana Diane Hon, 27, of Broseley, driver of a southbound car.

The patrol reported the accident occurred on the ice-covered road when the Hon car collided head on with a northbound car driven by Candace Gale Brown, 28, of Broseley.

A two-vehicle accident at 3:45 p.m. Friday on an unmarked road 12 miles west of Poplar Bluff resulted in minor injuries to Carol Freeman, 33, of Poplar Bluff, a passenger in a car driven by Samuel Larry Freeman, 40, of Poplar Bluff.

The injury victim was taken to Doctors Hospital at Poplar Bluff.

The accident occurred when a trailer being towed by an eastbound car driven by Kenneth Dowdy, 31, of Grandin slid sideways on a curve and struck the eastbound Dowdy car nearly head on.

A one-car accident on Route N five miles north of Ironton at 5 a.m. Saturday brought minor injuries to a passenger in a northbound car - Kathy Winterton, 19, of St. Louis - who was taken to Arcadia Valley Hospital at Pilot Knob.

According to the patrol, Barbara Krueger, 19, of St. Louis lost control of her car on the snow-packed road. The vehicle ran off the road, down an embankment and struck some boulders.

Barbs

By PHIL PASTORET

Any ski slope operators moaning over a dearth of the slippery stuff should try the steps of his town's city hall, says a disgruntled chum.

At 20, nothing's too good for you; after 40, you probably find you've got plenty of it.

Boy scouts now spend their time helping young people dodge little old ladies driving souped-up sports cars.

Isn't it a bit strange how only the most intelligent and enlightened persons hold the same views you do?

Gilbow turns things around

Alonzo Harris was the story – and Sikeston's awakening 6-6 giant Paul Gilbow wouldn't have it any other way.

"Just say," the senior exhorted, "that Alonzo had a heckuva night."

There was a story in Bulldog uniform number 52, however, as well.

"Paul Gilbow had not been playing well. Adequately, yes, but not well.

"Paul plays football," his coach Bud Spears has explained several times, but athletes that are blessed with exceptional size and speed are expected to produce – all the time. Not quite yet in basketball shape, the 210-pound Gilbow struggled through the first eight games with 11-point, nine-rebound averages. Those marks are well below last year and subpar for Sikeston's biggest player.

Then came Friday night and the Matthews Pirates.

"We had a good week of practices," said Gilbow, who is always the last Bulldog out of the dressingroom.

"We haven't looked good. We had something to prove."

The Sikeston center controlled the first half before his frontline counterpart, Harris, took over in the third period. Gilbow scored 14 of his season-high 24 points in the initial half and grabbed eight offensive rebounds. He and Harris combined for eight blocked shots against the smaller Pirates, four apiece.

The emergence of Gilbow as an offensive threat is ironic. Before the contest, Matthews coach Dale Sexton had commented that a key to a win for his team would be to stop the Bulldog big man, since his squad didn't have anyone to compare with him in size. And, Gilbow also had a very good reason to let down even further in the 1977 portion of the schedule: He has signed a letter of intent to Arkansas State University in Jonesboro. – to play football.

But a 10-1 football season whetted Paul Gilbow's taste for winning. And he intends to do his best to win in the winter sport of basketball as well.

Who knows, if Gilbow keeps improving, he and Alonzo Harris may earn SHS a berth at Columbia in March.

New-look Dogs foil sharpshooters

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard Sports Editor

"We may only last four seconds, but we're gonna come out in a man-to-man," Bulldog basketball coach Buddy Spears was saying Friday morning about his team's encounter with Matthews that evening.

The new-look Bulldogs not only lasted four seconds in the man-to-man, but they lasted four quarters. Sikeston' best all-round effort of the season netted them an 84-63 surprise win over the Matthews Pirates at the Fieldhouse. Matthews has not won a game on the tartan surface of SHS since the facility opened in 1969.

While surprising nearly everyone with their ability to stay with the quicker Pirates in a one-on-one defensive situation, the Bulldogs went to their strength offensively. Taking full advantage of the inside duo of Alonzo Harris and Paul Gilbow for the first time all season, Sikeston got a combined 60 points from the senior big men, with Harris pouring in 36 of them. It was Gilbow's eight second-quarter points that helped SHS break the game open and move to a 13-point halftime lead. Harris then put on the most impressive shooting exhibition by any Bulldog this season, hitting 9 of 12 shots and scoring 20 third period points to put the game away for Sikeston.

"We're just getting started," said the 6-3 forward about the team's biggest win of the season and the first of 1977. Alonzo also pulled down 19 rebounds and blocked three shots in addition to having his best offensive night of his career.

Harris gave much of the creidt for his big night to Gilbow, the Bulldogs' sleeping giant who also enjoyed his best evening of the year. "When Paul is going good, it takes some of the pressure off me." Gilbow took the pressure off to the tune of 24 points and 15 rebounds. Two of Gilbow's points in the second quarter came on a dunk shot that served as cue for a Bulldog uprising that was to produce their highest point total of the season.

"We weren't really surprised when they came out with the man-to-man," said Pirate coach Dale Sexton after watching his team absorb only their third loss of the season. "We were prepared for both."

While the Buccaneers may have been ready mentally for the man-to-man, they didn't show it on the court. Matthews seemed unsure of how to attack the SHS defense from the outset and were caught standing flat-footed most of the time. With gunners Gerald Davis (5 of 19 from the floor) and Bill Sexton (2-12) suffering through miserable shooting nights from the outside and with the Matthews inside game virtually eliminated by the aggressive play of Haris and Gilbow, they hit only 32.8 per cent of their field goal attempts. Only a fine evening by Larry Robinson kept the Pirate percentage from bein more mediocre. Robinson canned 8 of 13 tries and finished with 18 points.

After falling behind by four points after the first quarter, Matthews came out pressing in the second stanza. But the Dogs, who could do little wrong against the biggest crowd of the year, cracked the Pirate defense with ease. Although battling the pressure most of the game, the Dogs were guilty of only seven turnovers.

Although both suffered from foul trouble, guards Larry Jackson and Jeff Limbaugh turned in good efforts. They combined for only 10 points in the scoring column, but contributed 12 assists while setting up Gilbow and Harris on the baseline and in the lane.

"Maybe this was just what we've been needing," said an optimistic Coach Spears after the game. "We've had our best week of practice all year," he added about his team, which has suddenly put it together after struggling with consistency during the first half of the schedule.

If the tough competition is what brings out the best in the Bulldogs, then SHS fans will see the best basketball of the year in coming weeks. Sikeston hosts Notre Dame of Cape Tuesday night before traveling to Charleston for what should be the most attractive matchup of the cage season. After that, the Bulldogs host Illinois power Meridian of Mounds on Jan. 18 before meeting Lilbourn the 21st. The Poplar Bluff Invitational Tournament opens Jan. 24.

Don't be early

The Cardinal caravan, scheduled to be at the Elks' Lodge, Jan. 18, at 12 noon (according to the tickets), will not actually start until around 12:45 or 1 p.m. Ken Daust, Cardinal front office man who is in charge of the caravan, noted that the Card players, manager and coaches will be in Ste. Genevieve until about 11:30 a.m. that Tuesday morning, before leaving for the press conference and luncheon at Sikeston

Semo teams involved in runaways

SeMo conference basketball teams enjoyed a big night under threatening weather conditions Friday night, with two exceptions. In non-conference bouts, Sikeston and Charleston were easy winners -- the Bulldogs over Matthews and Charleston over Brentwood, 97-49. Only Kennett and Dexter didn't enjoy their Friday games. Kennett dropped a 74-51 laugher to Jackson and Dexter was routed by Poplar Bluff 85-57.

At least five games in Southeast Missouri were cancelled by the icy roads and snowy conditions, but the Cape Central-Perryville clash was the only SeMo conference game victimized.

Charleston 97 Brentwood 49

Sparked by a Ricky Frazier slam dunk on the first basket of the game, the Charleston Bluejays reeled off 16 straight points at the outset and then cruised to a 97-49 romp over metropolitan rival Brentwood of St. Louis Friday night.

Frazier, who scored 27 points in the game and had 21 rebounds, dunked the ball three times in the game as the Jays humiliated the visiting Eagles. "They looked like they just were not prepared for the press," said Bluejay coach Mitch Haskins, who praised his team's effort as a good one all the way around.

The area's only undefeated team also got 17 points from guard Michael Dean and 16 from Danny Farmer. Charleston also got good production from the other forward position as Wilbert McCain, Percy Owens and Elmo Johnson combined for 27 points. McCain, the starter at the position, canned 13 points, including a spectacular stuff shot that brought oohs and ahs from the overflow crowd at the CHS gymnasium.

Charleston also won the B game easily, routing Brentwood 64-30. Brentwood's jayvee had lost only once going into the game.

Guard Ed Lynch continued his hot shootin since vacating the Jackson Indian bench, pouring in 27 points during the Indians' 74-51 rout of struggling Kennett.

Jackson only held a 28-19 lead at half before their offense finally got untracked. In the third period they put the game on ice by ripping the cords to a 27-10 tune and grabbing a 55-29 lead going into the fourth period.

Only Charles Hourd, with ten points, managed to get into twin figures for Kennett, now 2-5.

Time Out

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard Sports Editor

By CHARLIE FRANCIS

Since 99 and 44-100 per cent of our readers have never been in a newsroom or have ever worked as a sportswriter, we'd like to give you an idea of the hours of drudgery that go into bringing the sports to you, our favorite people, each day. Picture in your minds a typical Tuesday or Friday evening here at the office after a heavy schedule of basketball. It is about 10:00 p.m. – right about the time when things begin to get busy for Dale Forbis, Stan Hall and me.

CHIEF: Hey Stan, what took you so long to get back to the office from your game? The phone's been ringing off the hook and I've been the only one here.

STAN: I had four interviews to do after the game and then had a flat tire on the way back.

CHIEF: Oh.

STAN: And if you believe that, when I've got some land I'd like to sell you in Alaska.

CHIEF: Take the call on three-eight. The coach from Naylor has been on hold for six minutes. He could have almost run to our office with the score in that time.

STAN: There's nobody on the line. I guess he got tired of waiting. Maybe he'll call back.

CHIEF: How did it go at your game?

STAN: Well, Charleston led by 14 after the first quarter, but then they bounced back and played a pretty good ballgame. Do you know what time Forb is supposed to be in?

CHIEF: I'm not sure, but when he does, I've got a letter for him from some guy from East Prairie.

STAN: About the Forb Awards again?

CHIEF: I think so. It says "Long live Danny Johnson" on the back of the envelope.

(Enter Dale Forbis, humming a mock fanfare to announce his arrival on the scene.)

DALE: Super Writer is here!

STAN: Hey Charlie, what's that you were just saying about Forb's breath?

DALE: Say anything you want about me tonight, guys, and it won't bother me. I really feel good.

CHIEF: About 40 inches worth?

DALE: I don't know if I can get you that much copy on the Bulldog game or not. There wasn't really that much to write about out of the ordinary. But I guess I can make up some quotes and stretch it out.

STAN: Hey Chief, the operator wants to know if we'll accept a call from Coach Hankins at Charleston. Ya think she means Haskins?

CHIEF: Probably. Why can't people get such a simple thing as a name right?

DALE: Look who's talking. You're the one who called Bill Sexton of Matthews, Dale the other day.

CHIEF: That's different.

STAN: Whose turn to buy the Cokes tonight?

DALE: I think it's Charlie's turn.

CHIEF: MY turn? Hey, wait just a minute. I provided the refreshments last time, remember?

DALE: Yeah, but Kool-Aid doesn't count.

DALE: Any surprises tonight?

CHIEF: Yeah, Kelly had a 12 points lead going into the last three minutes of their game and held on to it. And Coach Sexton at Matthews didn't get a technical tonight. Hey Forb, I almost forgot. You've got a letter from somebody in East Prairie about the Forb Awards."

DALE: I'll read it and put it along with the rest of them.

STAN: But isn't the trunk of your car starting to get kind of full by now?

CHIEF: Did the coach at Naylor ever call back?

STAN: Nope. I guess he just doesn't like being put on hold. You'll have to call and get it in the morning."

DALE: Hey Charlie, I guess you want to take the call from the Holcomb scorekeeper. You know, the one with the nice voice? (He giggles)

CHIEF: Lay off, will ya? Do I look okay?

STAN: Should I dateline the Kelly story Benton or Diehlstadt?

DALE: How about Benton. It's two less counts."

STAN: Charlie says his next "Time Out" column is gonna be about what goes on up here at night. Think it's a very good idea?

DALE: Naw. Nobody'd believe it anyway.

Hornets outshoot Kelly in battle of top-ranked teams

ADVANCE — Six Advance players scored in double figures Friday night as the Hornets knocked off the Kelly Hawks 94-87 in a shootout between a pair of The Daily Standard's top ten teams.

The eight ranked Hornets used a big third-quarter advantage to hand Kelly their sixth loss of the season. Advance outscored the Hawks 29-12 in the period to break a 37-37 halftime deadlock and take complete command of the game.

Although the Hornets led by as many as 18 points early in the fourth quarter, Kelly fired in 28 points in the final quarter to make the final score respectable. Advance canned 10 fourth quarter foul shots to help offset a big night at the line for the Hawks. Kelly hit 29 of 35 freethrows, including 18 of 20 in the first half.

Sophomore Eddie Dunivan led the Advance scoring parade with 20 points. Terry Wheatley, another sophomore, added 17, Steve Vavak threw in 15, Mark Robins scored 14, Lonnie Daniel had 13 and Terry Tidwell flipped home 10 as Advance upped their record to 12-3.

David Dittlinger scored 21 and Robert Pittman added 20 for the Hawks, who also got 17 points from Randy Hagar and 15 from David Felter.

Jeff Boner scored 19 as Advance won the B game 55-52.

Rebel press is hard to beat

RISCO— The Richland Rebels were hot and cold at times Friday night, but used a very effective full court press in the second quarter to overcome a stubborn Risco Tiger squad, 64-46.

The Rebels trailed by two points after the first quarter, then went into the full court press. The press created easy buckets as a result of Risco turnovers. Risco was held to only four points in the second quarter and Richland took a 15 point lead at intermission.

The first part of the fourth period found Risco continuing a third-quarter comeback. With 3:30 remaining in the contest, the Tigers were only trailing by four. Richland then pulled away to win the game by the 18-point margin.

Sylvester Patterson led Richland with 18 and Phil Ledbetter chipped in 16 for the winning Rebels.

Ted Landers led Risco with 20.

Draft outlook is poor

NEW YORK (AP) — The winter free-agent draft, protected by baseball's peculiar immunity from antitrust laws, begins Tuesday, with the prospect of the clubs finding good prospects very bleak.

"This is the worst January draft we've ever had," said one scout.

"We might pass on this one," said another scout. "I just don't see a single top name or even an advanced player."

The calendar always causes the January draft to be weaker than the June draft. High school seniors may have baseball on their minds in the winter, but they still do not graduate until June, when they become eligible for the summer selections.

And this group of January prospects is further weakened by baseball's college rule, which will have an affect on the draft for the first time. The college rule permits the signings of collegians who still have their senior years ahead of them, but those signings cannot be made unless it is between school years.

That leaves college dropouts and junior college players, none of whom has the scouts excited.

"There are usually one or two prime kids who drop out of school," sighed one scout. "But the best kids now seem to be staying in school—at least until June."

In the past, January draftees like Tom Seaver, Chris Chambliss and Carlton Fisk have become major league stars. "I don't see a Seaver or a Chambliss; I don't even see a (Steve) Kemp," another scout said.

Kemp, the No. 1 pick in the regular phase of last January's draft, had a sensational season in the Detroit Tigers' minor league system, slugging 19 home runs and knocking in 81 runs in 125 games.

Still, players will be drafted on the first round and beyond because major league teams often are optimistic and need players to fill their minor league rosters.

Weak draft or strong draft, it is a fair question to ask whether there should be any draft at all. A federal court has ruled that the football draft is in violation of the antitrust laws because it severely restricts a player's free-market potential.

Baseball's stocking system would be treated the same way by the courts, except for a 1922 Supreme Court decision that gave the national pastime immunity from the antitrust laws.

The Supreme Court has been given a couple of opportunities to change its mind, each time standing on precedent and saying "if Congress thinks our decision was wrong, Congress can change it."

Congress has not acted, and the exemption stands.

The draft will be held at the commissioner's office.

The Montreal Expos, by virtue of having the worst record in baseball in 1976, have the first pick in the regular phase.

AGE ATTRACTS 'EM

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — The Santurce Crabbers raffled off a car during a Puerto Rican League game against the Bayamon Cowboys at Bithorn Stadium here and drew less than 3,000 fans. The night before, with no giveaway, the two teams played before 9,347 at Loubriel.

Helping to attract fans to Loubriel was the appearance in relief of pitcher Ruben Gomez of the defending champion Bayamon team. Former New York Giant Gomez is 49 years old.

Wilder, Butler and Gilbow sign with Arkansas State

JONESBORO, Ark. — Three all-conference football players from Sikeston High School have signed Southland Conference letters of- intent with Arkansas State University, according to ASU Head Coach Bill Davidson.

The new signees, who bring to 19 the number of recruits signed thus far by ASU, include running back James Wilder, a 6-2, 208-pounder; double-duty end Paul Gilbow, a 6-6, 220-pounder; and end Hal Butler, a 6-3, 215 - pounder.

"We couldn't be more pleased than to get three people of this caliber from one school," said Davidson. "They are all potentially super football footballers, and they'll be given every chance in the world of helping us this next season. We believe they can, too, or we wouldn't have been so interested in them."

Wilder has started as Sikeston's powerback the past two seasons. He led the team in rushing in 1976 with 1,389 yards and also in scoring with 16 touchdowns for 100 points. He was an honorable mention All-Missouri choice and also lettered in track as a sprinter.

The 4.7 speedster is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Berry of Sikeston.

Gilbow, also an honorable mention all-state choice, has been a three- year starter at Sikeston, logging duty at flanker, tight end and defensive end. He caught 21 passes for over 300 yards and two touchdowns while earning all- district honors for the second year in a row.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gilbow, Paul is currently playing center for the Sikeston basketballers, averaging 13 points and 10 rebounds. He is a two- year basketball letterman.

Butler was all- district and honorable mention All-state starter for Coach Terry Smith's 10-1 conference championship club. He played offensive tackle and end and also handled the kick- scoring duties with 18 of 21 extra point attempts successful.

Butler also competes for Sikeston as a shot-putter in both indoor and outdoor track. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Butler.

These three give the Indians five high school signees. The ther 14 are from several of the tion's junior colleges.

Gilbow turns things around

Alonzo Harris was the story – and Sikeston's awakening 6-6 giant Paul Gilbow wouldn't have it any other way.

"Just say," the senior exhorted, "that Alonzo had a heckuva night."

There was a story in Bulldog uniform number 52, however, as well.

"Paul Gilbow had not been playing well. Adequately, yes, but not well.

"Paul plays football," his coach Bud Spears has explained several times, but athletes that are blessed with exceptional size and speed are expected to produce – all the time. Not quite yet in basketball shape, the 210-pound Gilbow struggled through the first eight games with 11-point, nine-rebound averages. Those marks are well below last year and subpar for Sikeston's biggest player.

Then came Friday night and the Matthews Pirates.

"We had a good week of practices," said Gilbow, who is always the last Bulldog out of the dressingroom.

"We haven't looked good. We had something to prove."

The Sikeston center controlled the first half before his frontline counterpart, Harris, took over in the third period. Gilbow scored 14 of his season-high 24 points in the initial half and grabbed eight offensive rebounds. He and Harris combined for eight blocked shots against the smaller Pirates, four apiece.

The emergence of Gilbow as an offensive threat is ironic. Before the contest, Matthews coach Dale Sexton had commented that a key to a win for his team would be to stop the Bulldog big man, since his squad didn't have anyone to compare with him in size. And, Gilbow also had a very good reason to let down even further in the 1977 portion of the schedule: He has signed a letter of intent to Arkansas State University in Jonesboro. – to play football.

But a 10-1 football season whetted Paul Gilbow's taste for winning. And he intends to do his best to win in the winter sport of basketball as well.

Who knows, if Gilbow keeps improving, he and Alonzo Harris may earn SHS a berth at Columbia in March.

New-look Dogs foil sharpshooters

"We may only last four seconds, but we're gonna come out in a man-to-man," Bulldog basketball coach Buddy Spears was saying Friday morning about his team's encounter with Matthews that evening.

The new-look Bulldogs not only lasted four seconds in the man-to-man, but they lasted four quarters. Sikeston' best all-round effort of the season netted them an 84-63 surprise win over the Matthews Pirates at the Fieldhouse. Matthews has not won a game on the tartan surface of SHS since the facility opened in 1969.

While surprising nearly everyone with their ability to stay with the quicker Pirates in a one-on-one defensive situation, the Bulldogs went to their strength offensively. Taking full advantage of the inside duo of Alonzo Harris and Paul Gilbow for the first time all season, Sikeston got a combined 60 points from the senior big men, with Harris pouring in 36 of them. It was Gilbow's eight second-quarter points that helped SHS break the game open and move to a 13-point halftime lead. Harris then put on the most impressive shooting exhibition by any Bulldog this season, hitting 9 of 12 shots and scoring 20 third period points to put the game away for Sikeston.

"We're just getting started," said the 6-3 forward about the team's biggest win of the season and the first of 1977. Alonzo also pulled down 19 rebounds and blocked three shots in addition to having his best offensive night of his career.

Harris gave much of the creidt for his big night to Gilbow, the Bulldogs' sleeping giant who also enjoyed his best evening of the year. "When Paul is going good, it takes some of the pressure off me." Gilbow took the pressure off to the tune of 24 points and 15 rebounds. Two of Gilbow's points in the second quarter came on a dunk shot that served as cue for a Bulldog uprising that was to produce their highest point total of the season.

"We weren't really surprised when they came out with the man-to-man," said Pirate coach Dale Sexton after watching his team absorb only their third loss of the season. "We were prepared for both."

While the Buccaneers may have been ready mentally for the man-to-man, they didn't show it on the court. Matthews seemed unsure of how to attack the SHS defense from the outset and were caught standing flat-footed most of the time. With gunners Gerald Davis (5 of 19 from the floor) and Bill Sexton (2-12) suffering through miserable shooting nights from the outside and with the Matthews inside game virtually eliminated by the aggressive play of Haris and Gilbow, they hit only 32.8 per cent of their field goal attempts. Only a fine evening by Larry Robinson kept the Pirate percentage from bein more mediocre. Robinson canned 8 of 13 tries and finished with 18 points.

After falling behind by four points after the first quarter, Matthews came out pressing in the second stanza. But the Dogs, who could do little wrong against the biggest crowd of the year, cracked the Pirate defense with ease. Although battling the pressure most of the game, the Dogs were guilty of only seven turnovers.

Although both suffered from foul trouble, guards Larry Jackson and Jeff Limbaugh turned in good efforts. They combined for only 10 points in the scoring column, but contributed 12 assists while setting up Gilbow and Harris on the baseline and in the lane.

"Maybe this was just what we've been needing," said an optimistic Coach Spears after the game. "We've had our best week of practice all year," he added about his team, which has suddenly put it together after struggling with consistency during the first half of the schedule.

If the tough competition is what brings out the best in the Bulldogs, then SHS fans will see the best basketball of the year in coming weeks. Sikeston hosts Notre Dame of Cape Tuesday night before traveling to Charleston for what should be the most attractive matchup of the cage season. After that, the Bulldogs host Illinois power Meridian of Mounds on Jan. 18 before meeting Lilbourn the 21st. The Poplar Bluff Invitational Tournament opens Jan. 24.

The Bulldog junior varsity pushed its record to 3-1 with 54-47 win over the Matthews B teamers.

"We looked a little shaky at times," said jayvee coach Mike Foster. "Things got kind of sloppy once we got ahead." Sikeston enjoyed leads of 10 points and more in the fourth quarter but allowed the Piratges to close to within six at one point.

Mike White fired in 14 points, including 10 in the first quarter for the Bulldogs, who have lost only to Kennett. Dwight Mills added 13 and scored seven of Sikeston's 13 fourth-quarter points to help keep them ahead. Ronnie Ivie fired in 18 for Matthews.

Don't be early

The Cardinal caravan, scheduled to be at the Elks' Lodge, Jan. 18, at 12 noon (according to the tickets), will not actually start until around 12:45 or 1 p.m. Ken Daust, Cardinal front office man who is in charge of the caravan, noted that the Card players, manager and coaches will be in Ste. Genevieve until about 11:30 a.m. that Tuesday morning, before leaving for the press conference and luncheon at Sikeston

Semo teams involved in runaways

SeMo conference basketball teams enjoyed a big night under threatening weather conditions Friday night, with two exceptions. In non-conference bouts, Sikeston and Charleston were easy winners -- the Bulldogs over Matthews and Charleston over Brentwood, 97-49. Only Kennett and Dexter didn't enjoy their Friday games. Kennett dropped a 74-51 laugher to Jackson and Dexter was routed by Poplar Bluff 85-57.

At least five games in Southeast Missouri were cancelled by the icy roads and snowy conditions, but the Cape Central-Perryville clash was the only SeMo conference game victimized.

Charleston 97 Brentwood 49

Sparked by a Ricky Frazier slam dunk on the first basket of the game, the Charleston Bluejays reeled off 16 straight points at the outset and then cruised to a 97-49 romp over metropolitan rival Brentwood of St. Louis Friday night.

Frazier, who scored 27 points in the game and had 21 rebounds, dunked the ball three times in the game as the Jays humiliated the visiting Eagles. "They looked like they just were not prepared for the press," said Bluejay coach Mitch Haskins, who praised his team's effort as a good one all the way around.

The area's only undefeated team also got 17 points from guard Michael Dean and 16 from Danny Farmer. Charleston also got good production from the other forward position as Wilbert McCain, Percy Owens and Elmo Johnson combined for 27 points. McCain, the starter at the position, canned 13 points, including a spectacular stuff shot that brought oohs and ahs from the overflow crowd at the CHS gymnasium.

Charleston also won the B game easily, routing Brentwood 64-30. Brentwood's jayvee had lost only once going into the game.

Jackson only held a 28-19 lead at half before their offense finally got untracked. In the third period they put the game on ice by ripping the cords to a 27-10 tune and grabbing a 55-29 lead going into the fourth period.

Only Charles Hourd, with ten points, managed to get into twin figures for Kennett, now 2-5.

Time Out

By CHARLIE FRANCIS

Since 99 and 44-100 per cent of our readers have never been in a newsroom or have ever worked as a sportswriter, we'd like to give you an idea of the hours of drudgery that go into bringing the sports to you, our favorite people, each day. Picture in your minds a typical Tuesday or Friday evening here at the office after a heavy schedule of basketball It is about 10:00 p.m. -- right about the time when things begin to get busy for Dale Forbis, Stan Hall and me.

CHIEF: Hey Stan, what took you so long to get back to the office from your game? The phone's been ringing off the hook and I've been the only one here.

STAN: I had four interviews to do after the game and then had a flat tire on the way back.

CHIEF: Oh.

STAN: And if you believe that, when I've got some land I'd like to sell you in Alaska.

CHIEF: Take the call on three-eight. The coach from Naylor has been on hold for six minutes. He could have almost run to our office with the score in that time.

STAN: There's nobody on the line. I guess he got tired of waiting. Maybe he'll call back.

CHIEF: How did it go at your game?

STAN: Well, Charleston led by 14 after the first quarter, but then they bounced back and played a pretty good ballgame. Do you know what time Forb is supposed to be in?

CHIEF: I'm not sure, but when he does, I've got a letter for him from some guy from East Prairie.

STAN: About the Forb Awards again?

CHIEF: I think so. It says "Long live Danny Johnson" on the back of the envelope.

(Enter Dale Forbis, humming a mock fanfare to announce his arrival on the scene.)

DALE: Super Writer is here!

STAN: Hey Charlie, what's that you were just saying about Forb's breath?

DALE: Say anything you want about me tonight, guys, and it won't bother me. I really feel good.

CHIEF: About 40 inches worth?

DALE: I don't know if I can get you that much copy on the Bulldog game or not. There wasn't really that much to write about out of the ordinary. But I guess I can make up some quotes and stretch it out.

STAN: Hey Chief, the operator wants to know if we'll accept a call from Coach Hankins at Charleston. Ya think she means Haskins?

CHIEF: Probably. Why can't people get such a simple thing as a name right?

DALE: Look who's talking. You're the one who called Bill Sexton of Matthews, Dale the other day.

CHIEF: That's different.

STAN: Whose turn to buy the Cokes tonight?

DALE: I think it's Charlie's turn.

CHIEF: MY turn? Hey, wait just a minute. I provided the refreshments last time, remember?

DALE: Yeah, but Kool-Aid doesn't count.

DALE: Any surprises tonight?

CHIEF: Yeah, Kelly had a 12 points lead going into the last three minutes of their game and held on to it. And Coach Sexton at Matthews didn't get a technical tonight. Hey Forb, I almost forgot. You've got a letter from somebody in East Prairie about the Forb Awards."

DALE: I'll read it and put it along with the rest of them.

STAN: But isn't the trunk of your car starting to get kind of full by now?

CHIEF: Did the coach at Naylor ever call back?

STAN: Nope. I guess he just doesn't like being put on hold. You'll have to call and get it in the morning."

DALE: Hey Charlie, I guess you want to take the call from the Holcomb scorekeeper. You know, the one with the nice voice? (He giggles)

CHIEF: Lay off, will ya? Do I look okay?

STAN: Should I dateline the Kelly story Benton or Diehlstadt?

DALE: How about Benton. It's two less counts."

STAN: Charlie says his next "Time Out" column is gonna be about what goes on up here at night. Think it's a very good idea?

DALE: New. Nobody'd believe it anyway.

Hornets outshoot Kelly in battle of top-ranked teams

ADVANCE — Six Advance players scored in double figures Friday night as the Hornets knocked off the Kelly Hawks 94-87 in a shootout between a pair of The Daily Standard's top ten teams.

The eight ranked Hornets used a big third-quarter advantage to hand Kelly their sixth loss of the season. Advance outscored the Hawks 29-12 in the period to break a 37-37 halftime deadlock and take complete command of the game.

Although the Hornets led by as many as 18 points early in the fourth quarter, Kelly fired in 28 points in the final quarter to make the final score respectable. Advance canned 10 fourth quarter foul shots to help offset a big night at the line for the Hawks. Kelly hit 29 of 35 freethrows, including 18 of 20 in the first half.

Sophomore Eddie Dunivan led the Advance scoring parade with 20 points. Terry Wheatley, another sophomore, added 17, Steve Vavak threw in 15, Mark Robins scored 14, Lonnie Daniel had 13 and Terry Tidwell flipped home 10 as Advance upped their record to 12-3.

David Dittlinger scored 21 and Robert Pittman added 20 for the Hawks, who also got 17 points from Randy Hagar and 15 from David Felter.

Jeff Boner scored 19 as Advance won the B game 55-52.

Rebel press is hard to beat

RISCO— The Richland Rebels were hot and cold at times Friday night, but used a very effective full court press in the second quarter to overcome a stubborn Risco Tiger squad, 64-46.

The Rebels trailed by two points after the first quarter, then went into the full court press. The press created easy buckets as a result of Risco turnovers. Risco was held to only four points in the second quarter and Richland took a 15 point lead at intermission.

The first part of the fourth period found Risco continuing a third-quarter comeback. With 3:30 remaining in the contest, the Tigers were only trailing by four. Richland then pulled away to win the game by the 18-point margin.

Sylvester Patterson led Richland with 18 and Phil Ledbetter chipped in 16 for the winning Rebels.

Ted Landers led Risco with 20.

Draft outlook is poor

NEW YORK (AP) — The winter free-agent draft, protected by baseball's peculiar immunity from antitrust laws, begins Tuesday, with the prospect of the clubs finding good prospects very bleak.

"This is the worst January draft we've ever had," said one scout.

"We might pass on this one," said another scout. "I just don't see a single top name or even an advanced player."

The calendar always causes the January draft to be weaker than the June draft. High school seniors may have baseball on their minds in the winter, but they still do not graduate until June, when they become eligible for the summer selections.

And this group of January prospects is further weakened by baseball's college rule, which will have an affect on the draft for the first time. The college rule permits the signings of collegians who still have their senior years ahead of them, but those signings cannot be made unless it is between school years.

That leaves college dropouts and junior college players, none of whom has the scouts excited.

"There are usually one or two prime kids who drop out of school," sighed one scout. "But the best kids now seem to be staying in school—at least until June."

In the past, January draftees like Tom Seaver, Chris Chambliss and Carlton Fisk have become major league stars. "I don't see a Seaver or a Chambliss; I don't even see a (Steve) Kemp," another scout said.

Kemp, the No. 1 pick in the regular phase of last January's draft, had a sensational season in the Detroit Tigers' minor league system, slugging 19 home runs and knocking in 81 runs in 125 games.

Still, players will be drafted on the first round and beyond because major league teams often are optimistic and need players to fill their minor league rosters.

Weak draft or strong draft, it is a fair question to ask whether there should be any draft at all. A federal court has ruled that the football draft is in violation of the antitrust laws because it severely restricts a player's free-market potential.

Baseball's stocking system would be treated the same way by the courts, except for a 1922 Supreme Court decision that gave the national pastime immunity from the antitrust laws.

The Supreme Court has been given a couple of opportunities to change its mind, each time standing on precedent and saying "if Congress thinks our decision was wrong, Congress can change it."

Congress has not acted, and the exemption stands.

The draft will be held at the commissioner's office.

The Montreal Expos, by virtue of having the worst record in baseball in 1976, have the first pick in the regular phase.

AGE ATTRACTS 'EM

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — The Santurce Crabbers raffled off a car during a Puerto Rican League game against the Bayamon Cowboys at Bithorn Stadium here and drew less than 3,000 fans. The night before, with no giveaway, the two teams played before 9,347 at Loubriel.

Helping to attract fans to Loubriel was the appearance in relief of pitcher Ruben Gomez of the defending champion Bayamon team. Former New York Giant Gomez is 49 years old.

Wilder, Butler and Gilbow sign with Arkansas State

JONESBORO, Ark. — Three all-conference football players from Sikeston High School have signed Southland Conference letters of- intent with Arkansas State University, according to ASU Head Coach Bill Davidson.

The new signees, who bring to 19 the number of recruits signed thus far by ASU, include running back James Wilder, a 6-2, 208-pounder; double-duty end Paul Gilbow, a 6-6, 220-pounder; and end Hal Butler, a 6-3, 215 -pounder.

"We couldn't be more pleased than to get three people of this caliber from one school," said Davidson. "They are all potentially super football footballers, and they'll be given every chance in the world of helping us this next season. We believe they can, too, or we wouldn't have been so interested in them."

Wilder has started as Sikeston's powerback the past two seasons. He led the team in rushing in 1976 with 1,389 yards and also in scoring with 16 touchdowns for 100 points. He was an honorable mention All-Missouri choice and also lettered in track as a sprinter.

The 4.7 speedster is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Berry of Sikeston.

Gilbow, also an honorable mention all-state choice, has been a three- year starter at Sikeston, logging duty at flanker, tight end and defensive end. He caught 21 passes for over 300 yards and two touchdowns while earning all- district honors for the second year in a row.

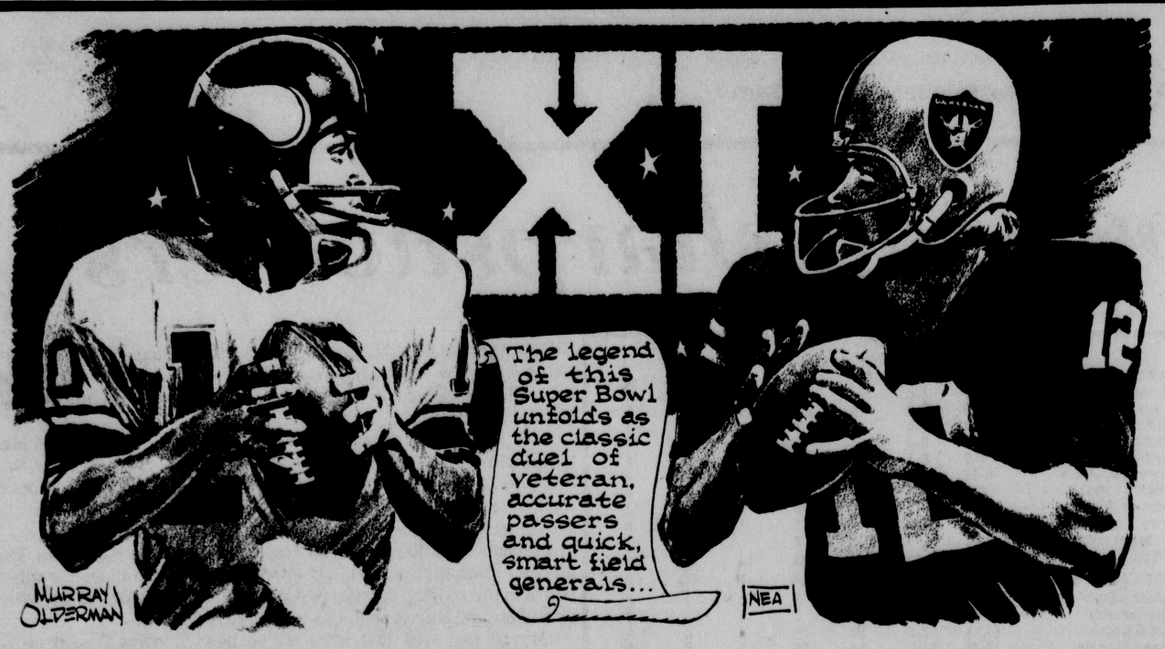
The son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gilbow, Paul is currently playing center for the Sikeston basketballers, averaging 13 points and 10 rebounds. He is a two- year basketball letterman.

Butler was all- district and honorable mention All-state starter for Coach Terry Smith's 10-1 conference championship club. He played offensive tackle and end and also handled the kick- scoring duties with 18 of 21 extra point attempts successful.

Butler also competes for Sikeston as a shot-putter in both indoor and outdoor track. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Butler.

These three give the Indians five high school signees. The her 14 are from several of the tion's junior colleges.



The quarterbacks will decide it

By Murray Olderman

PASADENA, Calif. — (NEA) — This is going to be the Super Bowl that will prove decisively, once and for all, that either the Oakland Raiders or the Minnesota Vikings deserve to be called winners.

Both have been to pro football's biggest jousting before. Both have lost. The Raiders were beaten by the Green Bay Packers in Super Bowl II back in January, 1968, and though they have sought solace by pointing to the fact that they boast the best record in the game over the last 14 years, there has always been the rankling accusation they never win the "big one."

The Vikings have been turned back three times — in Super Bowls IV, VII and IX — though they, too, try to assuage critics by noting that Coach Bud Grant has produced eight division titles in a decade.

Only four of the Oakland Raiders bridge the gap between the team's Super Bowl appearances and, uniformly, they feel this is a better equipped group to prove that they are Number One.

"We got so much heart," said survivor Pete Banaszak, the 32-year-old running back, after the Raiders had qualified for the forthcoming game in the Rose Bowl by winning the American Football Conference title. "If heart was money, we'd own the world."

"We are a physically better team," said guard Gene Upshaw, another survivor. "Ken Stabler is better. I'm better than I was. I was a rookie then. We've had so much adversity. This team doesn't say 'uncle.'"

"This team wants it more," added Fred Biletnikoff, the wide receiver who has been a regular since 1965. "Green Bay was unbelievable when we played 'em in '68. Now we got the team to beat anybody."

"Then," noted Willie Brown, the 35-year-old corner back, "we were just happy to get into the game. We knew Green Bay was a super team. This time? Hey, there ain't no way we can lose."

Ten Viking regulars are veterans of all three Minnesota losses in the Super Bowl — Carl Eller, Alan Page, Jim Marshall, Wally Hilgenberg, Bobby Bryant and Paul Krause of the defensive unit; Fran Tarkenton, Mick Tingelhoff, Ed White and Ron Yary of the offensive unit.

They won't need to be jacked up for this game. Bud Grant, the super stoic, even concedes that there's a new dimension to the Vikings' personality this year — emotionalism.

So the basic motivation, vindication of self, is there for both teams.

In style, however, they differ.

The Vikings are older, more traditional in playing concept. Their offense is probably better balanced between the run (featuring Chuck Foreman) and the pass (with Fran Tarkenton, the most prolific passer in pro history). Their defense shuns frills, although it's a little more elastic than it has been with age beginning to slow down its Front Four.

The Raiders are the closest thing to a one-man team since Norm Van Brocklin and the Philadelphia Eagles of 1960. Ken Stabler is the indispensable man. Put him out of the lineup and the Raiders look ordinary, though they are certainly gifted in several departments — the receiving corps, the offensive line, the defensive secondary.

Though Mark Van Eeghen gained more than 1,000 yards on the ground this year, the emphasis on offense is the air attack, with Stabler the most accurate southpaw passer in the history of the game. Their defense, because of early injuries, converted to an "orange" alignment — which means three men up front and four linebackers. It was supposed to be vulnerable against the run, but it held in key games.

A season brimming with controversy — accusations of violence, hairline officiating calls which decided a couple of key games — probably pulled the Raiders closer together as a unit. And firmed up their resolve to shed the label of losers.

"The big talkers from the East counted us out," said Banaszak, with an edge of bitterness.

The Vikings are more comfortable with their winning mantle, seem less prone to have to apologize for past failures. Confidence has always been their forte.

In the final analysis, the verdict on Jan. 9 before the 106,000 people converging on the Rose Bowl through the clogged Arroyo Seco in Pasadena, will be decided on the performances of the two key men in the cast — Tarkenton and Stabler. Both have been uncanny in the palpitating situations when a game hangs in the balance on one or two key plays.

It comes down to a duel between two of the finest passers and headiest field generals in modern football history.

My prediction is that Stabler will trigger another of his sensational closing bursts and that Oakland will defeat Minnesota, 20-17.

Cubs hold off Delta's late rally

BELL CITY — The Bell City Cubs used a big 25 point outburst in the second quarter to go with four men in double digits, then held off the Delta Bobcats' furious rush in the last quarter to survive with a 69-64 victory.

With the score knotted at 14 after one period of action, Bell City otuscored Delta 25-12 in the second quarter to take a big 13 point lead into the locker room.

It looked like an easy game for the Cubs after three periods, as they had widened their lead to 14. Then in the fourth stanza, Delta cut nine points off the Cub lead, but fell short at the buzzer.

Junior Pat Niemczyk led all scorers with 23. Three others scored in double figures for the Cubs.

Young's shot beats Malden

CARUTHERSVILLE — The homestanding Tigers used a big second half comeback and a last second 15 foot jumpshot by Sam Young to upset the Malden Greenwave, 77-76.

Malden jumped out to a 42-33 first half lead, only to see the Tigers rally in the second half to overcome their advantage. At one point early in the third quarter, the Greenwave enjoyed an 11 point spread, but from that time on, it was all Caruthersville. At the end of three periods, the Tigers had cut Malden's lead to five and continued to chop into Malden's lead in the fourth quarter, to set up Young's heroics.

Sam Young led Caruthersville in scoring as he tallied 20 for the night. Teammate Don Tyes hit for 19, Tony Cagle chipped in 19 and Steve Johnson scored 14.

Jessie Porter topped all scorers as he poured in 28 in the losing effort for Malden.

ND whips Braves

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Notre Dame Bulldogs exploded for a 23-8 third quarter advantage, then held off the Scott Central Braves in the final stanza to preserve a 59-49 victory.

The first half was a defensive battle as the two teams fought to a 25-20 score, with the host Bulldogs enjoying the lead at intermission.

Notre Dame then came out of the lockerroom and burned the nets for 23 points in the third frame. Rick Dohogne, who netted an even dozen points on the evening, tallied all 12 in the third quarter. The Bulldogs' defense held the Braves to only 8 points as they extended their lead to 20 points going into the last frame.

The Scott Central crew made a comeback effort but fell short in the last stanza.

Mike Goodson led Notre Dame in scoring with 17, teammate Ken Blattel chipped in with 16, while the Bulldog defense held Scott Central to only one scorer in double figures.

Record live crowd to watch Super Bowl today

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — This is the Sunday that ministers cut short their sermons, stores close, streets empty, crime takes a virtual holiday and a fourth of America goes into hibernation for four hours with a television screen.

It is Super Bowl Sunday. It is the nation's most grandiose one-day spectacular. It is the culmination of five months of an addiction known as pro football madness.

In its simplest sense, it is the championship game of the National Football League. It matches two powerful teams fired by past frustrations: the Minnesota Vikings, three times in the bowl but never a winner, and the Oakland Raiders, whose wealth of talent has taken them into six playoffs and one final without ever grabbing the diamond-studded ring.

Yet the game—this time in the historic Rose Bowl before its largest live crowd ever—has come to represent only a part of the giant extravaganza which has been built into a show business triumph and a press agent's dream.

A live crowd of 104,000, almost 25,000 more than have ever seen the game before, will pour into the Rose Bowl, scene of college football's oldest postseason rivalry. An estimated 75 million will watch on television, millions of others receiving description by radio.

This is the figure announced by the National Broadcasting Company, backed by the Neilson Rating System. NBC, which alternates with CBS in the televising, is paying $3.5 million for the privilege.

More people will see the game than watched Neil Armstrong take his first step on the moon. Twenty-one companies—hawkers of auto tires, beer, insurance, soft drinks and assorted items and services—will shell out $250,000 a minute to get their message across.

No other sports event attracts such a figure.

Mules win 9th-10th grade tourney at SHS

The Poplar Bluff Mules took first place with a team total of 151 points in the Freshmen and Sophomore Conference Tournament held at the Sikeston Fieldhouse Saturday morning.

Cape Central barely beat out the Sikeston Bulldogs for second place, 111 to 103½. Dexter grabbed fourth place with 75 points and St. Genevieve captured fifth with 74. Jackson finished sixth with 51 points, Charleston seventh with 46½ and Farmington finished eighth with 25 points.

Greg Lester picked up Sikeston's only first place finish in the tournament as he captured the 126 lb. division. Sikeston took three seconds, two thirds, and two fourth place finishes to give the Bulldogs their total of 103½ points.

Listed below is the first, second, third, and fourth place finishers and their respective schools in each weight class:

KU bumps Missouri

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — The Kansas Jayhawks, behind the torrid second half shooting of guard John Douglas, clawed their way to a 77-72 victory over arch-rival Missouri Saturday in a bitter Big Eight opener for both teams.

But both Missouri Coach Norm Stewart and Kansas boss Ted Owens were more concerned with a brawl ionvolving several players that marred the first half.

"It was a hard loss, but the loss was incidental," said Stewart. "There is no place in basketball for conduct by players, coaches or fans like today.

"I'm speaking on the part of (conduct by) Kansas University. We were intimidated out of the game."

The fight erupted after Missouri's Scott Sims was called for charging and blows were exchanged by the Tigers' Jim Kennedy, Kim Anderson and Sims and Kansas' Donnie Von Moore and Herb Nobels. Von Moore and Kennedy were ejected.

"I'm sorry that has to be a part of college basketball," said Owens. "I'm more sorry that we had to be a part of it. I only know our side of the story. Maybe when I look at the films I can make a better judgment about it."

The hard-fought battle was a rematch of the title clash in the Big Eight Holiday Tournament Dec. 30 which the Tigers won 69-65.

The 6-foot-2 Douglas, who gunned in 11 of his 25 points in the final 5½ minutes, including a layup that was tipped into the air and still found the basket with 4:30 left. That made it 71-71.

"Until John made that shot we were in trouble," said teammate Ken Koenigs. "That was a miracle shot."

Douglas put Kansas ahead for good, 73-72, with a basket at 2:53. Then reserve guard Brad Sanders hit a foul shot at 1:03 to increase the Jayhawk margin to two.

A Douglas foul shot with 13 seconds remaining and a goaltending call with one second left on a Douglas 40-footer provided the final Kansas margin.

Indians top Portageville

NEW MADRID— The host Indians ran their New Madrid County Conference record to 4-0 as Lee Hunter's 20 points led the Indians Friday night to a 66-58 victory over the taller Portageville Bulldogs.

Both teams scored 50 points from the field in the game, but the winning margin came at the free throw line where New Madrid hit 16 to Portageville's 8. The Indians have now ran off six straight wins. Coach Carrol Compton must now take his troops on the road next week for three tough road games.

Besides Hunter's fine effort, Melvin Humphrey contributed an even dozen as did teammate Chris Tanner.

Shane Story led the Bulldogs in scoring with 19. Six-6 center Terry Durden had 14 for Portageville and led the Bulldogs in rebounding.

The Indians enjoyed a two point lead at halftime and slowly widened the gap in the second half to the final margin of 8.

A "DESIGNATED SCORER"

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Coach Cal Stoll of Minnesota's football team calls fullback Jim Perkins the team's "designated scorer." In the Gophers' first six games this season, Perkins carried the ball 35 times but scored nine touchdowns.

In 44 attempts as a junior in 1975, Perkins scored six TDs while carrying the football only 44 times all season.

By Murray Olderman

PASADENA, Calif. — (NEA) — This is going to be the Super Bowl that will prove decisively, once and for all, that either the Oakland Raiders or the Minnesota Vikings deserve to be called winners.

Both have been to pro football's biggest jousting before. Both have lost. The Raiders were beaten by the Green Bay Packers in Super Bowl II back in January, 1968, and though they have sought solace by pointing to the fact that they boast the best record in the game over the last 14 years, there has always been the rankling accusation they never win the "big one."

The Vikings have been turned back three times — in Super Bowls IV, VII and IX — though they, too, try to assuage critics by noting that Coach Bud Grant has produced eight division titles in a decade.

Only four of the Oakland Raiders bridge the gap between the team's Super Bowl appearances and, uniformly, they feel this is a better equipped group to prove that they are Number One.

"We got so much heart," said survivor Pete Banaszak, the 32-year-old running back, after the Raiders had qualified for the forthcoming game in the Rose Bowl by winning the American Football Conference title. "If heart was money, we'd own the world."

"We are a physically better team," said guard Gene Upshaw, another survivor. "Ken Stabler is better. I'm better than I was. I was a rookie then. We've had so much adversity. This team doesn't say 'uncle.'"

"It was a hard loss, but the loss was incidental," said Stewart. "There is no place in basketball for conduct by players, coaches or fans like today.

"I'm speaking on the part of (conduct by) Kansas University. We were intimidated out of the game."

The fight erupted after Missouri's Scott Sims was called for charging and blows were exchanged by the Tigers' Jim Kennedy, Kim Anderson and Sims and Kansas' Donnie Von Moore and Herb Nobels. Von Moore and Kennedy were ejected.

"I'm sorry that has to be a part of college basketball," said Owens. "I'm more sorry that we had to be a part of it. I only know our side of the story. Maybe when I look at the films I can make a better judgment about it."

The hard-fought battle was a rematch of the title clash in the Big Eight Holiday Tournament Dec. 30 which the Tigers won 69-65.

The 6-foot-2 Douglas, who gunned in 11 of his 25 points in the final 5½ minutes, including a layup that was tipped into the air and still found the basket with 4:30 left. That made it 71-71.

"Until John made that shot we were in trouble," said teammate Ken Koenigs. "That was a miracle shot."

Douglas put Kansas ahead for good, 73-72, with a basket at 2:53. Then reserve guard Brad Sanders hit a foul shot at 1:03 to increase the Jayhawk margin to two.

A Douglas foul shot with 13 seconds remaining and a goaltending call with one second left on a Douglas 40-footer provided the final Kansas margin.

Indians top Portageville

NEW MADRID— The host Indians ran their New Madrid County Conference record to 4-0 as Lee Hunter's 20 points led the Indians Friday night to a 66-58 victory over the taller Portageville Bulldogs.

Both teams scored 50 points from the field in the game, but the winning margin came at the free throw line where New Madrid hit 16 to Portageville's 8. The Indians have now ran off six straight wins. Coach Carrol Compton must now take his troops on the road next week for three tough road games.

Besides Hunter's fine effort, Melvin Humphrey contributed an even dozen as did teammate Chris Tanner.

Shane Story led the Bulldogs in scoring with 19. Six-6 center Terry Durden had 14 for Portageville and led the Bulldogs in rebounding.

The Indians enjoyed a two point lead at halftime and slowly widened the gap in the second half to the final margin of 8.

A "DESIGNATED SCORER"

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Coach Cal Stoll of Minnesota's football team calls fullback Jim Perkins the team's "designated scorer." In the Gophers' first six games this season, Perkins carried the ball 35 times but scored nine touchdowns.

In 44 attempts as a junior in 1975, Perkins scored six TDs while carrying the football only 44 times all season.

ND whips Braves

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Notre Dame Bulldogs exploded for a 23-8 third quarter advantage, then held off the Scott Central Braves in the final stanza to preserve a 59-49 victory.

The first half was a defensive battle as the two teams fought to a 25-20 score, with the host Bulldogs enjoying the lead at intermission.

Notre Dame then came out of the lockerroom and burned the nets for 23 points in the third frame. Rick Dohogne, who netted an even dozen points on the evening, tallied all 12 in the third quarter. The Bulldogs' defense held the Braves to only 8 points as they extended their lead to 20 points going into the last frame.

The Scott Central crew made a comeback effort but fell short in the last stanza.

Mike Goodson led Notre Dame in scoring with 17, teammate Ken Blattel chipped in with 16, while the Bulldog defense held Scott Central to only one scorer in double figures.

Lions win own tourney

SENATH— Robert Duckworth's 26 points led the Senath-Hornersville Lions to a 67-54 victory over Delta C-7 in the championship game of the tournament here Saturday night. Delta C-7 had earned a berth in the championship game with a 59-57 victory over Hayti Friday. Senath had beaten Gosnell, Ark., the same night by a 61-41 score.

A 17-8 advantage in the second period boosted the Lions to the title. Their record now is 11-1. The Chargers fell to 11-2.

Terry Mead scored 18 points for Delta C-7's top effort.

Gosnell won the third-place contest, 49-45, over Hayti. A 25-15 advantage in the first and last quarters helped Gosnell hold off a mid-game Hayti surge.

Fourteen points by Hatcher led Gosnell. No Hayti player scored in double figures.

Senath coach Randy Benson called his team's preliminary game against Gosnell, "our best game of the year." But, his squad didn't do badly in the title contest, holding high-scoring Cookie Rose to 14 points.

Ralph Armour supported Duckworth's output with 17 poins of his own.

Pisarkiewicz sparks North bowl win

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz, who helped engineer Missouri's zany season of triumphs and disasters, rallied the North for two frantic fourth-quarter scores Saturday for a 27-24 victory over the South in the play-for-pay Senior Bowl football game.

Pisarkiewicz hit Tony Hill of Stanford with a four-yard lob into the right corner of the end zone with 33 seconds left in the game to lift the North to its comeback victory.

The winning drive of 46 yards was sparked when the North recovered an onside kick. It had narrowed the gap to 24-21 just over a minute earlier when Pisarkiewicz connected with Hill for a 13-yard touchdown.

South quarterback Tommy Kramer of Rice, living up to his All-American billing, had all but put the game out of reach when Pisarkiewicz started his Missouri-style rally that flipped the game around.

Kramer, who was named the game's most valuable player and won an automobile for his efforts, had put the South ahead 24-14 in the third quarter when he layed a long pass into the hands of Terry Robiskie of Louisiana State for an 80-yard touchdown.

That third-quarter bomb came only moments after a North drive was killed by an end zone interception, and it seemed to knock the wind out of the North for most of the fourth quarter.

The winning drive was highlighted by five Pisarkiewicz completions in a race against the clock, and he completed six passes in the touchdown drive moments earlier.

Pisarkiewicz completed 23 of 40 passes for 201 yards and the two last-gasp touchdowns, and though he missed out on the MVP award because the judges had already voted, a Senior Bowl spokesman said sponsors planned a special award for him.

The topsy-turvy game began with first the North and then the South scoring on their opening possessions. The North led 14-10 at halftime, thanks to a 44-yard touchdown pass from Ronnie Hickerson of Tulsa to John Kimbrough of nearby Citronelle, Ala., and who played for St. Cloud State in Minnesota.

But the South came back strong in the third period, with Robiskie sweeping right end from four yards out for a score set up when Wendell Tyler of UCLA fumbled a towering punt at the North 19.

That made it 17-14 in favor of the South, and Robiskie teamed with Kramer for the 80-yard strike that gave the South its big lead until Pisarkiewicz got warmed up.

42 Countries Represented In World College

SINGAPORE (AP) — Fostering international understanding through education may be a difficult task but that is exactly what the United World College of South East Asia is doing.

The College is really equivalent to American secondary school and has students, ranging in age from 11 to 18, from 42 countries.

Originally known as St. John's School, it was built on 60 acres of land by the British Armed Forces in 1964. But when the British forces were withdrawn from this island republic in 1971, it became the Singapore International School, run by the International Chamber of Commerce.

Earlier this year it underwent its last name change. There are two other similar colleges, the United World College of the Atlantic in South Wales, Britain, and the Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific in Vancouver, Canada. All three schools are largely organized by prominent businessmen, leading citizens and eminent politicians and diplomats, according to John Marshall, deputy headmaster of the United World College of South East Asia.

To help slow learners who need individual attention, the school maintains a student-teacher ratio of 12 to 1. The school has 1,250 students, including 300 boarders.

The Singapore government does not allow the school to accept Singapore citizens as students but there are no other limitations — except the tuition, which is about U.S. $1,908 a year (boarders pay about U.S. $3,870). Marshall explained that the entire school's expenditure was met by these fees.

About 20 per cent of the students are British, 10 per cent Australian, 7½ per cent each Malaysian and American. The others are from Japan, India, Sri Lanka, Pakistan, Indonesia, Taiwan, France, Germany and Holland.

The college provides a variety of courses not found in many high schools, including Malay, Mandarin and Russian.

Teachers earned an average annual salary of $8,141 in 1970, compared with the average yearly income of $345 earned by public educators in 1900, reports the Bureau of the Census.

RESOLUTION

A RESOLUTION DECLARING THE NECESSITY FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF ONE AND ONE HALF INCH ASPHALTIC CONCRETE PAVEMENT ON A STABILIZED BASE ON OKLAHOMA STREET FROM THE EAST SIDE OF ILLINOIS STREET TO THE WEST SIDE OF CROWE STREET IN THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI; STATING THE NATURE OF THE IMPROVEMENT; THE ESTIMATED COST AND PROVIDING THAT PAYMENT FOR ALL OF THE IMPROVEMENT SHALL BE MADE BY SPECIAL TAX BILLS LEVIED AND ASSESSED AGAINST THE ABUTTING PROPERTY.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SIKESTON, STATE OF MISSOURI AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said improvements in accordance with plan and specifications necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston.

Section 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials, and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement.

Section 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $8.40 pre lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement.

Section 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the Statutes of the State of Missouri and the Ordinance of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council, the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement.

Section 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri.

Section 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that is shall be published for seven consecutive insertions.

Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 30th day of December, 1976.

Lions win own tourney

SENATH— Robert Duckworth's 26 points led the Senath-Hornersville Lions to a 67-54 victory over Delta C-7 in the championship game of the tournament here Saturday night. Delta C-7 had earned a berth in the championship game with a 59-57 victory over Hayti Friday. Senath had beaten Gosnell, Ark., the same night by a 61-41 score.

A 17-8 advantage in the second period boosted the Lions to the title. Their record now is 11-1. The Chargers fell to 11-2.

Terry Mead scored 18 points for Delta C-7's top effort.

Gosnell won the third-place contest, 49-45, over Hayti. A 25-15 advantage in the first and last quarters helped Gosnell hold off a mid-game Hayti surge.

Fourteen points by Hatcher led Gosnell. No Hayti player scored in double figures.

Senath coach Randy Benson called his team's preliminary game against Gosnell, "our best game of the year." But, his squad didn't do badly in the title contest, holding high-scoring Cookie Rose to 14 points.

Ralph Armour supported Duckworth's output with 17 poins of his own.

Pisarkiewicz sparks North bowl win

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz, who helped engineer Missouri's zany season of triumphs and disasters, rallied the North for two frantic fourth-quarter scores Saturday for a 27-24 victory over the South in the play-for-pay Senior Bowl football game.

Pisarkiewicz hit Tony Hill of Stanford with a four-yard lob into the right corner of the end zone with 33 seconds left in the game to lift the North to its comeback victory.

The winning drive of 46 yards was sparked when the North recovered an onside kick. It had narrowed the gap to 24-21 just over a minute earlier when Pisarkiewicz connected with Hill for a 13-yard touchdown.

South quarterback Tommy Kramer of Rice, living up to his All-American billing, had all but put the game out of reach when Pisarkiewicz started his Missouri-style rally that flipped the game around.

Kramer, who was named the game's most valuable player and won an automobile for his efforts, had put the South ahead 24-14 in the third quarter when he layed a long pass into the hands of Terry Robiskie of Louisiana State for an 80-yard touchdown.

That third-quarter bomb came only moments after a North drive was killed by an end zone interception, and it seemed to knock the wind out of the North for most of the fourth quarter.

The winning drive was highlighted by five Pisarkiewicz completions in a race against the clock, and he completed six passes in the touchdown drive moments earlier.

Pisarkiewicz completed 23 of 40 passes for 201 yards and the two last-gasp touchdowns, and though he missed out on the MVP award because the judges had already voted, a Senior Bowl spokesman said sponsors planned a special award for him.

The topsy-turvy game began with first the North and then the South scoring on their opening possessions. The North led 14-10 at halftime, thanks to a 44-yard touchdown pass from Ronnie Hickerson of Tulsa to John Kimbrough of nearby Citronelle, Ala., and who played for St. Cloud State in Minnesota.

But the South came back strong in the third period, with Robiskie sweeping right end from four yards out for a score set up when Wendell Tyler of UCLA fumbled a towering punt at the North 19.

That made it 17-14 in favor of the South, and Robiskie teamed with Kramer for the 80-yard strike that gave the South its big lead until Pisarkiewicz got warmed up.

42 Countries Represented In World College

SINGAPORE (AP) — Fostering international understanding through education may be a difficult task but that is exactly what the United World College of South East Asia is doing.

The College is really equivalent to American secondary school and has students, ranging in age from 11 to 18, from 42 countries.

Originally known as St. John's School, it was built on 60 acres of land by the British Armed Forces in 1964. But when the British forces were withdrawn from this island republic in 1971, it became the Singapore International School, run by the International Chamber of Commerce.

Earlier this year it underwent its last name change. There are two other similar colleges, the United World College of the Atlantic in South Wales, Britain, and the Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific in Vancouver, Canada. All three schools are largely organized by prominent businessmen, leading citizens and eminent politicians and diplomats, according to John Marshall, deputy headmaster of the United World College of South East Asia.

To help slow learners who need individual attention, the school maintains a student-teacher ratio of 12 to 1. The school has 1,250 students, including 300 boarders.

The Singapore government does not allow the school to accept Singapore citizens as students but there are no other limitations — except the tuition, which is about U.S. $1,908 a year (boarders pay about U.S. $3,870). Marshall explained that the entire school's expenditure was met by these fees.

About 20 per cent of the students are British, 10 per cent Australian, 7½ per cent each Malaysian and American. The others are from Japan, India, Sri Lanka, Pakistan, Indonesia, Taiwan, France, Germany and Holland.

The college provides a variety of courses not found in many high schools, including Malay, Mandarin and Russian.

Teachers earned an average annual salary of $8,141 in 1970, compared with the average yearly income of $345 earned by public educators in 1900, reports the Bureau of the Census.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The annual meeting of the Shareholders of the Sikeston Industrial Development Company will be held Wednesday, Jan. 12, 1977, 7:30 p.m. at the City Administrative Building, 215 N. New Madrid for the purpose of electing directors and transaction of other business of the corporation.

RESOLUTION

A RESOLUTION DECLARING THE NECESSITY FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF ONE AND ONE HALF INCH ASPHALTIC CONCRETE PAVEMENT ON A STABILIZED BASE ON OKLAHOMA STREET FROM THE EAST SIDE OF ILLINOIS STREET TO THE WEST SIDE OF CROWE STREET IN THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI; STATING THE NATURE OF THE IMPROVEMENT; THE ESTIMATED COST AND PROVIDING THAT PAYMENT FOR ALL OF THE IMPROVEMENT SHALL BE MADE BY SPECIAL TAX BILLS LEVIED AND ASSESSED AGAINST THE ABUTTING PROPERTY.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SIKESTON, STATE OF MISSOURI AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said improvements in accordance with plan and specifications necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston.

Section 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials, and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement.

Section 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $8.40 pre lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement.

Section 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the Statutes of the State of Missouri and the Ordinance of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council, the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement.

Section 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri.

Section 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that is shall be published for seven consecutive insertions.

Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 30th day of December, 1976.

APPROVED: Don Fulton

Family Services dole totales $163,797

NEW MADRID — Assistance funds totaling $163,797 were disbursed in December 1976 by the New Madrid County Division of Family Services office, with $131,252 of that amount paid to families receiving aid to dependent children.

A total of 968 families with 2,219 children received aid to dependent children payments averaging $135.59 per family.

State supplemental payments or state supplemental and supplemental security income payments were made to 787 persons. State supplemental payments totaled $21,835.

Another 460 persons were listed on the supplemental security income rolls. These persons do not receive a cash grant and are eligible for Medicaid benefits only from the state.

Medical assistance was received by 385 persons, who did not receive a cash check and are eligible for Medicaid benefits.

General relief funds of $6,422 were paid to 92 families consisting of 101 persons for an average $63.58 check per person.

Supplemental aid to the blind amounting to $3,108 was paid to 28 persons, and one person received $200 for nursing care.

Supervisory services were provided for 369 children. Equal funds of $490 were provided by the New Madrid County Court and by state boarding funds for room and board, clothing, medicine, dental care and incidentals for the children.

Food stamp figures released for the month of September 1976 show that 1,062 households, consisting of 3,621 persons, received food stamp coupons valued at $147,754, of which $80,620.50 were bonus coupons.

Board reviews insurance on Chaffee schools

CHAFFEE — The Chaffee R-2 Board of Education met in special session Wednesday night to review expiring insurance policies on all school buildings and their contents and school liability.

Present, along with board members and Supt. Howard Reed, were Ann Whitfield, Joe P. Rice Jr. and Bob Wachter, all insurance agents here.

After lengthy discussion and attention to present coverage, the board decided to wait to accept bids until an appraisal is made by the state Board of Education.

An invitation to bid will be advertised, the board said, with bids due in the superintendent's office Feb. 7. The board will meet in special session again at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 7 to review the bids.

The next regular board meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 24, rather than Jan. 19, because of an upcoming Scott-Mississippi Conference basketball tournament.

Do You Believe That Christ Founded A Church?

Christ gathered men around Himself and gave them specific work to do. He established a religious organization - in other words, a church, for a church is nothing more than an organization of persons professing the same religious belief and worshipping God in the same way under the authority of religious superiors.

This church was founded by Christ as a permanent organization, otherwise the truths which He came to teach would soon be confused, obscured, or even forgotten. Moreover, this organization to be effective was given power to teach, sanctify, and legislate in Christ's name. Since every organization needs a head, Christ gave the position originally to Peter. Peter's successors down through history have acquired through this office similar responsibilities and obligations of service to the Whole People of God.

Are you looking for the Church which Christ founded? Seek in the world today for that organization whose truths are capable of bringing your life into conformity with the will of God, whose spiritual leaders are historically the successors of the Apostles, and whose fundamental doctrines apply equally to all members throughout the world. Why not investigate the teachings of the Catholic Church?

New cotton seed processing concept is developed by Delta & Pine Land

SCOTT, Mississippi — John Daniel, President of Delta & Pine Land Company recently announced the start up of operations in an all-new, from floor to roof, cotton seed processing plant at the company's Executive Offices in Scott, Mississippi. Daniel says this new overall concept for both delinting and cleaning of cotton seed resulted in an investment exceeding a half million dollars.

It is both a dynamic and complex process, thus the reason for "DynaPlex", the name selected for it. This exclusive total delinting and cleaning concept is so advanced that a patent on it has been applied for and the plant is not open to inspection by visitors.

The delinting process builds on the basic principle of using dilute sulfuric acid as developed by Cotton, Incorporated, by the overall combination of equipment and methods in the DynaPlex concept for acid application, seed drying, lint removal, seed cleaning and handling differs widely from "wet acid" plants and other "dilute acid" plants now in operation. In addition, it uses a highly sophisticated system for controls throughout as the seed are put through as many as 20 operations on 34 pieces of machinery.

By adjustment of equipment, two types of seed are produced, Del-Par and Del-Max. The company does not call these "machine" or "acid" delinted because both types are produced by the dilute acid method.

New processing plant

The new D&PL DynaPlex processing plant in Scott, Miss. is a new overall concept for both delinting and cleaning of cotton seed. The investment exceeded over a half million dollars.

Del-Par (partially delinted) seed are produced for customers who still prefer to have seed with some lint on them. However, Del-Par seed have more uniform lint removal and remaining linters are uniformly shorter than possible under Delta & Pine Land's previously used Machine + Flame-Zip process. This improves cleaning efficiency, allows seed treatments to be applied more uniformly and the seed flow better for more accurate planting.

Del-Max (maximum delinted) seed are completely delinted, resembling seed done by the conventional concentrated acid method. The dilute acid method is easier on the seed, however, and with the cleaning efficiency from additional and different seed cleaning equipment these seed represent the ultimate of final product.

Daniel also announced that Delta & Pine Land Company has installed additional seed treating equipment for the application of chemicals in the Evershield base.

The new combinations have proved to be highly superior to previously used chemicals, based on both the results of D.&P.L. Co's Research Department Tests and the Regional Seed Treatment Tests over several years. They were particularly outstanding in the spring of 1976, a cold, adverse planting season.

Evershield is a patented resin base seed protectant carrier-binder which forms a porous envelope around seed protectant chemical particles. This permanent, thin, water permeable, non-sticky film covering dries quickly on the seed coat to practically eliminate dusting off so the chemical stays where it is needed--on the seed--resulting in better disease control.

As used by Delta & Pine Land Company, the Evershield treatments formulated with captain, malathion and methoxychlor as the minimum fungicide treatment offered and with captain, thiram, Vitavax, malathion and methoxychlor to provide a much broader spectrum of disease control in the maximum fungicide treatment offered. Di-Syston systemic insecticide is available with the maximum fungicide treatment as in the past.

These four new ideas for 1977, DynaPlex, Del-Par, Del-Max, and Evershield, are considered to be giant strides forward by Delta & Pine Land Company, originators and processors of D&PL Brand Originator's Cotton Seed.

Private pesticide applicator training near for those needing

By JOHN D. GARRETT
Agronomy Specialist

BENTON — The Missouri Pesticide Act of 1974 requires that private applicators must be certified if they want to apply a "restricted" pesticide. All chemical companies will relabel their pesticides by October of 1977 into either of two classes-"for general use" or "for restricted use."

Several of the popular pesticides used by farmers will be in the "restricted use" category. The Missouri law went into effect in October of 1976.

Now, just what is a pesticide? A pesticide is defined as a substance or mixture of substances intended for controlling insects, weeds, or disease pests, or to be used as a plant regulator, defoliant, or desiccant. Commonly used pesticides are insecticides, herbicides, fungicides, nematicides, and rodenticides.

A private applicator is a producer (farmer, nurseryman, or orchardist) who applies a pesticide in crop production. In contrast, a commercial applicator is someone who applies pesticides for pay.

To qualify as a certified private applicator, a farmer or other producer will need to attend a three-hour training session conducted by University of Missouri Extension personnel. The Missouri Department of Agriculture is responsible for certification. There will be no fee and you will not have to pass a test.

A list of survey questions will be given at the end of each subject. Questions will be answered and you can keep them for future reference.

Everyone who attends the three-hour session will receive a certificate.

I hope every farmer in the county or one or more of his employes will attend one of the sessions. Both employer and employe are welcome to attend. If you or one of your employes attend one of these sessions, you will not get short later by not being able to buy and use a pesticide on the "restricted use" list.

Eight training sessions have been scheduled in January and February, 1977, for Scott County farmers. Most of these are located at public schools, so you should try to attend the session at your location. It will be necessary to attend the full three-hour session to qualify for certification.

Dates, locations, and times for the 8 Scott County sessions are listed below:

Jan. 11, Illmo-Scott City High School Cafeteria in Scott City, 6:30-9:30 p.m.; Jan. 13, Kelly Elementary School cafeteria, Benton, 6:30-9:30 p.m.; Jan. 20, Chaffee Grade School, 6:30-9:30 p.m.; Jan. 27, Scott County Central MultiPurpose Room in new Elementary building, 6:30-9:30 p.m.; Feb. 7, Security Federal Savings & Loan, 820 N. Main St., Sikeston, 9 a.m.-12 noon; Feb. 7, Security Federal Savings & Loan, 820 N. Main St., Sikeston, 6:30-9:30 p.m.; Feb. 10, Oran High School Cafeteria, 6:30-9:30 p.m.

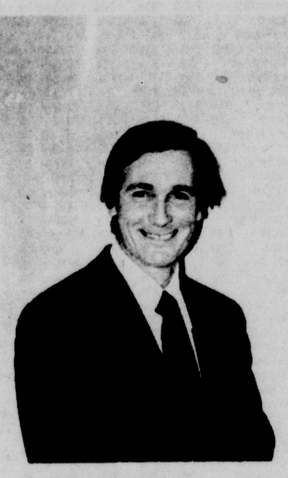
You will note a few minor changes in the above schedule from the earlier one sent to you. I hope to see you at one of the above sessions.

Runyan appointed state ag director

JEFFERSON CITY — "We are fortunate to have an active Farm Bureau member and successful cattleman such as Jack Runyan to head up Missouri's Department of Agriculture," C.R. "Dick" Johnston, Missouri Farm Bureau president, said of Gov. Joseph Teasdale's appointment made public Monday.

"We look forward to working with Jack in his administration of Missouri's largest industry--agriculture. He is a farmer-rancher and is well acquainted with the needs and desires of the Missouri agriculture community."

A third generation cattleman from Easton in Buchanan County, Runyan brings 25 years of ranching experience to the Missouri Department of Agriculture. In partnership with his mother, Mrs. Nadine Runyan, and his two brothers, Jim and Tom, the new director operates 2,500 acres owned by the partnership and 1,500 additional leased acres. The cattle operation extends into three counties--Buchanan, Clinton and DeKalb.



Jack Runyan

C. R. "Dick" Johnston

Runyan said his top priority would be to have key department heads appointed by March 1. Runyan also said, that as announced previously by Teasdale, there would be no wholesale firing of agriculture personnel; no mass exodus. "I will require that those remaining with me be competent in their jobs and be loyal to Gov. Teasdale and to me."

One of the major problems facing Missouri agriculture is the livestock health program. Johnston commented "that one of the first priorities facing the new Agriculture Department director would be the continuing of a strong brucellosis eradication program."

In accepting his appointment, Runyan pointed out he considers his assignment one of the major challenges he has received. "I intend to build a department that is good for the state...and good for Missouri agriculture," he said. "I hope to accomplish these goals with the help of a Governor's Advisory Council for Agriculture and through grassroot opinions of my fellow farmers. I will have an open door policy, because I want to hear the comments of both farmers and consumers."

Runyan is a 1956 graduate of Kansas State University at Manhattan with a bachelor of science degree in animal science. He and his wife, Sarah, have three children, John, 19, a college student; Pete 17; and Elizabeth, 14.

Pesticide certification training meetings are scheduled in area

BLOOMFIELD — Pesticide certification training meetings will be held throughout Stoddard County during the period of Jan. 17-21 inclusive, according to Tom Brown, area agronomy specialist.

These meetings will be conducted by extension service personnel for the benefit of farmers and others who use pesticides (chemicals for the control of weeds, insects, diseases, nematodes, rodents, etc.) in the production of agricultural commodities in their own private operations.

Purpose of these meetings is to provide the necessary training to qualify these people as "private applicators" to purchase and use "restricted use" pesticides. A private applicator is a producer, including a farmer, nurseryman, orchardist, or any person, who uses pesticides in agricultural production. Restricted use pesticides will be designated by the Environmental Protection Agency on the basis of the danger involved in their use, their environmental impact, and other such considerations.

To qualify for certification, an agricultural producer simply needs to attend one of the training meetings. These training sessions, which will be designed to help producers select and use pesticides effectively and safely, must be at least three hours long. No fee will be involved, and producers will not have to pass an examination in order to certify.

The schedule for the training meetings is as follows:

Jan. 17, Catholic Church Hall, Dexter, 1 p.m.; Jan. 17, School Cafeteria, Bernie, 6:30 p.m.; Jan. 18, Farm Brueau Building, Bloomfield 1 p.m.; Jan. 19, Richland High School Cafeteria, 1 p.m.; Jan. 20, School Cafeteria, Bell City, 1:30 p.m.; Jan. 20, Elementary School, Advance, 6:30 p.m.; Jan. 21, School Cafeteria, Puxico, 1:30 p.m.

All agricultural producers who use pesticides in their own private operations are invited to attend the meeting which best fits into their schedule. At least one person from each agricultural operation should attend one of these meetings and become certified so that the needed pesticides can be purchased and used in each operation.

New data is included in hay directory

JEFFERSON CITY — The fourth annual Missouri Hay Directory has been printed and is now being distributed to livestock producers throughout the state. In addition to sources of hay in Missouri, this year's edition lists out-of-state sellers and commercial feed companies with protein supplements for sale.

More than 600 sellers representing about 204,000 tons of available hay are listed in the new directory, the largest to date. Hay is for sale in 88 of Missouri's 114 counties, as well as in five other states. The directory is a cooperative effort of the Missouri Department of Agriculture (MDA), University of Missouri Extension Division and Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Wayne Yokley, supervisor of MDA's marketing section, explained that out-of-state sellers were included because of this year's extreme hay shortages and persisting drought conditions. These listings will open up additional sources of hay for Missouri livestock producers, who are hard pressed to find adequate forage to maintain their herds through the winter months.

Because insufficient fall pastures have resulted in a shortening of what otherwise would have been normal roughage supplies in Missouri, the directory also lists commercial feed companies which have or will prepare protein supplements. Yokley said a combination of roughages and commercial feeds could be the least expensive winter maintenance program for Missouri cattle producers.

Copies of the 1976-77 hay directory are available on request from the Missouri Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 630, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101, telephone number 751-4339.

Fewer hens, more eggs effect prices

JEFFERSON CITY — There are fewer hens today, but they are compensating. Hens are laying more eggs every year, a fact that may affect future egg prices.

U.S. Department of Agriculture statistics show production through July 1976 exceeded 38 billion eggs, about one per cent more than last year's output. In the same period, the number of laying hens declined 1 per cent.

Analysts estimated that average national egg output rose in 1976 to 236 eggs per hen at the end of 1976. This is three more than in 1975 and 18 more than 10 years ago. Furthermore, they expect the rate of lay to continue rising.

Milt Rischert, supervisor of the egg program of the Missouri Department of Agriculture, says the increased productivity is the result of genetic research and increased use of sophisticated flock-management techniques. For instance, more producers now cage birds in insulated buildings rather than letting them run around the hen-house floor.

"Under modern conditions 250 to 260 eggs per hen in a 12-month period isn't uncommon," says Bill Steinbrueck, egg producer of Chesterfield Farms in St. Louis County.

The increasing rate of lay means some farmers may have to trim flocks to maintain a balance of supply with demand, says Steinbrueck. Studies show that consumers buy approximately the same number of eggs, regardless of price. If there is an increased supply of eggs on the market and consumers aren't increasing purchases substantially, producers simply can't break even, he says.

"We may never know if the chicken or the egg came first, but we do know that research preceded increased egg production."

Unemployment rate drops due to decrease in agriculture workers

JEFFERSON CITY — A normal seasonal drop in agriculture during November resulted in a slightly higher unemployment rate, according to preliminary labor force estimates. A Division of Employment Security spokesman said the unemployment rate, not seasonally adjusted, was 4.6 per cent of the labor force, about the same as the October rate of 4.5 per cent.

Unemployment increased by 300 persons to reach 92,700 in November, a month which normally experiences a moderate increase in unemployment.

Total employment dropped 20,200 persons, totaling 1,939,900, but nonagricultural employment increased 6,600. Most of the increase was in manufacturing, but non-manufacturing jobs also rose.

Contract construction followed the normal trend for the month of November by losing almost 3,000 jobs. The increase in jobs in retail trade establishments due to holiday sales, and government sector gains (almost 3,000 jobs due almost entirely to job increases at the state's educational institutions) offset construction job losses.

A look at the longterm growth trend shows that the strong employment growth which occurred during the first half of the year (January to June) began dropping off in July and August, and continues slow.

The state's unemployment has followed a trend of decreasing unemployment, with joblessness decreasing in seven of the past 11 months. The number of jobless increased in both October and November.

Development forum slated for St. Louis

JEFFERSON CITY — A conference of professional and community economic development leaders will be held Jan. 20-21 at the Airport Hilton Inn in St. Louis.

Sponsored by the Missouri Division of Commerce and Industrial Development and the Missouri Professional Industrial Development Society, the forum will feature an analysis of upcoming legislation in the 1977 General Assembly and its potential impact on the state business community and local development efforts.

This is the first of several regional forums designed to acquaint community leaders and professional developers with the basic tools necessary for local economic growth. The forum is being coordinated by CID's community and professional relations director, Kent B. Ansorge.

Included in the program will be representatives of the Missouri Chamber of Commerce, University of Missouri-St. Louis, American Industrial Development Council, Southern Industrial Development Council and Industrial Development Research Council.

Cadney completes real estate course

Lorenzo Cadney

Lorenzo Cadney, 826 Ruth St. has completed a 32-hour course in real estate at the Missouri Real Estate School in St. Louis and received his license as a real estate salesman.

The 32 hours of class room instruction are required by the Missouri Real Estate Commission to become eligible to take the salesman or broker examination.

The examination was administered by Washington University in St. Louis and was the first test made and scored by Princeton University for the state of Missouri.

After completing the course and examination in November, Cadney has been licensed by the State of Missouri as a real estate salesman and is currently associated with Barkett Real Estate of Sikeston.

Cadney received his bachelor's degree from Alcorn A & M University in Lorman, Miss., and is currently completing the course of study for a master's degree in mathematics at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau.

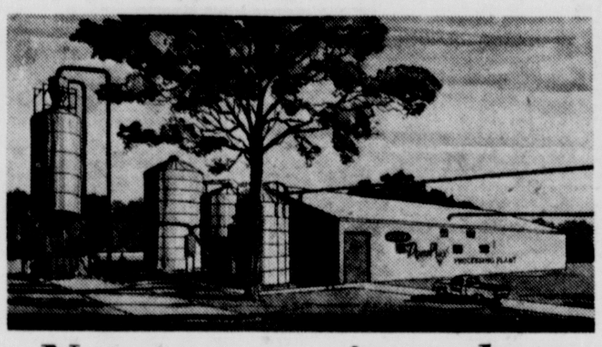
New cotton seed processing concept is developed by Delta & Pine Land

SCOTT, Mississippi — John Daniel, President of Delta & Pine Land Company recently announced the start up of operations in an all-new, from floor to roof, cotton seed processing plant at the company's Executive Offices in Scott, Mississippi. Daniel says this new overall concept for both delinting and cleaning of cotton seed resulted in an investment exceeding a half million dollars.

It is both a dynamic and complex process, thus the reason for "DynaPlex", the name selected for it. This exclusive total delinting and cleaning concept is so advanced that a patent on it has been applied for and the plant is not open to inspection by visitors.

The delinting process builds on the basic principle of using dilute sulfuric acid as developed by Cotton, Incorporated, by the overall combination of equipment and methods in the DynaPlex concept for acid application, seed drying, lint removal, seed cleaning and handling differs widely from "wet acid" plants and other "dilute acid" plants now in operation. In addition, it uses a highly sophisticated system for controls throughout as the seed are put through as many as 20 operations on 34 pieces of machinery.

By adjustment of equipment, two types of seed are produced, Del-Par and Del-Max. The company does not call these "machine" or "acid" delinted because both types are produced by the dilute acid method.



New processing plant

The new D&PL DynaPlex processing plant in Scott, Miss. is a new overall concept for both delinting and cleaning of cotton seed. The investment exceeded over a half million dollars.

Del-Par (partially delinted) seed are produced for customers who still prefer to have seed with some lint on them. However, Del-Par seed have more uniform lint removal and remaining linters are uniformly shorter than possible under Delta & Pine Land's previously used Machine + Flame-Zip process. This improves cleaning efficiency, allows seed treatments to be applied more uniformly and the seed flow better for more accurate planting.

Del-Max (maximum delinted) seed are completely delinted, resembling seed done by the conventional concentrated acid method. The dilute acid method is easier on the seed, however, and with the cleaning efficiency from additional and different seed cleaning equipment these seed represent the ultimate of final product.

Daniel also announced that Delta & Pine Land Company has installed additional seed treating equipment for the application of chemicals in the Evershield base.

The new combinations have proved to be highly superior to previously used chemicals, based on both the results of D.&P.L. Co's Research Department Tests and the Regional Seed Treatment Tests over several years. They were particularly outstanding in the spring of 1976, a cold, adverse planting season.

Evershield is a patented resin base seed protectant carrier-binder which forms a porous envelope around seed protectant chemical particles. This permanent, thin, water permeable, non-sticky film covering dries quickly on the seed coat to practically eliminate dusting off so the chemical stays where it is needed--on the seed--resulting in better disease control.

As used by Delta & Pine Land Company, the Evershield treatments formulated with captain, malathion and methoxychlor as the minimum fungicide treatment offered and with captain, thiram, Vitavax, malathion and methoxychlor to provide a much broader spectrum of disease control in the maximum fungicide treatment offered. Di-Syston systemic insecticide is available with the maximum fungicide treatment as in the past.

These four new ideas for 1977, DynaPlex, Del-Par, Del-Max, and Evershield, are considered to be giant strides forward by Delta & Pine Land Company, originators and processors of D&PL Brand Originator's Cotton Seed.

REFLECTIONS

Don't tell me I'm growing old–
My childlike heart will hide it;
For once I saw a deer at play
With its speckled fawn beside it.
Today I saw the dawn break
On serene, new-fallen snow;
My eyes saw strange reflections
My heart will forever know.

I've felt the mists of mountains
Penetrate both bone and soul.
I've walked expanses of low land
With the horizons as my goal.
I've tasted wild dewberries,
And I've sipped from restless streams.
How can I age or turn gray
When my heart is filled with dreams?

Dear Sir:

We thank you for the generous coverage preceeding and during PLUM FANCY's debut and Deborah's "homecoming" engagement in Sikeston. Ms. O'Leary's and Mr. Beardslee's interview was held in a most professional manner, yet they managed to create a "down-home" relaxed atmosphere within which we were all comfortable.

As you well know, in the entertainment business, publicity can make or break an engagement. Yours was most definitely an asset to us, and again, we thank you. PLUM FANCY wishes you a spirited and Lucky'77!!!

Kindest regards,
PLUM FANCY

Carter was never such an outsider

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — One of the more interesting aspects of the primary campaign for president was the unusually great support given Jimmy Carter by influential lawyers nationwide — and by the sizeable numbers in this group making major campaign contributions.

These donor lists were not primarily composed of small town attorneys doing family service to neighbors in their home communities. Many of these important contributors were attorneys for firms representing major American industrial corporations.

Even more important was the exceedingly strong support for Mr. Carter from the start by prestigious Atlanta law firms. Men from these filled critical roles in Carter's inner group when he had little more than an inner group. They came up with money, or raised money, at a time when Mr. Carter desperately had to have it — when the issue was whether his campaign could continue or whether it would founder for lack of funds.

Stuart Eisenstat, Mr. Carter's issues chairman, is connected with Powell, Goldstein, Frazer and Murphy, of Atlanta. According to the authoritative Martindale-Hubbell Law Directory for 1976, they are general counsel or counsel for — among others — Dow Chemical, Allis-Chalmers, Delta Air Lines, J.P. Stevens and Company, Grinnel, International Paper, International Minerals and Chemicals and for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, the mammoth New York stockbroker firm.

Powell, Goldstein, Frazer and Murphy also represent Mobil Oil, Teledyne, Southern Railway System, and John Hancock Mutual Life. Not to mention Thomson and McKinnon Auchincloss, Inc., another major stockbroker firm.

Charles H. Kirbo, reportedly closest man on earth to Jimmy Carter, is with King and Spalding, also of Atlanta. So is Jack H. Watson, Jr., kingpin in the Carter transition team. Also Griffin Bell, Mr. Carter's choice for Attorney General.

King and Spalding is general counsel, counsel or state counsel for General Motors, Prudential Insurance, Bessemer Securities Corporation, Southern Natural Resources, the big utilities firm, Cox Broadcasting, the Coca-Cola Company, West Point-Pepperel.

Adviser Philip Alston is with Alston, Mitler and Gaines, also of Atlanta, Georgia, which represents Aetna Life, American Oil, Chrysler, Continental Telephone and Otis Elevator.

Mr. Carter's major money raiser from the start, it's understood, was Robert J. Lipshutz, of Lipshutz, Zusmann and Sikes, of Atlanta. In the primary, the big donor list from that firm read like a roster of the firm's partners and associates. From a reading of successive Carter financial reports, it would seem that every time money was scarce, the firm's members came up with another round of giving.

Lipshutz, Zusmann and Sikes represent Lawyers Title Insurance, London Guarantee and Accident Company, Associated Grocers Cooperatives.

Already well publicized are the prestigious law firm associations of such advisers as Joseph A. Califano, Jr., of Williams (Edward Bennett Williams), Connolly and Califano, and Cyrus R. Vance, of the New York firm of Simpson, Thacher and Bartlett.

What this suggests is that President-elect Carter was not, even at the beginning, the outsider he was advertised. His connections were widespread in the Establishment — particularly in the money-legal establishment.

This suggests that he may not be as liberal in his thinking as was suggested by his campaign oratory or by his promises to so-called public interest groups.

Let's teach students to think

By Joseph D. Coffee, Jr.

The thinker or the tinker?

This may be a rather exaggerated set of alternatives, but it reflects the debate in higher education about how well our liberal arts colleges prepare students for the challenges they will find after graduation.

Vocationalism is in vogue and has put liberal arts program on the defensive. Moreover, within the liberal arts, the twin goals of flexibility and specialization have left students to shape their own curriculum without being exposed to each of the major academic areas — the humanities, social sciences and the natural sciences.

Student protests against fixed or distribution requirements in the 1960s lead many institutions to relax their degree requirements.

College faculty members have too frequently handed over to the students responsibility for fashioning their higher education — despite the fact that they as educators surely have a greater competence to say what makes an educated man or woman than an 18 year old freshman or sophomore.

They may believe that a liberal arts education is the best if not the only way to produce the desired result — a thinking individual. Yet in recent years they have felt powerless to assert their expertise in defining a fundamental education for those who would become liberally educated.

Of all of the problems we face in higher education, I think the one that demands greatest attention is what some people call the "smorgasbord" approach to curriculum. Pick your course and pray it works. We've lost ground, I'm afraid, when it comes to general education.

"Contemporary Civilization" courses started at Columbia University after World War I and similar programs were installed at other prestigious colleges during the 1920s. The end of World War II saw a resurgence of interest in general education and in 1945 Harvard published its famous "General Education in Free Society" which influenced many other institutions. Over the years, though, we have seen an erosion of general education as it yielded to the competing demands for early specialization in an increasingly technological society.

Today, we find some concerned observers looking at the deficiencies of the graduates of the past 20 years and searching for a new approach to provide that common intellectual experience which marks the educated person. This is not to suggest that we should go back to the 1920s or even the 1940s. Rather we must move forward to develop new programs for new demands, at least for the rest of the century.

What do students entering college want? Intellectual growth is seldom mentioned these days. More likely, the answer to the question will be "to get into medical school" or "I want to be a lawyer," or "I can't get a good job without a degree."

We shouldn't fault them. But we should recognize that they have been encouraged to think narrowly. Their parents, their teachers, and their counselors seem to have overlooked the basic need for a broader understanding of current society, understanding gained from a study of civilizations across the centuries.

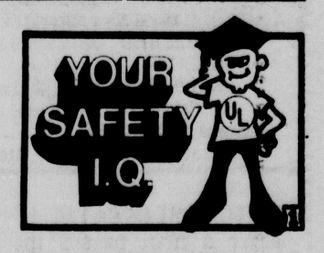
This is the path to intellectual enrichment. Study in the liberal arts brings flexibility of thinking, a capacity to understand people — to see another's viewpoint, to understand why a person thinks the way he does. It is very important that we provide a better understanding of the people who live outside of the United States — through study of their literature, religions, economic backgrounds, politics; their several histories and aspirations. And, a very special focus ought to be on the non-Western world. These are some of the imperatives for the new undergraduate curriculum.

We feel that our college, founded 10 years ago, provides a model for this. Our "World Studies" program was designed at a time when general education and specific distribution of requirements were rapidly disappearing from favor, but we persevered. And the risk was worth it. Our program survives, and we can demonstrate that such an approach works. Our research, using the undergraduates Record Examinations as a measure of general knowledge, shows that our students make significant percentile gains over four years and this is based on comparison with national norms.

Once again, priorities in higher education are changing. The need to return to more structured requirements is again at the top of the agenda. Even Harvard is beginning to announce the result of soul-searching and planning for change. Does this mean a trend toward more requirements, team teaching and interdisciplinary education of the type our college has already developed?

Probably not. There is likely to be a lot of discussion, but change is not easy. Cost is one factor. Another is structure. Colleges will have to deal, among other things, with faculty reluctance to disrupt a life's work based on narrow disciplinary interests and their training as specialists.

Still, the traditional liberal arts dividend of a more rewarding personal life remains a strong positive force. Not only is human understanding the most important ingredient of education, it also is the important result of the education process. It's exciting and effective because people — students — deep down are more interested in people than anything else.



1. Most fatal falls in the home occur —
   A. On stairs
   B. On ladders
   C. At floor level
2. To remove a slice of toast stuck in a toaster, it is best to use:
   A. A sharp fork
   B. A dull knife
   C. Wooden stick or tongs

ANSWERS

1. C. Two-thirds of all fatal home falls occur at floor level, caused by some trivial thing—a toy on the floor, spilled liquids, turned-up rug edge, etc. Neatness and safety go hand-in-hand.
2. C. Metal utensils can damage the toaster heating element. Serious shock can result when such utensils contact the heating element. Always disconnect the toaster first, even when using a wooden stick or utensil.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

The basic weapon of 18th-century land warfare was the larger-caliber, smooth-bore, flintlock musket. It was awkward, slow and unpredictable in performance. The flintlock was usually silenced by rain or snow, a fact which contributed to the practice of non-engagement between armies in the winter months, The World Almanac recalls.

Dr. Lamb

Low pressure causes fainting

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Maybe you can help me with my problem. For the past several years every time I bend over or sit down on the ground or floor and try to get up, everything turns black and my head feels like it is blown out. I have fainted several times, and it seems to be getting worse.

Th doctor I went to gave it a name, which I can't remember, but said there wasn't anything one could do to help it except to get up slowly. Do you know something that would help?

DEAR READER — Your doctor probably called it postural or orthostatic hypotension, meaning low blood pressure with standing. There are many causes for fainting, and a good examination is important. Many medicines commonly prescribed can be the cause. This includes some tranquilizers.

Fainting of the type you describe occurs because there is not enough blood pumped to the brain. This is caused by too much blood going to the legs when you stand up so there is not enough left to pump uphill to your brain.

The distribution of the blood is controlled by reflexes that regulate the size of the arteries in your legs and elsewhere. These reflexes can become faulty because of disease in the arteries to the brain centers that control them.

Fainting can also occur because of poor muscle tone that permits too much blood to accumulate rapidly in your leg veins. Bed rest contributes to this problem. Any decrease in the total amount of blood in your body may be a factor. Then you can include pain from any source, even the response to the needle stick from blood-drawing or shots. Psychic influences are also important. Some people get faint from the smells of a hospital or the sight of blood. Low blood sugar and other chemical changes in the body can also be a factor. Fasting may make a person faint and cause the symptoms you describe because of loss of body water and chemical changes.

With this list of things that can cause faintness you see why a complete examination is important in establishing why a person tends to faint.

With recurrent episodes as you describe, it is more important to have a complete evaluation. You may be able to help yourself by wearing support hose or firm elastic stockings. The external pressure against the legs prevents the veins from overdistending when you first stand up. This helps to increase the return of blood to the heart which in turn augments the amount of blood pumped by the heart and the amount going to the brain.

The firmer the external support to the legs, the more protection you will get against fainting. There are special stockings that provide more pressure at the foot level and gradually decrease the pressure at levels nearer the hip. Try external support and see if it doesn't help you. You will still need a complete medical evaluation to nail down the real cause of your problem.

Fainting is a common experience, and it can be very important or of little consequence. To give you more complete information about it — I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-2, Fainting (Syncope). Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Just send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. REFLECTIONS

Don't tell me I'm growing old--
My childlike heart will hide it;
For once I saw a deer at play
With its speckled fawn beside it.
Today I saw the dawn break
On serene, new-fallen snow;
My eyes saw strange reflections
My heart will forever know.

I've felt the mists of mountains
Penetrate both bone and soul.
I've walked expanses of low land
With the horizons as my goal.
I've tasted wild dewberries,
And I've sipped from restless streams.
How can I age or turn gray
When my heart is filled with dreams?

Dear Sir:

We thank you for the generous coverage preceeding and during PLUM FANCY's debut and Deborah's "homecoming" engagement in Sikeston. Ms. O'Leary's and Mr. Beardslee's interview was held in a most professional manner, yet they managed to create a "down-home" relaxed atmosphere within which we were all comfortable.

As you well know, in the entertainment business, publicity can make or break an engagement. Yours was most definitely an asset to us, and again, we thank you. PLUM FANCY wishes you a spirited and Lucky'77!!!

Kindest regards,
PLUM FANCY

Carter was never such an outsider

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — One of the more interesting aspects of the primary campaign for president was the unusually great support given Jimmy Carter by influential lawyers nationwide — and by the sizeable numbers in this group making major campaign contributions.

These donor lists were not primarily composed of small town attorneys doing family service to neighbors in their home communities. Many of these important contributors were attorneys for firms representing major American industrial corporations.

Even more important was the exceedingly strong support for Mr. Carter from the start by prestigious Atlanta law firms. Men from these filled critical roles in Carter's inner group when he had little more than an inner group. They came up with money, or raised money, at a time when Mr. Carter desperately had to have it — when the issue was whether his campaign could continue or whether it would founder for lack of funds.

Stuart Eisenstat, Mr. Carter's issues chairman, is connected with Powell, Goldstein, Frazer and Murphy, of Atlanta. According to the authoritative Martindale-Hubbell Law Directory for 1976, they are general counsel or counsel for — among others — Dow Chemical, Allis-Chalmers, Delta Air Lines, J.P. Stevens and Company, Grinnel, International Paper, International Minerals and Chemicals and for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, the mammoth New York stockbroker firm.

Powell, Goldstein, Frazer and Murphy also represent Mobil Oil, Teledyne, Southern Railway System, and John Hancock Mutual Life. Not to mention Thomson and McKinnon Auchincloss, Inc., another major stockbroker firm.

Charles H. Kirbo, reportedly closest man on earth to Jimmy Carter, is with King and Spalding, also of Atlanta. So is Jack H. Watson, Jr., kingpin in the Carter transition team. Also Griffin Bell, Mr. Carter's choice for Attorney General.

King and Spalding is general counsel, counsel or state counsel for General Motors, Prudential Insurance, Bessemer Securities Corporation, Southern Natural Resources, the big utilities firm, Cox Broadcasting, the Coca-Cola Company, West Point-Pepperel.

Adviser Philip Alston is with Alston, Mitler and Gaines, also of Atlanta, Georgia, which represents Aetna Life, American Oil, Chrysler, Continental Telephone and Otis Elevator.

Mr. Carter's major money raiser from the start, it's understood, was Robert J. Lipshutz, of Lipshutz, Zusmann and Sikes, of Atlanta. In the primary, the big donor list from that firm read like a roster of the firm's partners and associates. From a reading of successive Carter financial reports, it would seem that every time money was scarce, the firm's members came up with another round of giving.

Lipshutz, Zusmann and Sikes represent Lawyers Title Insurance, London Guarantee and Accident Company, Associated Grocers Cooperatives.

Already well publicized are the prestigious law firm associations of such advisers as Joseph A. Califano, Jr., of Williams (Edward Bennett Williams), Connolly and Califano, and Cyrus R. Vance, of the New York firm of Simpson, Thacher and Bartlett.

What this suggests is that President-elect Carter was not, even at the beginning, the outsider he was advertised. His connections were widespread in the Establishment — particularly in the money-legal establishment.

This suggests that he may not be as liberal in his thinking as was suggested by his campaign oratory or by his promises to so-called public interest groups.

Let's teach students to think

By Joseph D. Coffee, Jr.

The thinker or the tinker?

This may be a rather exaggerated set of alternatives, but it reflects the debate in higher education about how well our liberal arts colleges prepare students for the challenges they will find after graduation.

Vocationalism is in vogue and has put liberal arts program on the defensive. Moreover, within the liberal arts, the twin goals of flexibility and specialization have left students to shape their own curriculum without being exposed to each of the major academic areas — the humanities, social sciences and the natural sciences.

Student protests against fixed or distribution requirements in the 1960s lead many institutions to relax their degree requirements.

College faculty members have too frequently handed over to the students responsibility for fashioning their higher education — despite the fact that they as educators surely have a greater competence to say what makes an educated man or woman than an 18 year old freshman or sophomore.

They may believe that a liberal arts education is the best if not the only way to produce the desired result — a thinking individual. Yet in recent years they have felt powerless to assert their expertise in defining a fundamental education for those who would become liberally educated.

Of all of the problems we face in higher education, I think the one that demands greatest attention is what some people call the "smorgasbord" approach to curriculum. Pick your course and pray it works. We've lost ground, I'm afraid, when it comes to general education.

"Contemporary Civilization" courses started at Columbia University after World War I and similar programs were installed at other prestigious colleges during the 1920s. The end of World War II saw a resurgence of interest in general education and in 1945 Harvard published its famous "General Education in Free Society" which influenced many other institutions. Over the years, though, we have seen an erosion of general education as it yielded to the competing demands for early specialization in an increasingly technological society.

Today, we find some concerned observers looking at the deficiencies of the graduates of the past 20 years and searching for a new approach to provide that common intellectual experience which marks the educated person. This is not to suggest that we should go back to the 1920s or even the 1940s. Rather we must move forward to develop new programs for new demands, at least for the rest of the century.

What do students entering college want? Intellectual growth is seldom mentioned these days. More likely, the answer to the question will be "to get into medical school" or "I want to be a lawyer," or "I can't get a good job without a degree."

We shouldn't fault them. But we should recognize that they have been encouraged to think narrowly. Their parents, their teachers, and their counselors seem to have overlooked the basic need for a broader understanding of current society, understanding gained from a study of civilizations across the centuries.

This is the path to intellectual enrichment. Study in the liberal arts brings flexibility of thinking, a capacity to understand people — to see another's viewpoint, to understand why a person thinks the way he does. It is very important that we provide a better understanding of the people who live outside of the United States — through study of their literature, religions, economic backgrounds, politics; their several histories and aspirations. And, a very special focus ought to be on the non-Western world. These are some of the imperatives for the new undergraduate curriculum.

We feel that our college, founded 10 years ago, provides a model for this. Our "World Studies" program was designed at a time when general education and specific distribution of requirements were rapidly disappearing from favor, but we persevered. And the risk was worth it. Our program survives, and we can demonstrate that such an approach works. Our research, using the undergraduates Record Examinations as a measure of general knowledge, shows that our students make significant percentile gains over four years and this is based on comparison with national norms.

Once again, priorities in higher education are changing. The need to return to more structured requirements is again at the top of the agenda. Even Harvard is beginning to announce the result of soul-searching and planning for change. Does this mean a trend toward more requirements, team teaching and interdisciplinary education of the type our college has already developed?

Probably not. There is likely to be a lot of discussion, but change is not easy. Cost is one factor. Another is structure. Colleges will have to deal, among other things, with faculty reluctance to disrupt a life's work based on narrow disciplinary interests and their training as specialists.

Still, the traditional liberal arts dividend of a more rewarding personal life remains a strong positive force. Not only is human understanding the most important ingredient of education, it also is the important result of the education process. It's exciting and effective because people — students — deep down are more interested in people than anything else.

1. Most fatal falls in the home occur —
   A. On stairs
   B. On ladders
   C. At floor level
2. To remove a slice of toast stuck in a toaster, it is best to use:
   A. A sharp fork
   B. A dull knife
   C. Wooden stick or tongs

ANSWERS

1. C. Two-thirds of all fatal home falls occur at floor level, caused by some trivial thing—a toy on the floor, spilled liquids, turned-up rug edge, etc. Neatness and safety go hand-in-hand.
2. C. Metal utensils can damage the toaster heating element. Serious shock can result when such utensils contact the heating element. Always disconnect the toaster first, even when using a wooden stick or utensil.

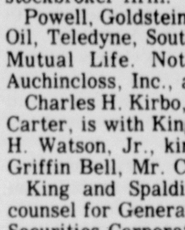
The basic weapon of 18th-century land warfare was the larger-caliber, smooth-bore, flintlock musket. It was awkward, slow and unpredictable in performance. The flintlock was usually silenced by rain or snow, a fact which contributed to the practice of non-engagement between armies in the winter months, The World Almanac recalls.



Dr. Lamb

Low pressure causes fainting

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Maybe you can help me with my problem. For the past several years every time I bend over or sit down on the ground or floor and try to get up, everything turns black and my head feels like it is blown out. I have fainted several times, and it seems to be getting worse.

Th doctor I went to gave it a name, which I can't remember, but said there wasn't anything one could do to help it except to get up slowly. Do you know something that would help?

DEAR READER — Your doctor probably called it postural or orthostatic hypotension, meaning low blood pressure with standing. There are many causes for fainting, and a good examination is important. Many medicines commonly prescribed can be the cause. This includes some tranquilizers.

Fainting of the type you describe occurs because there is not enough blood pumped to the brain. This is caused by too much blood going to the legs when you stand up so there is not enough left to pump uphill to your brain.

The distribution of the blood is controlled by reflexes that regulate the size of the arteries in your legs and elsewhere. These reflexes can become faulty because of disease in the arteries to the brain centers that control them.

Fainting can also occur because of poor muscle tone that permits too much blood to accumulate rapidly in your leg veins. Bed rest contributes to this problem. Any decrease in the total amount of blood in your body may be a factor. Then you can include pain from any source, even the response to the needle stick from blood-drawing or shots. Psychic influences are also important. Some people get faint from the smells of a hospital or the sight of blood. Low blood sugar and other chemical changes in the body can also be a factor. Fasting may make a person faint and cause the symptoms you describe because of loss of body water and chemical changes.

With this list of things that can cause faintness you see why a complete examination is important in establishing why a person tends to faint.

With recurrent episodes as you describe, it is more important to have a complete evaluation. You may be able to help yourself by wearing support hose or firm elastic stockings. The external pressure against the legs prevents the veins from overdistending when you first stand up. This helps to increase the return of blood to the heart which in turn augments the amount of blood pumped by the heart and the amount going to the brain.

The firmer the external support to the legs, the more protection you will get against fainting. There are special stockings that provide more pressure at the foot level and gradually decrease the pressure at levels nearer the hip. Try external support and see if it doesn't help you. You will still need a complete medical evaluation to nail down the real cause of your problem.

Fainting is a common experience, and it can be very important or of little consequence. To give you more complete information about it — I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-2, Fainting (Syncope). Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Just send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. ORIGINAL SUPERSTAR

Our vote for the best "Christmas - keeper" of the year goes to Boston College child psychologist Dr. Francis Kelly.

Santa Claus, he says, like the Easter bunny and the tooth fairy, is an important part of every child's ego development and ability to perceive reality.

It's tragic, he says, that more and more modern parents want to confront their children with reality all their lives. They are afraid that once a youngster learns there really isn't a Santa, he will be convinced there was an adult plot to deceive him.

Not true, says Kelly. When a child realizes Santa isn't a flesh and blood person, that youngster has learned to separate reality from fantasy and as a result feels older and wiser.

"As far as I'm concerned," he says, "Santa Claus is the original superstar."

We love you, Santa Claus.

COFFEE CRISIS

A cup of coffee is going to cost more. Folger, second largest U.S. coffee-maker, is raising its price 5 cents a pound -- the third increase in less than a month and the eighth this year. There's little or no relief in sight.

Brazil, the largest grower, won't produce a full crop for at least three years due to the severe damage by frost in 1975. Moreover, the rains and floods in Colombia, second biggest producer, destroyed about 20 per cent of its crop. Civil war in Angola has curbed its export.

So difficult is the situation that Cuba recently instituted rationing -- one ounce per person per week.

LAWMAKERS HAVE REACHED THE LIMIT

As we head toward a new four--term in the presidency and a new Congress, it becomes more clear each day how little the man in the White House and the Congress can do. Regardless of the philosophy of the men in power.

The president can propose. The Congress can vote laws. But recessions run their course. Competition forces prices down or it doesn't. Men and women look to the future with hope, start new businesses, invest or expand--or they don't.

If the president's pronouncements and the lawmakers' edicts suit the mood or the morality of the times, then men and women move slowly and painfully into a new era in race relations. But if the mood of the times is not identical with the new laws, the law fails, as with Prohibition. Men find loopholes, as in the payment of taxes--all quite legally--or in the evasion of the spirit of election laws.

The best a president and a Congress can do then is to sense the mood of the nation, and make laws to fit it that are consistent with their own ideals. When they're right, as were the men who developed the white-- or yellow--stripes down the center of highways to prevent accidents, they hit the jackpot. Otherwise, as happened in the most recent period of price and wage controls, they so distort the picture, in this case the economic picture, that grave injuries are inflicted on many. Recovery becomes slow and painful.

There are observers who suggest, not wholly in jest, that it might be better for us all if Congress were to take a two-year holiday, give us time to digest and adjust somewhat to the mass of laws already on the books.

Already, there are so many laws, of such complication, it is impossible, we suspect, for any human being to go through a day without breaking several. We have heard a public official brag as much.

Visitors to our country, brought here under President Truman's Point Four program, came away with the thought that American industrial superiority lay not in superior equipment or in our inventiveness, or even in our abundance of resources, but rather that it came about because of something they could only define as the American spirit, the relationship of worker and boss, of worker and worker, and the goals set by each worker within himself.

These are not things set by presidential decrees or congressional laws.

In fact, we suspect that the more government looks over our shoulder with laws which spell out what we must do down to the smallest details of daily life, the more of our funds it takes, the more it details how and what the farmers and manufacturers shall produce, or creates laws which determine who shall work, the more it tends to destroy that spirit which is our glory and salvation.

Certainly we need laws to protect the weak from the strong, to aid the sick and the helpless, to discourage crime, to assist education and promote the general welfare.

But there's a limit. And we believe that limit has been reached.

THE GREAT LEVELER

As far back as the most ancient of recorded days there has been food on the earth.

Man's first foods were limited until he learned to cultivate crops as an added diet to his red meat foods. Down through the years, he has elaborated on farming until the world is now covered with food in great variety.

Men have fought or starved over it on half the pages of history. Millions have died of famine while millions have had plenty.

Food is a political tool. Mobs have rioted over it, and kings have been bribed by food and so have the poor. Man has learned well how to grow and prepare food. It is distributing it that presents the problems.

According to history it is usually the politicians who do the distributing. The process has gained little in the thousands of years.

From the biblical times of Joseph, son of Jacob, when he interpreted Pharoah's dream, he took over the government of Egypt, establishing the ever-normal granary which looked suspiciously like our farm program of the thirties.

Today, man has improved the quality and quantity of what the world eats. Wheat, milo grains and corn have been vastly improved; cattle have been fattened; new ways of shipping have been adopted. Rice growers in Louisiana show the world how to almost double the size of a rice crop, while the midwest now claims to being the soybean center of the universe.

What we are getting at is this: U.S. production and distribution are about to pass into the hands of a new secretary of agriculture. Will he know the score? Will he know when to let the farmers alone and when to give them a helping hand?

We hope the new man, whoever he is, will come to the major farm areas of the U.S. and listen to our farm leaders before he makes new decisions.

The experts predict that this coming year will see a new world record for the United States, since it will outstrip all previous totals in food and commodity production. As we see it, this is the major factor in keeping our economy from being bumpier than it well could be while politicians talk and talk.

PUT BIG GOVERNMENT ON A DIET!

Now that the elections are over, the voters and all taxpayers still have one thing in common--Uncle Sam and his cousins (state and local governments) have become tax gluttons. To see what gluttons they are, just take a good look at the deducts out of your paycheck and your property tax bill you received a few days ago.

But that's only the beginning. Uncle Sam and his cousins are still hungry. They now eat further into your income with hundreds of direct taxes, including those on automobiles, gasoline, entertainment, food, and clothing. By the time they've finished this meal, they've consumed one-third or more of your earnings.

Yet Uncle Sam and his cousins are still not satisfied. But they have a problem. If they keep eating at the taxpayers' pockets openly, they may revolt. So they turn to hiding their excesses. After directly taxing so many of your hard-earned dollars, Uncle Sam and his cousins now resort to hidden taxes--business regulations, business taxes, and inflation.

Most persons would never think of these as hidden taxes, but they all eat into your cash just as if you had been taxed directly.

Here's how these hidden taxes affect your pay: When businesses are hit with regulations or taxes, their costs increase. The businesses have no choice-they must increase prices to pay the higher costs. When the consumer buys a product or service, the hidden taxes are already included in the price.

Only naive or dishonest men advocate shifting the tax burden to businesses in order to reduce individual taxes, because when businesses are taxed more, consumers will always pay more.

Inflation is a hidden tax increase which is caused by the federal government. When Congress votes to spend money that isn't there, a deficit exists. This eventually causes an increase in the money supply which pushes up demand for goods and services and causes prices to rise. What happens, in effect, is that the consumer pays higher prices as a direct result of federal deficits.

Remember this: You will pay one way or another for every government program--either through direct taxes that you can see, or through hidden taxes that you cannot.

Nearly half of your earnings are now taken either by direct or hidden taxes. And economists estimate that if taxes continue to rise at present rates, you will see Uncle Sam and his cousins take 54 cents of every hard-earned dollar by 1985. This is not a wild estimate. Taxpayers in many socialists countries already pay 60 per cent or more of their incomes to their governments.

The problem is obvious: Uncle Sam and his cousins have become too fat, too bossy, and too wasteful to be allowed to continue their tax gluttony. The answer: Put Big Government on a diet; TRIM away the bureaucratic blubber, and reduce the heavy load of taxation.

Lastly, never forget that since you are paying the tax bills, you are the boss. And don't ever let your elected representatives forget it!

WHY PUERTO RICO?

WASHINGTON— Everyone was amazed when President Ford announced in Vail, Colo., that he wanted to make Puerto Rico the 51st state. Washington could not figure out why the President chose to announce it just before he was leaving office.

For one thing, no one in the capital, much less Puerto Rico, knew anything about it. There hasn't been too much enthusiasm in Puerto Rico for becoming a state mainly because it would mean the Puerto Ricans would have to pay federal income taxes. Congress is not too thrilled about making Puerto Rico a state because it would mean pouring millions of dollars into the island that they were planning to give to New York City to help the Puerto Ricans there.

So the big question is what was on President Ford's mind? I think I can tell you: Mr. Ford misspoke. What he intended to propose was to make Poland the 51st state, but he said Puerto Rico by mistake.

Ever since his debate with Jimmy Carter, Mr. Ford has given great thought to Poland. In the debate he announced that the Polish people were not under the domination of the Soviet Union. Many people, particularly in the American Polish community, took umbrage with this statement, and some said it was Ford's biggest gaffe in the campaigns.

This rankled Mr. Ford and he decided he would prove to the American people that he was right and they were wrong about Poland's position in world affairs.

He didn't know how to dramatize it though. Had he been re-elected he planned to ask Poland to join NATO. But since he lost he had to think of something else.

Last week, while he was skiing at Vail, he took a bad spill and as he tumbled down the hill he got a brainstorm. Why not make Poland the 51st state? This would show everyone he hadn't goofed on TV and that he was serious about his warm feelings toward the Polish people. It would make sense to have an American state right on the Soviet border, and would screw up the Warsaw Pact something fierce.

As soon as the President returned to his chalet he told his wife, "Betty, the last act I'm going to do as President is to make Poland the 51st state."

"That's nice," Mrs. Ford said. "Have you told anybody?"

"Nope. It's going to be my surprise. I'm going to go out now and announce it to the press."

Duel Over Detente: Labor Chiefs in Bitter Battle With Carter's Foreign Policy Strategists

WASHINGTON – Labor's powerful central high command, which hasn't forgotten the Stalin-Hitler detente, has been moving swiftly to birdcage Jimmy Carter's doves.

Since labor chief George Meany is the lone world figure inflexibly opposed to collaboration with either the Soviets or Peking China or any Red counterparts thereof, many in the President-elect's circle believe the AFL-CIO leader may narrow their freedom of world action. So they're trying to isolate the 82-year-old chief of union chiefs.

There isn't the slightest doubt of a sharp and angry difference of opinion between Gov. Carter's foreign policy strategists and Meany on global policy and treatment of Moscow and Peking.

The Meany "crowd" is even-handed. It believes that both the Soviets and the People's Republic of China are today's counterparts of Hitler's Third Reich.

Significant to insiders, for example, is an attack on Peking hurled some weeks ago by Sol (Chick) Chaikin, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. He is also a national AFL-CIO vice president. Why this didn't get countrywide coverage is a mystery. Chaikin, is a formal speech on Nov. 30, demanded a reversal of the American policy of greater U.S.-Sino contact which, he said, was developing at the expense of the Republic of China on Taiwan.

Chaikin's address called for greater American support and protection of "Taiwan status." This influential labor chief warned that failure to back the Paipei regime would encourage Communist China to declare war on the island republic's 16 million people.

For generations the ladies' garment workers' union has led in the molding and the clarification of AFL and then AFL-CIO foreign policy. The significance of Chick Chaikin's talk can been seen in later developments. When Meany's surrogate, AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer Lane Kirkland conferred with Jimmy Carter in Georgia for two hours on Dec. 17, the labor official attempted to talk the President-elect out of appointing Ted Sorensen CIA director.

This consistent anti-Communist position of the national AFL-CIO Executive Council also accounts for the opposition of most of its leading members to the appointment of Harold Brown as Secretary of Defense. Coupled with Secretary of State-designate Cyrus Vance, the labor chiefs believe Gov. Carter has a pair of "turtle doves" – whose "voices" will be heard above all others during White House discussions of the Soviets, Red China and detente.

Few realize how crucial American foreign policy is to Meany, Kirkland and other strong figures on the Executive Council. For example, two world labor networks, the Brussels-based, non-Communist International Confederation of Free Trade Unions (ICFTU) and the Prague-headquartered, KGB-controlled World Federation of Trade Unions have called a global strike against the Republic of South Africa for the week of Jan. 17. The ICFTU cabled Meany asking for American labor support. On Dec. 21 Meany asked his foreign affairs director, Ernie Lee, to dispatch a copy of his reply to the ICFTU to virtually all national union presidents.

This retort to the ICFTU's call for joint action against South Africa was blunt. Meany said, in effect, that when world labor organizations end their selective crusades and hit out at all totalitarian nations, American labor would work with them. But not if they continue to cooperate with Soviet-controlled world labor federations and ignore Communist totalitarianism.

Meany's unshakeable anti-Communism is one of many reasons behind the efforts of Gov. Carter's innermost strategists to isolate the ex-"elder statesman." But it is a most potent reason. It was Meany who signalled the longshoremen's 1975 boycott of grain shipments to the Soviets. And he can do it again.

Meany's and Kirkland's dedication to Israel is as certain as sunrise. If necessary the AFL-CIO maritime trades department, led by Paul Hall, would boycott freighters and tankers bound for all Arab lands in a crunch such as the Yom Kippur war of 1973.

Mr. Carter's advisers believe such labor power would hem them in and permit little freedom of action in the most critical foreign policy arenas.

In the recent past all U.S. Presidents have worked closely with the AFL-CIO – and the AFFL before that. When Dick Nixon and Henry Kissinger were developing even the most secret foreign policies, Meany and his foreign affairs officials would be called to the White House and State Department for briefings and for their opinions. There were bitter discussions over detente.

Certainly the CIA has been the beneficiary of considerable information gathered by labor leaders. This is natural. After all, many foreign governments are, or until recently have been, labor parties actually controlled by central union federations. Britain, for example, West Germany, the Scandinavian countries, Portugal, Austria and the Lowlands, etc.

But now, the labor leaders just don't believe they can work as closely with a Ted Sorensen or a Harold Brown as they did in the past with an old labor hand such as Bill Colby or James Schlesinger or even Nelson Rockefeller's Henry Kissinger.

There you have a truly basic, critical difference. That hot gossip of personal pique comes mostly with cold hors d'oeuvres on the cocktail reception circuit.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Church Chief's Questionable Deals

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The million members of the Assemblies of God believe in the old-time religion, with stern emphasis on Biblical integrity. Most are solid, middle class people who, in a corrupt and changing society, have held stubbornly to their fundamentalist faith.

But a few weeks ago, a church official sent us a signed statement supported by several prominent laymen. It urged us to investigate the financial dealings of their shepherd, the charismatic Thomas Zimmerman. He not only is general superintendent of the Assmeblies of God but head of the 50-million-member World Pentecostal Conference.

We can now report that the suspicions of his dissident followers have some basis. The Reverend Zimmerman, a dynamic man of 64, has kept hundreds of thousands of dollars of church funds in a bank that he heads.

At the same time, he has joined other church leaders in purchasing 100 acres of land across from a proposed shopping center, which his bank helped to finance. Three church leaders are acquiring the 100 acres for about $155,000. When the center is completed, their land may be worth up to $800,000.

Zimmerman told us at first that he had no interest in the shopping center. Yet the contract to buy the 100 acres across from the mall is signed by Zimmerman and two of his church associates, Donald Shelton and Milton McCorcle.

The suave Shelton, who heads the church's stewardship department, has also purchased more than $600,000 worth of acreage for the shopping center on behalf of the developers.

The land records show that these purchases were financed by Zimmerman's bank, the Empire Bank of Springfield, Mo. Both the shopping mall and the church headquarters are also located in Springfield.

Zimmerman has held a stockholder's interest in the bank as high as $160,000. He now owns $110,000 worth of Empire stock, according to the latest available records. He is chairman of the board and draws $150 every time he attends a board meeting.

Four other top church officials are listed as major stockholders in the bank, with holdings that range from $60,000 to $160,000. For example, the president of the church-owned Evangel College, Robert Spence, is a stockholder. Shelton also owns $60,000 worth of stock, although he was not a shareholder at the time of his land acquisition.

The financial conflicts, we found, disturbed Andrew Melli, the respected vice president of Carnation International, who is also a financial committeeman for the Assemblies of God. He questioned the heavy church deposits in Zimmerman's bank.

The reverend quickly moved some of the funds to other banks. But we have learned that $140,000 in church trust funds were still deposited in the Empire Bank as of December 30. The bank, of course, earns money on its deposits.

Both Zimmerman and Shelton spoke with us at length. They stoutly defended themselves and one another. They insisted that not one penny of the church's money had gone into the land deals and that audits had shown no mismanagement of their stewardship of the church's millions.

Shelton said he had arranged for the developers of the shopping center to buy the land because they had promised a gift to the church and because it gave him an "inside track" on his own land deal. Zimmerman swore that he had nothing to do with the loans that financed the purchases.

Yet land records reveal two promissory notes, totaling $600,540, which were executed on Dec. 13, 1973, by the developers to the bank. The notes are attached to documents showing that Shelton was instrumental in assembling the land for the proposed shopping center. All the deals were consummated at a time that Shelton's boss, the Reverend Zimmerman, was the active chairman of the bank.

Sources familiar with the development complained to us that the church leaders misled them. Real estate sources in Springfield, for example, said that Shelton gave them the impression he was arranging the land purchases on behalf of the church.

The former chief executive of the Empire Bank, Estyl Sparkman, now of Fort Smith, Ark., also told us Zimmerman had falsely assured him that he had no interest whatsoever in the shopping center development.

Zimmerman told us he has no recollection of the conversation. "My life is in the hands of the Lord," he said.

Footnote: Since its initial financing of the shopping center project, Empire Bank has been inactive in the deal. Meanwhile, we have learned that the Internal Revenue Service is quietly looking into the finances of Zimmerman and Shelton, who categorically deny any wrongdoing.

Washington Whirl: Stanley Nehmer, formerly the Ford administration's top expert on shoe tariffs, is now wearing the shoe on the other foot. He has turned up as lobbyist for the shoe industry he recently helped to regulate.

— The Freedom of Information Act was intended to let more sunshine into the dark recesses of the government. But Rep. B.F. Sisk (D.-Calif.) used it in an attempt to find out who is opposing his pet irrigation project. Under the act, he demanded the correspondence of members of Congress on the controversial $2 billion Westlands Irrigation Project.

— It has leaked out belatedly that the Army subsidized expenses for military men and their dependents to attend a religious festival in Seoul, Korea, back in 1974. An Army spokesman acknowledged that $2,000 was allocated to pay the expenses of military people at the festival, in violation of Defense Department regulations.

ORIGINAL SUPERSTAR

Our vote for the best "Christmas - keeper" of the year goes to Boston College child psychologist Dr. Francis Kelly.

Santa Claus, he says, like the Easter bunny and the tooth fairy, is an important part of every child's ego development and ability to perceive reality.

It's tragic, he says, that more and more modern parents want to confront their children with reality all their lives. They are afraid that once a youngster learns there really isn't a Santa, he will be convinced there was an adult plot to deceive him.

Not true, says Kelly. When a child realizes Santa isn't a flesh and blood person, that youngster has learned to separate reality from fantasy and as a result feels older and wiser.

"As far as I'm concerned," he says, "Santa Claus is the original superstar."

We love you, Santa Claus.

COFFEE CRISIS

A cup of coffee is going to cost more. Folger, second largest U.S. coffee-maker, is raising its price 5 cents a pound -- the third increase in less than a month and the eighth this year. There's little or no relief in sight.

Brazil, the largest grower, won't produce a full crop for at least three years due to the severe damage by frost in 1975. Moreover, the rains and floods in Colombia, second biggest producer, destroyed about 20 per cent of its crop. Civil war in Angola has curbed its export.

So difficult is the situation that Cuba recently instituted rationing -- one ounce per person per week.

LAWMAKERS HAVE REACHED THE LIMIT

As we head toward a new four--term in the presidency and a new Congress, it becomes more clear each day how little the man in the White House and the Congress can do. Regardless of the philosophy of the men in power.

The president can propose. The Congress can vote laws. But recessions run their course. Competition forces prices down or it doesn't. Men and women look to the future with hope, start new businesses, invest or expand--or they don't.

If the president's pronouncements and the lawmakers' edicts suit the mood or the morality of the times, then men and women move slowly and painfully into a new era in race relations. But if the mood of the times is not identicial with the new laws, the law fails, as with Prohibition. Men find loopholes, as in the payment of taxes--all quite legally--or in the evasion of the spirit of election laws.

The best a president and a Congress can do then is to sense the mood of the nation, and make laws to fit it that are consistent with their own ideals. When they're right, as were the men who developed the white--or yellow--stripes down the center of highways to prevent accidents, they hit the jackpot. Otherwise, as happened in the most recent period of price and wage controls, they so distort the picture, in this case the economic picture, that grave injuries are inflicted on many. Recovery becomes slow and painful.

There are observers who suggest, not wholly in jest, that it might be better for us all if Congress were to take a two-year holiday, give us time to digest and adjust somewhat to the mass of laws already on the books.

Already, there are so many laws, of such complication, it is impossible, we suspect, for any human being to go through a day without breaking several. We have heard a public official brag as much.

Visitors to our country, brought here under President Truman's Point Four program, came away with the thought that American industrial superiority lay not in superior equipment or in our inventiveness, or even in our abundance of resources, but rather that it came about because of something they could only define as the American spirit, the relationship of worker and boss, of worker and worker, and the goals set by each worker within himself.

These are not things set by presidential decrees or congressional laws.

In fact, we suspect that the more government looks over our shoulder with laws which spell out what we must do down to the smallest details of daily life, the more of our funds it takes, the more it details how and what the farmers and manufacturers shall produce, or creates laws which determine who shall work, the more it tends to destroy that spirit which is our glory and salvation.

Certainly we need laws to protect the weak from the strong, to aid the sick and the helpless, to discourage crime, to assist education and promote the general welfare.

But there's a limit. And we believe that limit has been reached.

XXX

THE GREAT LEVELER

As far back as the most ancient of recorded days there has been food on the earth.

Man's first foods were limited until he learned to cultivate crops as an added diet to his red meat foods. Down through the years, he has elaborated on farming until the world is now covered with food in great variety.

Men have fought or starved over it on half the pages of history. Millions have died of famine while millions have had plenty.

Food is a political tool. Mobs have rioted over it, and kings have been bribed by food and so have the poor. Man has learned well how to grow and prepare food. It is distributing it that presents the problems.

According to history it is usually the politicians who do the distributing. The process has gained little in the thousands of years.

From the biblical times of Joseph, son of Jacob, when he interpreted Pharoah's dream, he took over the government of Egypt, establishing the ever-normal granary which looked suspiciously like our farm program of the thirties.

Today, man has improved the quality and quantity of what the world eats. Wheat, milo grains and corn have been vastly improved; cattle have been fattened; new ways of shipping have been adopted. Rice growers in Louisiana show the world how to almost double the size of a rice crop, while the midwest now claims to being the soybean center of the universe.

What we are getting at is this: U.S. production and distribution are about to pass into the hands of a new secretary of agriculture. Will he know the score? Will he know when to let the farmers alone and when to give them a helping hand?

We hope the new man, whoever he is, will come to the major farm areas of the U.S. and listen to our farm leaders before he makes new decisions.

The experts predict that this coming year will see a new world record for the United States, since it will outstrip all previous totals in food and commodity production. As we see it, this is the major factor in keeping our economy from being bumpier than it well could be while politicians talk and talk.

XXX

PUT BIG GOVERNMENT ON A DIET!

Now that the elections are over, the voters and all taxpayers still have one thing in common--Uncle Sam and his cousins (state and local governments) have become tax gluttons. To see what gluttons they are, just take a good look at the deducts out of your paycheck and your property tax bill you received a few days ago.

But that's only the beginning. Uncle Sam and his cousins are still hungry. They now eat further into your income with hundreds of direct taxes, including those on automobiles, gasoline, entertainment, food, and clothing. By the time they've finished this meal, they've consumed one-third or more of your earnings.

Yet Uncle Sam and his cousins are still not satisfied. But they have a problem. If they keep eating at the taxpayers' pockets openly, they may revolt. So they turn to hiding their excesses. After directly taxing so many of your hard-earned dollars, Uncle Sam and his cousins now resort to hidden taxes--business regulations, business taxes, and inflation.

Most persons would never think of these as hidden taxes, but they all eat into your cash just as if you had been taxed directly.

Here's how these hidden taxes affect your pay: When businesses are hit with regulations or taxes, their costs increase. The businesses have no choice-they must increase prices to pay the higher costs. When the consumer buys a product or service, the hidden taxes are already included in the price.

Only naive or dishonest men advocate shifting the tax burden to businesses in order to reduce individual taxes, because when businesses are taxed more, consumers will always pay more.

Inflation is a hidden tax increase which is caused by the federal government. When Congress votes to spend money that isn't there, a deficit exists. This eventually causes an increase in the money supply which pushes up demand for goods and services and causes prices to rise. What happens, in effect, is that the consumer pays higher prices as a direct result of federal deficits.

Remember this: You will pay one way or another for every government program--either through direct taxes that you can see, or through hidden taxes that you cannot.

Nearly half of your earnings are now taken either by direct or hidden taxes. And economists estimate that if taxes continue to rise at present rates, you will see Uncle Sam and his cousins take 54 cents of every hard-earned dollar by 1985. This is not a wild estimate. Taxpayers in many socialists countries already pay 60 per cent or more of their incomes to their governments.

The problem is obvious: Uncle Sam and his cousins have become too fat, too bossy, and too wasteful to be allowed to continue their tax gluttony. The answer: Put Big Government on a diet; TRIM away the bureaucratic blubber, and reduce the heavy load of taxation.

Lastly, never forget that since you are paying the tax bills, you are the boss. And don't ever let your elected representatives forget it!

WHY PUERTO RICO?

WASHINGTON— Everyone was amazed when President Ford announced in Vail, Colo., that he wanted to make Puerto Rico the 51st state. Washington could not figure out why the President chose to announce it just before he was leaving office.

For one thing, no one in the capital, much less Puerto Rico, knew anything about it. There hasn't been too much enthusiasm in Puerto Rico for becoming a state mainly because it would mean the Puerto Ricans would have to pay federal income taxes. Congress is not too thrilled about making Puerto Rico a state because it would mean pouring millions of dollars into the island that they were planning to give to New York City to help the Puerto Ricans there.

So the big question is what was on President Ford's mind? I think I can tell you: Mr. Ford misspoke. What he intended to propose was to make Poland the 51st state, but he said Puerto Rico by mistake.

Ever since his debate with Jimmy Carter, Mr. Ford has given great thought to Poland. In the debate he announced that the Polish people were not under the domination of the Soviet Union. Many people, particularly in the American Polish community, took umbrage with this statement, and some said it was Ford's biggest gaffe in the campaigns.

This rankled Mr. Ford and he decided he would prove to the American people that he was right and they were wrong about Poland's position in world affairs.

He didn't know how to dramatize it though. Had he been re-elected he planned to ask Poland to join NATO. But since he lost he had to think of something else.

Last week, while he was skiing at Vail, he took a bad spill and as he tumbled down the hill he got a brainstorm. Why not make Poland the 51st state? This would show everyone he hadn't goofed on TV and that he was serious about his warm feelings toward the Polish people. It would make sense to have an American state right on the Soviet border, and would screw up the Warsaw Pact something fierce.

As soon as the President returned to his chalet he told his wife, "Betty, the last act I'm going to do as President is to make Poland the 51st state."

"That's nice," Mrs. Ford said. "Have you told anybody?"

"Nope. It's going to be my surprise. I'm going to go out now and announce it to the press."

"Don't slip," Mrs. Ford said. "It's awfully icy on the steps."

The President went outside where the press stood frozen, waiting for any tidbit of news.

But a few weeks ago, a church official sent us a signed statement supported by several prominent laymen. It urged us to investigate the financial dealings of their shepherd, the charismatic Thomas Zimmerman. He not only is general superintendent of the Assmeblies of God but head of the 50-million-member World Pentecostal Conference.

We can now report that the suspicions of his dissident followers have some basis. The Reverend Zimmerman, a dynamic man of 64, has kept hundreds of thousands of dollars of church funds in a bank that he heads.

At the same time, he has joined other church leaders in purchasing 100 acres of land across from a proposed shopping center, which his bank helped to finance. Three church leaders are acquiring the 100 acres for about $155,000. When the center is completed, their land may be worth up to $800,000.

Zimmerman told us at first that he had no interest in the shopping center. Yet the contract to buy the 100 acres across from the mall is signed by Zimmerman and two of his church associates, Donald Shelton and Milton McCorcle.

The suave Shelton, who heads the church's stewardship department, has also purchased more than $600,000 worth of acreage for the shopping center on behalf of the developers.

The land records show that these purchases were financed by Zimmerman's bank, the Empire Bank of Springfield, Mo. Both the shopping mall and the church headquarters are also located in Springfield.

Zimmerman has held a stockholder's interest in the bank as high as $160,000. He now owns $110,000 worth of Empire stock, according to the latest available records. He is chairman of the board and draws $150 every time he attends a board meeting.

Four other top church officials are listed as major stockholders in the bank, with holdings that range from $80,000 to $160,000. For example, the president of the church-owned Evangel College, Robert Spence, is a stockholder. Shelton also owns $80,000 worth of stock, although he was not a shareholder at the time of his land acquisition.

The financial conflicts, we found, disturbed Andrew Melli, the respected vice president of Carnation International, who is also a financial committeeman for the Assemblies of God. He questioned the heavy church deposits in Zimmerman's bank.

The reverend quickly moved some of the funds to other banks. But we have learned that $140,000 in church trust funds were still deposited in the Empire Bank as of December 30. The bank, of course, earns money on its deposits.

Both Zimmerman and Shelton spoke with us at length. They stoutly defended themselves and one another. They insisted that not one penny of the church's money had gone into the land deals and that audits had shown no mismanagement of their stewardship of the church's millions.

Shelton said he had arranged for the developers of the shopping center to buy the land because they had promised a gift to the church and because it gave him an "inside track" on his own land deal. Zimmerman swore that he had nothing to do with the loans that financed the purchases.

Yet land records reveal two promissory notes, totaling $688,540, which were executed on Dec. 13, 1973, by the developers to the bank. The notes are attached to documents showing that Shelton was instrumental in assembling the land for the proposed shopping center. All the deals were consummated at a time that Shelton's boss, the Reverend Zimmerman, was the active chairman of the bank.

Sources familiar with the development complained to us that the church leaders misled them. Real estate sources in Springfield, for example, said that Shelton gave them the impression he was arranging the land purchases on behalf of the church.

The former chief executive of the Empire Bank, Estyl Sparkman, now of Fort Smith, Ark., also told us Zimmerman had falsely assured him that he had no interest whatsoever in the shopping center development.

Zimmerman told us he has no recollection of the conversation. "My life is in the hands of the Lord," he said.

Footnote: Since its initial financing of the shopping center project, Empire Bank has been inactive in the deal. Meanwhile, we have learned that the Internal Revenue Service is quietly looking into the finances of Zimmerman and Shelton, who categorically deny any wrongdoing.

Washington Whirl: Stanley Nehmer, formerly the Ford administration's top expert on shoe tariffs, is now wearing the shoe on the other foot. He has turned up as lobbyist for the shoe industry he recently helped to regulate.

— The Freedom of Information Act was intended to let more sunshine into the dark recesses of the government. But Rep. B.F. Sisk (D.-Calif.) used it in an attempt to find out who is opposing his pet irrigation project. Under the act, he demanded the correspondence of members of Congress on the controversial $2 billion Westlands Irrigation Project.

— It has leaked out belatedly that the Army subsidized expenses for military men and their dependents to attend a religious festival in Seoul, Korea, back in 1974. An Army spokesman acknowledged that $2,000 was allocated to pay the expenses of military people at the festival, in violation of Defense Department regulations.

U.S. poultry sales up in Middle East

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of U.S. poultry to the oil-rich Middle East are thriving, along with exports of live hogs and cattle, onions, prunes and tobacco to some other overseas markets, the Agriculture Department said today.

Wheat, soybeans, corn and cotton are the biggest items sold by American farmers overseas, but the other products are important and are making rapid gains.

For example, frozen poultry shipments to the Middle East may total around $40 million this year and could climb to $100 million in 1977, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said in a weekly report.

Recent large sales, estimated at about $30 million, have been made to Iraq. Other big U.S. poultry buyers include Iran, Saudi Arabia, Egypt and the United Arab Emirates, the report said.

John B. Parker Jr., an analyst in USDA's Economic Research Service, said that "consumer demand for poultry meat is rapidly increasing" in the Middle East and that the United States is overtaking France as the leading supplier of broiler chicken and other poultry.

Total U.S. farm exports to all countries are about $22 billion this year, with grain alone accounting for more than half.

Another article in the agency's report said that sales of live U.S. breeding hogs to Italy set a record this year when 460 head were delivered last July.

Those were followed with 408 more hogs sold to Italy in August. The total of 868 breeding swine compared with only 12 sold to Italy in 1975 and 331 in 1974. officials said. No dollar value was reported.

Italian farmers have been reluctant to buy U.S. swine breeds in the past, but they are finding that "consumers are becoming accustomed to leaner pork" and that American breeding stock produces the kind of pigs needed to supply the demand.

The Soviet Union, which causes world markets to vibrate each time it buys foreign grain, also has been buying U.S. cattle to help improve its herds. Italy also has been buying cattle for feedlots.

Some 260 head of cattle were shipped in late November to the Soviet Union, including beef and dairy breeds.

The weekly report, "Foreign Agriculture," also said Syria has become a steady customer of U.S. tobacco, both as unmanufactured leaf and as cigarettes.

Tobacco leaf sales to Syria totaled about $6.4 million in 1975 and are expected to exceed that this year, partly because Syria was eligible to get up to $4.8 million worth under a Food for Peace credit arrangement in addition to much larger commercial purchases.

Onion exports, described as usually negligible, have soared this year because of sales to Europe where drought reduced the crop, the report said. In September some 11,200 metric tons were shipped to European buyers, followed by 21,000 tons in October.

The surge in onion exports, up five-fold from a year ago, will not mean a shortgage for American consumers. Officials said this year's crop of onions was 766,000 tons, up 20 per cent from 1975. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

Finally, the department's report said that exports of dried California prunes were a record of 53,246 metric tons in 1975-76, up from the previous season's 35,221 tons and the earlier record of 48,343 tons two years ago.

France bought 12,982 tons of the prunes, three to six times its usual purchases. The Scandinavian countries, Germany and Britain also were large buyers, the report said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is seeking public comment on proposals to revise regulations affecting the grazing of livestock on public land administered by the U.S. Forest Service.

Officials said the revisions are planned to make regulations "consistent with the requirements" of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act passed by Congress last year (1976).

Categories included in the proposal relate to authority and definition in the grazing program; management of the range environment; methods of issuing and reissuing grazing permits; funds for improving rangeland; and grazing advisory boards.

The department said the proposal does not cover grazing fees charged livestock producers who use the land or the management of wild horses and burros. Those will be included in separate proposals, officials said.

Comments can be sent to the Director of Range Management, Forest Service, USDA, P.O. Box 2417, Washington, D.C. 20013 by Jan. 28.

Optimist discuss 'RAILS' performance at the market during the New Year

By CROCKETT SCOTT

Stock market optimists point to the high performance of Standard & Poor's rail equties in recent weeks as signaling the long hoped-for upsurge of the New Year.

And, if performance by the rail group is truly significant as some professional traders believe, then, indeed, there is sound reasoning for faith that an upturn is in the works.

Standard & Poor's rail group average moved to a six-year ascendancy, note chartists, after treading water during the third quasrter.

In part, this may have resulted from a rate increase last October, various segments of the investment banking fraternity theorize. And, they add that rail approval of a "catch-up" rate increase of four per cent, which the interstate Commerce Commission approved the other day, may have contributed to strength in rail equities.

If this is part of aphilosophy, "as the rails go, so goes the nation," then "so be it," concede rail specialists in Memphis and St. Louis.

They remind that the rails are basic to the nation's economy and that, as a great many economists concur, the rails will benefit greatly in earnings from an expected upturn in capital outlay this year and next for new plants and equipment.

The construction and machine tool purchases naturally stimulate rail transportation, remind Securities and Exchange Commission registered rail analysts. And 1977, particularly in a year of a new administration inclined to move the economy at a faster pace, should be a good year for the capital goods industry.

Further, note students of the capital goods, rail and construction industries, new home starts as well as industrial construction should be in a rising cycle after so long in the doldrums.

The rails alse benefit from coal shipments, it is emphasized; and coal accumulation is expected to be faster during this first half of the new year, in anticipation of labor trouble during the second half.

Machine tools and construction might be areas for investment consideration, according to some analysts. The rails? Most suggest a thorough scrutiny of the high and low ground, with a word of caution that the future in numerous stances may already have been discounted.

A common stock which Dr. Ira U. Cobleigh, an economist who writes frequently for the Market Chronicle, likes, is Sparton Corp.

This company, a pioneer in electric automobile horns, also is engaged in the fields of electronics, automation and energy.

Sparton Corp. came into existence in 1900 as Sparks-Worthington Co., producer of components for agricultural implements. In 1911, it received patent rights for the electric horn for autos.

Even today, it makes 25,000 auto horns a day.

Dr. Cobleigh points out that Sparton's revenues exceed $62 million annually from its sixteen plants, and that one out of every eleven persons on its payroll is an engineer.

Roughly 62 per cent of total sales comes from electronics, and most of this area comes from sonobuoy research. The sonobuoy is desribed as an underwater acoustical device for tracking and monitoring. Specifically, the sonobuoy can pinpoint an enemy submarine and trace its course.

The firm's principal customer in this area is the U. S. Navy.

Sparton Corp. trades around $11 per share, with an indicated dividend of 40 cents. Book value was $14.37 as of Sept. 30, 1976, according to Dr. Cobleigh.

On sales of $62,787,000 for fiscal 1976, net income was $3,088,000, equivalent to $1.70 per common share.

Unemployment, diminished reate of inflation should moderate demands

NEW YORK — Although labor contracts covering some eight million workers come up for negotiation this year, the diminished reate of inflation and continued high unemployment should moderate union demands. As a result, reports the January issue of Dun's Review, most experts are cautiously optimistic about a generally peaceful year for business and labor.

Economists queried by the business magazine generally expect most contracts, notably in steel and coal, to be settled within last year's range of 7-8 per cent, with the biggest issue being job security.

Indeed, since the first big contract with national visibility and impact -- steel -- does not expire until July, the magazine says, "Business will get through the early part of the year without the psychologically unsettling prospect of a large, trend-setting settlement in a key industry."

On the legislative front, however, the unions are expected to take a tough line. "Labor was a major factor in Jimmy Carter's close victory and it will demand a payoff in the form of measures it has long espoused," Dun's Review says.

High on the list of labor's goals this year are more jobs, national health insurance, the legalization of common situs picketing, welfare reform and an increase in the minimum wage to $3 an hour.

The unions will also lobby for such economy-stimulating measures as a tax cut, more government spending, a more expansionary monetary policy and such complementary programs as job training, public service employment and possibly a Civilian Conservation Corps-type plan for getting unemployed teen-agers off the street.

Adding to the ferment in labor is the rise of a new generation of activist union leaders. Pushing hard for goals that are beyond the bargaining table, Dun's Review says, "These men could have as much influence in the Carter Administration as their predecessors had in shaping the New Deal."

Just as labor is expected to get tough in 1977, Congress can be counted on to enact new legislation toughening the rules by which administrators serve on such key government regulatory agencies as the Securities and Exchange Commission, Federal Trade Commission, Federal Communications Commission and Civil Aeronautics Board.

Noting that over the past five years 48 per cent of the commissioners who have headed regulatory agencies left to go to work for the industries they once policed, Dun's Review says that "it's all but dead certain" that the next Congress will push through measures designed to make it tougher for agency administrators to have any connections -- past or future-- with the industries they regulate.

Major regulatory issues affecting cotton industry will be reviewed at seminar

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. — Two major regulatory issues affecting the cotton industry will be reviewed for National Cotton Council delegates during a current events seminar here Jan. 30.

Dr. Ed Hobson, Washington representative for Shell Chemical Co., will speak on over-regulation of agriculture, with special emphasis on rulings relating to pesticides.

Maynard Dolloff, agricultural liaison for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration at Washington, will discuss the proposed new cotton dust standard.

A question-and-answer session will follow the reports.

The seminar will run from 1:30 to 3 p.m. in the Continental Room of the Contemporary Resort Hotel on the eve of the council's annual meeting on Jan. 31 and Feb. 1.

More than 1,500 leaders from across the Cotton Belt are expected to attend. Guest speakers will include Agriculture Secretary-Designate Bob Bergland of Minnesota, House cotton subcommittee chairman David R. Bowen (D-Miss.) and Munsingwear president A. Byron Reed. Presiding over the two-day session will be council president W.D. Lawson III a Gastonia, N.C., merchant.

TAX TALK

Provided as a public service by the Independent Accountants Society of Missouri, in cooperation with this newspaper.

Are premiums paid on business life insurance deductible as business expenses?

As a general rule, life insurance premiums are not deductible if the premium payer has any interest in the policy or proceeds.

The Internal Revenue Code expressly provides that no deductions shall be allowed for premiums paid on any life insurance policy covering the life of any officer or employee of the taxpayer if the taxpayer is either directly or indirectly a beneficiary under the policy.

Are premiums paid on business life insurance taxable to the insured?

Generally speaking, the premiums are not taxable to the insured if the insurance is purchased for the benefit of the business and the insured has no interest in the policy. However, life insurance premiums paid by an employer on the life of his employee where the proceeds are payable to the beneficiary of the employee are usually part of the gross income of the employee.

Are premiums paid by a partnership, or by a partner, for insurance on the life of a copartner, deductible?

No, regardless of who is named beneficiary of the proceeds. Whether the insurance is purchased for keyman reasons or to finance purchase of insured's partnership interest, the premium paying partner will benefit from the policy.

Ticket Lock

Discouraged because fewer than half of parking offenders bothered to pay their tickets, Japanese police began to use a ticket on a metal loop that locks on car doors or side mirrors. Since the system was instituted in Japan's six largest cities, most motorists tagged have come to police stations to pay their fines and have the tickets removed.

Soybean conference will view problems with weather

The Soybean Day Conference, planned for Tuesday Feb. 1, will focus on "Growing beans: possible dry weather adjustments," says Tony Ballman, field representative of the Missouri Soybean Assn.

The soybean meeting is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Columbia's Ramada Inn. The conference is part of Ag Science Week at the University of Missouri-Columbia, Jan. 31-Feb. 4.

The program starts with a discussion of the "Impact of Climatic Fluctuation on Food Production," by Wayne Decker, chairman of the UMC atmospheric science department.

Then, William Murphy, UMC agronomy extension project leader, will discuss maximizing soybean production in uncertain weather conditions.

At 11 a.m., William Prichard, chairman of the American Soybean Assn. Government Relations Committee, will discuss "Soybeans and Politics—What's Ahead?" Prichard is from Louisville, Ga.

The Missouri Soybean Assn. will hold its annual meeting at 11:30 and lunch will follow. The luncheon speaker has yet to be determined.

A special session for women is planned at 11 a.m. with a discussion of "First Aid on the Farm," with Karen Frissell, a registered nurse and assistant director of the Emergency Medical Service Training Program in Columbia.

Registration and coffee will precede the conference at 8:30. Pre-registration is preferred, Ballman says. He estimates 200 participants will attend.

To register, contact Missouri Soybean Assn., 3504 Woodside Drive, Columbia, MO. 65201.

There are more than 3.5 million maps and charts, 38,000 atlases, 250 globes and some 500 three-dimensional relief maps in the Geography and Map Division of the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C.

Livestock judging workshop scheduled for Jan. 29 at MU

The Livestock Judging and Selection Clinic for Missouri Future Farmers of America chapters is scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 29 at the University of Missouri-Columbia Livestock Center.

"The clinic is planned as an update on the basics of livestock judging," says Greg Martin, UMC animal husbandry instructor and coach of the UMC livestock judging team.

The program starts at 8:30 a.m. with a slide presentation on what to look for in livestock judging generally, Martin says.

After that, classes will be conducted in livestock placing and in giving oral reasons.

A new element this year is instruction on livestock culling, which will be an addition to the FFA State Contest in the Spring. Participants must select the best four out of eight animals, on the basis of the animals' performance records and on how they look.

Cattle, sheep and hog judging will be covered in the instruction.

This clinic is mainly planned for FFA members and their leaders, who participate in most of their judging events in winter and early spring. Another clinic is planned for 4-H Club members, who attend livestock judging contests in spring and early fall, for April 2.

The Jan. 29 clinic will be over at 2 p.m. and will be followed by the Block and Bridle UMC Showmanship Contest, in which University students will show beef, dairy, sheep, swine and horses.

FFA members and leaders may stay for the show, Martin says.

Also, adults who wish to try for the State Department of Agriculture approved livestock judges list for county fairs may judge animals during the clinic and turn in cards for consideration.

However, those who wish to qualify for the judges list are encouraged to attend the April 2 clinic, Martin says, but cards will be accepted this time for those unable to attend the spring classes.

Registration for the clinic begins at 8 a.m.

More than 600 students and 100 advisers are expected to attend the clinic, Martin says.

Confusion noted in licensing of trucks in state

JEFFERSON CITY — George Burruss, executive vice president of the Missouri Bus and Truck Association, has suggested in light of some confusion surrounding truck licensing procedures for 1977 that Missouri commercial vehicle operators whose vehicles are registered for more than 26,000 pounds or trucks with three axles which operate in interstate commerce should purchase apportioned registration plates rather than regular full-fee registration platres for which renewal applications have recently been issued by the Missouri Department of Revenue.

U.S. poultry sales up in Middle East

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of U.S. poultry to the oil-rich Middle East are thriving, along with exports of live hogs and cattle, onions, prunes and tobacco to some other overseas markets, the Agriculture Department said today.

Wheat, soybeans, corn and cotton are the biggest items sold by American farmers overseas, but the other products are important and are making rapid gains.

For example, frozen poultry shipments to the Middle East may total around $40 million this year and could climb to $100 million in 1977, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said in a weekly report.

Recent large sales, estimated at about $30 million, have been made to Iraq. Other big U.S. poultry buyers include Iran, Saudi Arabia, Egypt and the United Arab Emirates, the report said.

John B. Parker Jr., an analyst in USDA's Economic Research Service, said that "consumer demand for poultry meat is rapidly increasing" in the Middle East and that the United States is overtaking France as the leading supplier of broiler chicken and other poultry.

Total U.S. farm exports to all countries are about $22 billion this year, with grain alone accounting for more than half.

Another article in the agency's report said that sales of live U.S. breeding hogs to Italy set a record this year when 460 head were delivered last July.

Those were followed with 408 more hogs sold to Italy in August. The total of 868 breeding swine compared with only 12 sold to Italy in 1975 and 331 in 1974. officials said. No dollar value was reported.

Italian farmers have been reluctant to buy U.S. swine breeds in the past, but they are finding that "consumers are becoming accustomed to leaner pork" and that American breeding stock produces the kind of pigs needed to supply the demand.

The Soviet Union, which causes world markets to vibrate each time it buys foreign grain, also has been buying U.S. cattle to help improve its herds. Italy also has been buying cattle for feedlots.

Some 260 head of cattle were shipped in late November to the Soviet Union, including beef and dairy breeds.

The weekly report, "Foreign Agriculture," also said Syria has become a steady customer of U.S. tobacco, both as unmanufactured leaf and as cigarettes.

Tobacco leaf sales to Syria totaled about $6.4 million in 1975 and are expected to exceed that this year, partly because Syria was eligible to get up to $4.8 million worth under a Food for Peace credit arrangement in addition to much larger commercial purchases.

Onion exports, described as usually negligible, have soared this year because of sales to Europe where drought reduced the crop, the report said. In September some 11,200 metric tons were shipped to European buyers, followed by 21,000 tons in October.

The surge in onion exports, up five-fold from a year ago, will not mean a shortgage for American consumers. Officials said this year's crop of onions was 766,000 tons, up 20 per cent from 1975. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

Finally, the department's report said that exports of dried California prunes were a record of 53,246 metric tons in 1975-76, up from the previous season's 35,221 tons and the earlier record of 48,343 tons two years ago.

France bought 12,982 tons of the prunes, three to six times its usual purchases. The Scandinavian countries, Germany and Britain also were large buyers, the report said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is seeking public comment on proposals to revise regulations affecting the grazing of livestock on public land administered by the U.S. Forest Service.

Officials said the revisions are planned to make regulations "consistent with the requirements" of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act passed by Congress last year (1976).

Categories included in the proposal relate to authority and definition in the grazing program; management of the range environment; methods of issuing and reissuing grazing permits; funds for improving rangeland; and grazing advisory boards.

The department said the proposal does not cover grazing fees charged livestock producers who use the land or the management of wild horses and burros. Those will be included in separate proposals, officials said.

On the legislative front, however, the unions are expected to take a tough line. "Labor was a major factor in Jimmy Carter's close victory and it will demand a payoff in the form of measures it has long espoused," Dun's Review says.

High on the list of labor's goals this year are more jobs, national health insurance, the legalization of common situs picketing, welfare reform and an increase in the minimum wage to $3 an hour.

The unions will also lobby for such economy-stimulating measures as a tax cut, more government spending, a more expansionary monetary policy and such complementary programs as job training, public service employment and possibly a Civilian Conservation Corps-type plan for getting unemployed teen-agers off the street.

Adding to the ferment in labor is the rise of a new generation of activist union leaders. Pushing hard for goals that are beyond the bargaining table, Dun's Review says, "These men could have as much influence in the Carter Administration as their predecessors had in shaping the New Deal."

Just as labor is expected to get tough in 1977, Congress can be counted on to enact new legislation toughening the rules by which administrators serve on such key government regulatory agencies as the Securities and Exchange Commission, Federal Trade Commission, Federal Communications Commission and Civil Aeronautics Board.

Noting that over the past five years 48 per cent of the commissioners who have headed regulatory agencies left to go to work for the industries they once policed, Dun's Review says that "it's all but dead certain" that the next Congress will push through measures designed to make it tougher for agency administrators to have any connections -- past or future-- with the industries they regulate.

Major regulatory issues affecting cotton industry will be reviewed at seminar

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. — Two major regulatory issues affecting the cotton industry will be reviewed for National Cotton Council delegates during a current events seminar here Jan. 30.

Dr. Ed Hobson, Washington representative for Shell Chemical Co., will speak on over-regulation of agriculture, with special emphasis on rulings relating to pesticides.

Maynard Dolloff, agricultural liaison for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration at Washington, will discuss the proposed new cotton dust standard.

A question-and-answer session will follow the reports.

The seminar will run from 1:30 to 3 p.m. in the Continental Room of the Contemporary Resort Hotel on the eve of the council's annual meeting on Jan. 31 and Feb. 1.

More than 1,500 leaders from across the Cotton Belt are expected to attend. Guest speakers will include Agriculture Secretary-Designate Bob Bergland of Minnesota, House cotton subcommittee chairman David R. Bowen (D-Miss.) and Munsingwear president A. Byron Reed. Presiding over the two-day session will be council president W.D. Lawson III a Gastonia, N.C., merchant.

TAX TALK

Provided as a public service by the Independent Accountants Society of Missouri, in cooperation with this newspaper.

Are premiums paid on business life insurance deductible as business expenses?

As a general rule, life insurance premiums are not deductible if the premium payer has any interest in the policy or proceeds.

The Internal Revenue Code expressly provides that no deductions shall be allowed for premiums paid on any life insurance policy covering the life of any officer or employee of the taxpayer if the taxpayer is either directly or indirectly a beneficiary under the policy.

Are premiums paid on business life insurance taxable to the insured?

Generally speaking, the premiums are not taxable to the insured if the insurance is purchased for the benefit of the business and the insured has no interest in the policy. However, life insurance premiums paid by an employer on the life of his employee where the proceeds are payable to the beneficiary of the employee are usually part of the gross income of the employee.

Are premiums paid by a partnership, or by a partner, for insurance on the life of a copartner, deductible?

No, regardless of who is named beneficiary of the proceeds. Whether the insurance is purchased for keyman reasons or to finance purchase of insured's partnership interest, the premium paying partner will benefit from the policy.

Ticket Lock

Discouraged because fewer than half of parking offenders bothered to pay their tickets, Japanese police began to use a ticket on a metal loop that locks on car doors or side mirrors. Since the system was instituted in Japan's six largest cities, most motorists tagged have come to police stations to pay their fines and have the tickets removed.

Soybean conference will view problems with weather

The Soybean Day Conference, planned for Tuesday Feb. 1, will focus on "Growing beans: possible dry weather adjustments," says Tony Ballman, field representative of the Missouri Soybean Assn.

The soybean meeting is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Columbia's Ramada Inn. The conference is part of Ag Science Week at the University of Missouri-Columbia, Jan. 31-Feb. 4.

The program starts with a discussion of the "Impact of Climatic Fluctuation on Food Production," by Wayne Decker, chairman of the UMC atmospheric science department.

Then, William Murphy, UMC agronomy extension project leader, will discuss maximizing soybean production in uncertain weather conditions.

At 11 a.m., William Prichard, chairman of the American Soybean Assn. Government Relations Committee, will discuss "Soybeans and Politics—What's Ahead?" Prichard is from Louisville, Ga.

The Missouri Soybean Assn. will hold its annual meeting at 11:30 and lunch will follow. The luncheon speaker has yet to be determined.

A special session for women is planned at 11 a.m. with a discussion of "First Aid on the Farm," with Karen Frissell, a registered nurse and assistant director of the Emergency Medical Service Training Program in Columbia.

Registration and coffee will precede the conference at 8:30. Pre-registration is preferred. Ballman says. He estimates 200 participants will attend.

To register, contact Missouri Soybean Assn., 3504 Woodside Drive, Columbia, MO. 65201.

There are more than 3.5 million maps and charts, 38,000 atlases, 250 globes and some 500 three-dimensional relief maps in the Geography and Map Division of the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C.

Livestock judging workshop scheduled for Jan. 29 at MU

The Livestock Judging and Selection Clinic for Missouri Future Farmers of America chapters is scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 29 at the University of Missouri-Columbia Livestock Center.

"The clinic is planned as an update on the basics of livestock judging," says Greg Martin, UMC animal husbandry instructor and coach of the UMC livestock judging team.

The program starts at 8:30 a.m. with a slide presentation on what to look for in livestock judging generally, Martin says.

After that, classes will be conducted in livestock placing and in giving oral reasons.

A new element this year is instruction on livestock culling, which will be an addition to the FFA State Contest in the Spring. Participants must select the best four out of eight animals, on the basis of the animals' performance records and on how they look.

Cattle, sheep and hog judging will be covered in the instruction.

This clinic is mainly planned for FFA members and their leaders, who participate in most of their judging events in winter and early spring. Another clinic is planned for 4-H Club members, who attend livestock judging contests in spring and early fall, for April 2.

The Jan. 29 clinic will be over at 2 p.m. and will be followed by the Block and Bridle UMC Showmanship Contest, in which University students will show beef, dairy, sheep, swine and horses.

FFA members and leaders may stay for the show, Martin says.

Also, adults who wish to try for the State Department of Agriculture approved livestock judges list for county fairs may judge animals during the clinic and turn in cards for consideration.

However, those who wish to qualify for the judges list are encouraged to attend the April 2 clinic, Martin says, but cards will be accepted this time for those unable to attend the spring classes.

Registration for the clinic begins at 8 a.m.

More than 600 students and 100 advisers are expected to attend the clinic, Martin says.

Confusion noted in licensing of trucks in state

JEFFERSON CITY — George Burruss, executive vice president of the Missouri Bus and Truck Association, has suggested in light of some confusion surrounding truck licensing procedures for 1977 that Missouri commercial vehicle operators whose vehicles are registered for more than 26,000 pounds or trucks with three axles which operate in interstate commerce should purchase apportioned registration plates rather than regular full-fee registration platres for which renewal applications have recently been issued by the Missouri Department of Revenue.

Sikeston woman among first to be treated at hospital

Since heart surgery last February, Marie Maloney has had to curtail her activities. But she still enjoys taking care of her plants and occasional visits with her many friends. She hopes to work with handicapped children when she recovers from her surgery.

By ANN O'LEARY

In April of 1924, the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children of St. Louis opened its doors. For a Sikeston woman, Marie Maloney, this event was more than just another date in a history book. Marie, then an eight-year-old child, was one of the first patients to be treated at the hospital.

Marie was born in 1916 at a little settlement called Ojibway near Lake Wappapello. Her grandfather had homesteaded there after the Civil War. For a short time, the eldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wilson was a healthy child. But at the age of two months, Marie contacted polio.

"In those days, the disease just had to take its toll," she says. "It left my right leg four inches shorter than my left, and I didn't walk until I was four years old."

But Marie remembers her mother's stories of her attempts to walk.

" 'I'd try to take a step and yell, 'Look boys, I'm going to walk."

When she finally started to walk, Marie wore a heavy leg brace that extended to her hip and had a four-inch lift. She's not sure what it was made of, but remembers that it was heavy.

As the oldest of what would become a family of ten children, Marie worked along with the rest of her family, polio or no polio. But as the other boys and girls went out with their parents to work in the fields, Marie was left at the house to care for the baby.

"Every year or so there was a new little baby for me to take care of," she laughs.

Then, one day, through a friend of her father's, Marie Wilson's life changed. The friend, a truck driver, was a Shriner.

"He saw me sitting on the porch one day and asked my father if he'd like some help for me," Marie recalls.

The friend was referring to the newly-opened Shriners Hospital.

The Shriners finance 22 hospitals in all, including three Burn Institutes. The care at the hospitals is completely free of charge to families and the hospitals are supported by the efforts of the Shriners.

Any crippled child, regardless of race or creed, from infancy to 15 years of age, and whose parents or guardians are unable to pay for the type of medical care rendered by the Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children, is eligible.

Marie's family moved to St. Louis so she would be able to go to the hospital regularly and still return home to be with her family between operations. She has had several operations on her right leg, which was the only limb affected by the polio, but also underwent a gread deal of therapy.

To stretch her leg, weights were placed on it and she had to lie flat on her back for more than a month.

Although many of her memories about the hospital are hazy, Marie remembers two things quite clearly - ether and Christmas.

Ether was the anesthetic used, and she remembers that its after-effects in those days were almost worse than the pain. It nearly always left her nauseous.

Christmas was a happier matter.

"You just wouldn't believe what the Shriners did for us at Christmas," she says. There was no shortage of gifts or visitors for any of the children in the hospital over the holiday.

In the end, all of her family's sacrifices and the Shriners' generosity paid off. When Marie left the hospital for the last time at the age of 14, she walked out without a brace.

Although this marked an improvement in her physical condition, Marie had some social problems adjusting to the outside world.

Her family was a great support to her. The other children would take her to the hospital in a cart for her therapy, since they lived only a short distance away. And whenever she returned from a lengthy stay at the hospital, she got royal treatment from her five brothers and four sisters.

"You'd think somebody important had come to see them."

But despite all of her family's support, she had some problems upon being discharged.

"I felt kind of lost," she explains.

She had attended a special school for the handicapped for some time, and worked and played with other handicapped children. After she was released from Shriner's Hospital, she entered a regular school.

There were many times when she did not want to go to school. And a simple thing such as climbing the stairs presented problems which made her ache.

"I had to go up the stairs one at a time. I'd wait until everyone else had gone up before me so I could go slow and not get pushed. This threw me into sort of an inferiority complex."

And there were times when the othe children hurt her feelings without meaning to, with either words or actions. But over the years, Marie took this with a grain of salt.

"Anybody who is bitter, it's just like a cancer. It eats at you. I don't think of myself as being handicapped any more, I'm just like anyone else."

Just like anyone else, Marie worked for much of her life, at the Parnell Shoe Co. at St. Louis and later, as a wife and mother of "five of the most wonderful kids you ever saw."

Her three daughters are all married. Both her sons have served in the military. One is currently stationed in Korea with the United States Air Force and the other attends Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau.

She also has eight grandchildren. She and her family moved to Sikeston in 1960.

The children must also think their mother is pretty wonderful. Her son Dan made her a wall plaque of family pictures and wrote a verse to go along with it. It reads:

"These are just a few lonely pictures. But to us they tell a hundred tales. And for a brief, fleeting moment, too quickly passed; may we feel the hardships and the happiness we once faced together as a family, now blown to the four winds by time."

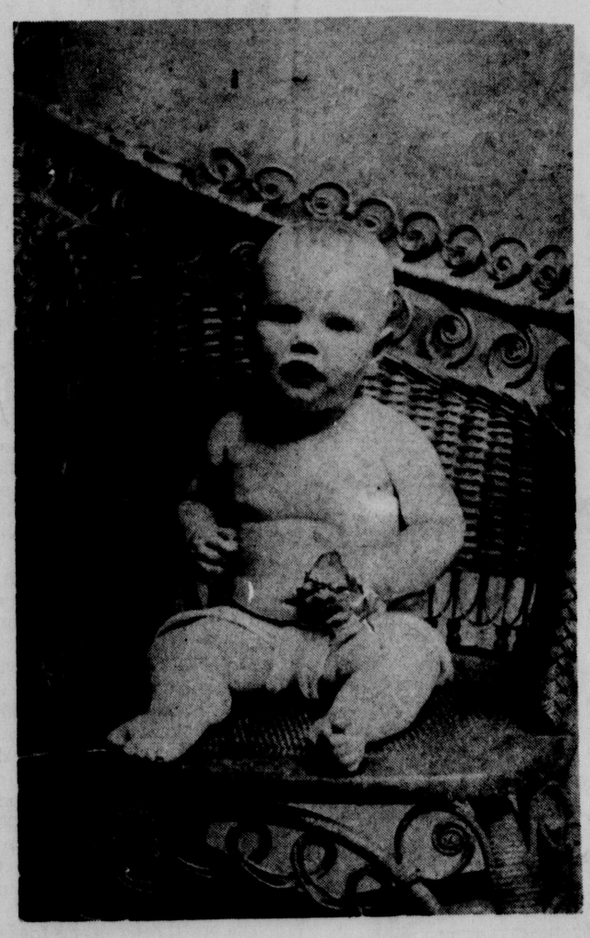
Marie credits much of her good feeling about herself to her religious beliefs. She is a member of the Fellowship Baptist Church and teaches Sunday school there.

Last February, Marie had open heart surgery at Barnes Hospital at St. Louis, and her activitie have been restricted since that time. She embroiders, reads and writes poetry and prose to keep busy. She still goes out for her walks "to meet people" and says this never fails to bring her out of a depression.

But on the whole, one of the first patients at the St. Louis Shriners Hospital doesn't feel she has much to be depressed about. Her handicap, she believes, has led her to be more conscious of other people's feelings. And it has left her with a desire to help other handicapped persons once she gets her strength back.

"I'm happy, peaceful and content. I may be the poorest person materially, but spiritually, I am rich."

These are just a few lonely pictures. But to us they tell a hundred tales. And for a brief, fleeting moment, too qucikly passed; may we feel the hardship and the happiness we once faced together, as a family, now blown to the four winds by time." Dan Maloney



This baby picture of Marie was taken a few months after she got polio. She and her family moved to St. Louis from Southeast Missouri so she could get treatment at the St. Louis Shriniers Hospital for Crippled Children. The hospital opened in April of 1924 and Marie registered as a patient there in May.

As the oldest of what would become a family of ten children, Marie worked along with the rest of her family, polio or no polio. But as the other boys and girls went out with their parents to work in the fields, Marie was left at the house to care for the baby.

"Every year or so there was a new little baby for me to take care of," she laughs.

Then, one day, through a friend of her father's, Marie Wilson's life changed. The friend, a truck driver, was a Shriner.

"He saw me sitting on the porch one day and asked my father if he'd like some help for me," Marie recalls.

The friend was referring to the newly-opened Shriners Hospital.

The Shriners finance 22 hospitals in all, including three Burn Institutes. The care at the hospitals is completely free of charge to families and the hospitals are supported by the efforts of the Shriners.

Any crippled child, regardless of race or creed, from infancy to 15 years of age, and whose parents or guardians are unable to pay for the type of medical care rendered by the Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children, is eligible.

Marie's family moved to St. Louis so she would be able to go to the hospital regularly and still return home to be with her family between operations. She has had several operations on her right leg, which was the only limb affected by the polio, but also underwent a gread deal of therapy.

To stretch her leg, weights were placed on it and she had to lie flat on her back for more than a month.

Although many of her memories about the hospital are hazy, Marie remembers two things quite clearly - ether and Christmas.

Ether was the anesthetic used, and she remembers that its after-effects in those days were almost worse than the pain. It nearly always left her nauseous.

Christmas was a happier matter.

"You just wouldn't believe what the Shriners did for us at Christmas," she says. There was no shortage of gifts or visitors for any of the children in the hospital over the holiday.

In the end, all of her family's sacrifices and the Shriners' generosity paid off. When Marie left the hospital for the last time at the age of 14, she walked out without a brace.

Although this marked an improvement in her physical condition, Marie had some social problems adjusting to the outside world.

Her family was a great support to her. The other children would take her to the hospital in a cart for her therapy, since they lived only a short distance away. And whenever she returned from a lengthy stay at the hospital, she got royal treatment from her five brothers and four sisters.

"You'd think somebody important had come to see them."

But despite all of her family's support, she had some problems upon being discharged.

"I felt kind of lost," she explains.

She had attended a special school for the handicapped for some time, and worked and played with other handicapped children. After she was released from Shriner's Hospital, she entered a regular school.

There were many times when she did not want to go to school. And a simple thing such as climbing the stairs presented problems which made her ache.

"I had to go up the stairs one at a time. I'd wait until everyone else had gone up before me so I could go slow and not get pushed. This threw me into sort of an inferiority complex."

And there were times when the othe children hurt her feelings without meaning to, with either words or actions. But over the years, Marie took this with a grain of salt.

"Anybody who is bitter, it's just like a cancer. It eats at you. I don't think of myself as being handicapped any more, I'm just like anyone else."

Just like anyone else, Marie worked for much of her life, at the Parnell Shoe Co. at St. Louis and later, as a wife and mother of "five of the most wonderful kids you ever saw."

Her three daughters are all married. Both her sons have served in the military. One is currently stationed in Korea with the United States Air Force and the other attends Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau.

She also has eight grandchildren. She and her family moved to Sikeston in 1960.

The children must also think their mother is pretty wonderful. Her son Dan made her a wall plaque of family pictures and wrote a verse to go along with it. It reads:

"These are just a few lonely pictures. But to us they tell a hundred tales. And for a brief, fleeting moment, too quickly passed; may we feel the hardships and the happiness we once faced together as a family, now blown to the four winds by time."

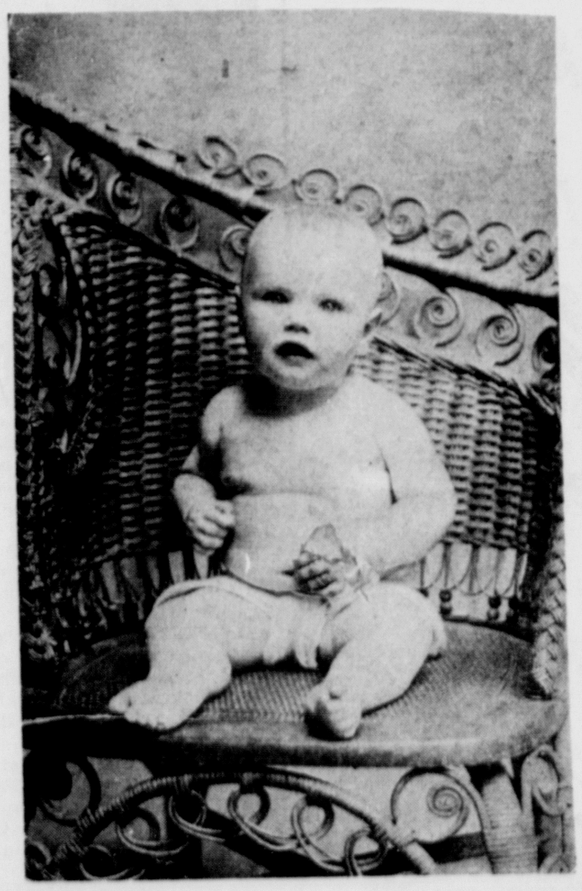
Marie credits much of her good feeling about herself to her religious beliefs. She is a member of the Fellowship Baptist Church and teaches Sunday school there.

Last February, Marie had open heart surgery at Barnes Hospital at St. Louis, and her activitie have been restricted since that time. She embroiders, reads and writes poetry and prose to keep busy. She still goes out for her walks "to meet people" and says this never fails to bring her out of a depression.

But on the whole, one of the first patients at the St. Louis Shriners Hospital doesn't feel she has much to be depressed about. Her handicap, she believes, has led her to be more conscious of other people's feelings. And it has left her with a desire to help other handicapped persons once she gets her strength back.

"I'm happy, peaceful and content. I may be the poorest person materially, but spiritually, I am rich."

These are just a few lonely pictures. But to us they tell a hundred tales. And for a brief, fleeting moment, too quckly passed; may we feel the hardship and the happiness we once faced together, as a family, now blown to the four winds by time.' Dan Maloney



This baby picture of Marie was taken a few months after she got polio. She and her family moved to St. Louis from Southeast Missouri so she could get treatment at the St. Louis Shriniers Hospital for Crippled Children. The hospital opened in April of 1924 and Marie registered as a patient there in May.

Open mind

Lack of support serious problem

Dear Open Mind:

My husband and I have been married for more than twenty years and have two children. His mother owns a small business, and my husband runs it by himself. He gives her half of the income and keeps half himself. The sister of my husband and her family live with the mother so he is really supporting his mother and sister and family and not his own family. He hides and locks his checkbook in the glove compartment of his truck so I can't see it.

Our marriage is absolutely a failure because I've gone to work to earn money for the children and myself. I started 14 years ago and now own my own business. He seems very jealous of my success.

We've been to our minister, discussed with psychiatrist three times--no hope---he will not untie apron strings. I have lost all respect and love for him, and I am sorry. Do you have any suggestions?

SECOND FIDDLE

Use your skills to rebuild union

Dear Second Fiddle:

You call your marriage a failure but what I hear is a stand-off! Perhaps you can help yourself by asking the following questions? 1. If your husband's business were owned by non-family, would you feel differently? If so, perhaps the real issue is the lack of emotional support you receive rather than the amount of money made and given. 2. Can you gain emotional support by complaining about his family? 3. Is he hiding the checkbook because his business is less important and successful than yours? If so, would building pride in his and including him in yours get you the payoff of a better relationship for the two of you?

You must be a capable person to have built a business. Why not use those same skills to repair your marriage? Things are seldom absolutes and phrases such as "absolutely a failure", "will not" and "lost all" bother me. Perhaps the most important questions are: 1. What positives do you get from this relationship? 2. Do you really want to continue?

If the answers are negative, no amount of "untying the apron strings" will help. If, however, there are some positive aspects I would recommend that you investigate marriage counseling resources in your area, pick one and stick with it until the situation improves or you can make a decision to terminate your marriage. It won't happen over night (or in three visits). You have "over twenty years" of behavior patterns and old resentments to irradicate.

To feel that you are playing second fiddle is uncomfortable and self-defeating. You may be playing with the wrong symphony, or you may need to improve your skills and practice to perfection! Either way, the music is bound to improve!

Resentment has increased

Dear Second Fiddle:

Have you really played second fiddle, or is this the way you have perceived it? A basic fact is that Mother owns the business and your husband has been willing to be employed by her for half the profit. It would be helpful to know how much money your husband is making and whether he is providing an adequate living for the family. I think it is irrelevant that his sister and her family live with his mother. Mother has a right to do with her half of the profit as she wishes.

Apparently, because your husband's mother has chosen to support his sister and family, your resentment has increased over the years. Perhaps this has caused you to nag, and your husband protects himself by hiding the checkbook.

You feel your marriage is absolutely a failure because you have gone to work to earn money for the children and yourself and you have become a success on your own. Economically did you have to go to work, or is working a way of competing and expressing your resentment toward him and his involvement with the family business? It may be that your own jealousy and mounting resentment has resulted in your loss of respect and love for him. It may be profitable for you to re-examine your own attitudes and feelings and make the appropriate changes.

In your letter there is no real evidence that he is tied to mother's apron strings; however, if he is, you may want to re-evaluate the entire relationship. There may be enough positive aspects to the marriage that you could decide to cooperate and work toward building a happier life together. To help accomplish this it would probably take many hours of hard work with a professional marriage counselor.

Mrs. Thomas E. Putnam

Stroup-Putnam

BENTON — Jana Leigh Stroup, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Stroup of Benton, became the bride of Thomas Evans Putnam Dec. 18 at the Benton United Methodist Church. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E.R. Putnam Jr. of Charleston.

The double -ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Earl Statler.

Music was provided by Matt Bryant of Charleston, organist. Vocalist was Sandie Sutherland of Charleston. Gary Pinkston of Columbia was guitarist and vocalist.

Joyce Alane Stroup, sister of the bride, read "On Marriage", by Kahlil Gibran.

The bride chose a designer gown of tiffany knit and silk floss sculptured lace. The bodice featured a bibbed waist-length yoke, accented with tiny seed pearls on an English net lining, a wedding ring neckline, full bishop sleeves that were edged at the wrist with lace. An A-line skirt swept to a chapel train. She wore a lace Juliet cap which secured the fingertip veil which was bordered with scalloped lace of imported illusion. She carried a crescent cascade bouquet of white roses, red pixie carnations, stephanotis, and holly.

Sisters of the bride, Mrs. Judy Stroup Lockwood of Denver, Colo. and Joyce Alane Stroup of Benton, served as matron and maid of honor, respectively. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Jackie Springer Pinkston of Columbia, Jackie Sanderlin of West Memphis, Ark.; Pam Sauls of Atlanta, Ga., Chris Nebel of Benton and Mrs. Laura Webb Otten of Dexter.

Nieces of the groom, Stephanie Putnam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Putnam of Jackson, Tenn. and Jennifer Putnam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Putnam of Columbia, were flower girls.

The bridegroom chose his father, E.R. Putnam, Jr., as best man. Richard Richardson of Little Rock, Ark., Charlie Moxley, Clay Shelby, Dan DeField, Robert Griggs and Junior DeLay, all of Charleston, served as groomsmen.

Ushers were Lee Putnam of Columbia and Ray Putnam of Jackson, Tenn., brothers of the groom; Kevin Rolwing and Bill French of Charleston.

Mrs. Denise Welter of Benton, attended the guest book.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the Security Federal Savings and Loan Community Room, Sikeston.

Serving at the reception were Mary Ann Finch of Newark, Del.; Jackie White of Newport, Ark.; and cousins of the bride, Gloria McLane of Advance, Marla McLane of Poplar Bluff, and Cindy and Kelly McLane, Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of William Woods College in Fulton and attended graduate school at Southeast Missouri State University. She was employed as county agent home economist with the University of Arkansas Extension Service in Newport, Ark.

The groom is a senior at Westminister College in Fulton, majoring in political science and pre-law.

The couple will live in Fulton.

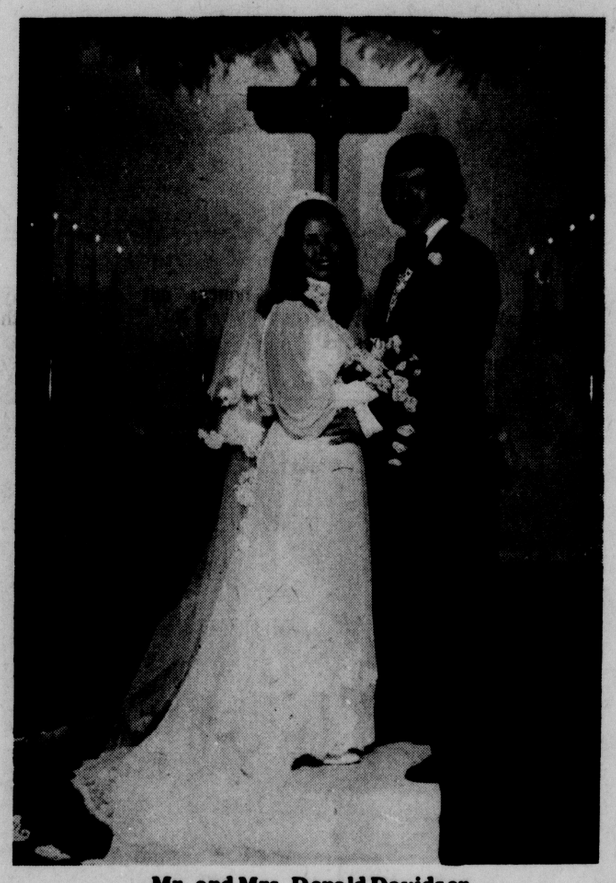
Weddings



Mr. and Mrs. Donald Davidson

DeCota-Davidson

Kimette Lee DeCota, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane DeCota, 107 Link Drive, was married to Donald Davidson Dec. 18 at Hunter Memorial Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Thomas Bass officiated at the ceremony.

The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Davidson of Sikeston.

The bride designed and made her gown of white organza over bridal satin with re-embroidered Alencon lace. Raglan sleeves and a blouson bodice were gathered at a small lace yoke forming a high neckline. The full sleeves were accented at the wrist with wide lace cuffs. Lace appliqued the hemline and slight train.

To complete her attire, the bride made her veil of white illusion with appliques of Alencon lace. From a small lace-covered cap accented with pearls and organza roses it fell to floor length. The bride chose a cascade of white orchids, white roses and ivy for her bouquet.

Gregory Comer was organist with vocal selections sung by Rebecca Perrin.

Mrs. Michelle Wilson of Austin, Tex. served her sister as matron of honor. Nancy Heck of Quincy, Ill., cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Julia Masterson, Maureen Klein and Melodie Powell of Sikeston. Flower girl was Valorie Converse, cousin of the bride, of Troy, Ill.

Candlelighters were Marcia Hall of Quincy, Ill., cousin of the bride, and Monique DeCota, sister of the bride.

Mrs. Terrie Ahlvin presided at the guest book.

Best man was Michael Porter of Sikeston. The groomsmen were Alan Davidson, brother of the groom, Daniel Smith of Waycross, Ga., Alan Hughes of Columbus, Ga. and Hal Jones of Sharpesberge, Ga.

Burdette DeCota, brother of the bride, and Greg Luber were ushers.

A buffet supper was served to the guests in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Sikeston High School and was employed at Webb DeCota Lighting Showroom. The groom is also a graduate of Sikeston High School and a senior at Georgia Tech majoring in architecture and civil engineering. After a honeymoon to New Orleans, the couple will live at 750 Franklin, Marietta, Ga.

What's the law?

The case of the outrageous wig

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Louie reluctantly bought himself a convertible top. A long-haired member of the National Guard, he bought it in compliance with an Army regulation that required long-haired reservists to wear short-haired wigs. The head mat, however, created havoc with Louie's coiffeur. Consequently, he attacked the validity of the regulation in court.

"While a wig may have been fine for King Louis XIV," he complained to a judge, "for this Louie, it's an outrage. It's a nuisance, and I shouldn't have to wear one."

"Legitimate Army matters may be determined only by the Army," responded a government attorney. "Consequently, this court has no jurisdiction with regard to Louie's complaint. For practical reasons, the length of a soldier's hair is of real concern to the Army. For example, it could interfere with the wearing of a gas mask."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you uphold the validity of the wig-wearing requirement for National Guard reservists?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that while the Army may have jurisdiction to determine legitimate Army matters, what constitutes a legitimate Army matter may first be determined by the courts. And, considering that reservists spend so little of their civilian life in the Army, there is little reason to require them to conform to the haircut requirement. Should a sudden need arise to activate them, concluded the judge, there appears to be no shortage of either barbers or scissors to attain rapid compliance.

The judge held that while the Army may have jurisdiction to determine legitimate Army matters, what constitutes a legitimate Army matter may first be determined by the courts. And, considering that reservists spend so little of their civilian life in the Army, there is little reason to require them to conform to the haircut requirement. Should a sudden need arise to activate them, concluded the judge, there appears to be no shortage of either barbers or scissors to attain rapid compliance.

Stuffing enhances chicken

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

There are lovely new ways to treat fresh vegetables. The following recipe, for example, uses yams along with other good things to make a delightful stuffing for roast chicken. This stuffing is different from the usual version because the yams are diced and given brief skillet cooking rather than boiled and mashed.

ROAST CHICKEN WITH YAM STUFFING

3½ to 4-pound roasting chicken
Salt and pepper
Butter or margarine
1 cup diced (¼-inch) pared yams
2-3rds cup chopped (medium-fine) onion
2-3rds cup chopped (medium-fine) celery with leaves
¼ cup coarsely grated carrot, packed down
1 cup small fresh bread cubes
¼ cup finely chopped parsley
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning

Sprinkle body and neck cavities of chicken with salt and pepper. In a 10-inch skillet melt 2 tablespoons butter; add the yams, onion, celery and carrot. Cook over moderate heat, stirring often, for about 5 minutes. Add bread and cook, stirring often, about 5 minutes longer. Off heat, stir in the parsley, poultry seasoning and salt and pepper to taste. Stuff body and neck cavities of the chicken with the mixture; close cavities by sewing with a darning needle and heavy white thread or with small skewers and white string. Hook wing tips onto back; tie legs together with string. If you like, you may rub the surface of the chicken with softened butter or margarine. Place chicken, breast side up, on a rack in a shallow baking pan. Roast in a 350-degree oven (it does not have to be preheated) for about 1½ hours; cut string away from legs; baste chicken with drippings in pan; continue roasting until golden-brown and tender enough to have the leg twist easily out of the thigh joint — about ½ hour longer. Makes 4 generous servings.

WINTER BLUEBERRY JAM

Good way to use the blueberries frozen last summer.

1 pint basket frozen blueberries
2 cups chopped (medium-fine) tart green apple
1 lemon (seeds removed), finely chopped (peel, pulp and juice)
3 cups sugar
½ cup water

In a large saucepot bring all the ingredients to a boil, stirring until blueberries thaw and sugar dissolves. Boil gently, uncovered and stirring occasionally, until thick — about 30 minutes. Ladle into sterilized wide-mouth preserving jars; seal at once. Makes four ½-pint jars.

Champagne good in food

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Voltaire put it as well as anyone when he penned these lines:

"This wine where sparkling bubbles dance
Reflects the brilliant soul of France."

The so-called champagne taste is costly, but at times it seems worth the money. Especially during holidays or festive occasions.

A chilled glass of champagne makes a delightful aperitif in place of a cocktail. It goes well with smoked salmon, a pate or bits of shrimp on toast. And of course caviar is a natural accompaniment, but few of us want to pay upwards of $115 a pound, which is what sturgeon eggs run these days.

Bear in mind that champagne, which ranges from extra dry to sweet, is a versatile wine that can be served throughout a meal from soup to dessert without putting your taste buds out of kilter. Most wines go better with some foods than others, but champagne is good with most dinner dishes.

When you are serving champagne the bottle can be chilled sufficiently in about 20 minutes by keeping it immersed in a bucket containing half ice and half water.

Take your time opening the bottle and remember that popping the cork is kid stuff that can be dangerous with the pressure you build up and also wastes a lot of good wine when it spurts out. Hold the bottle in one hand without agitating and with the other hand gently undo the wire muzzle holding the cork. Then tilt the bottle slightly, hold the cork firmly and turn the bottle slowly. The cork should pull away without popping. True champagne, of course, comes only from the Champagne region of France. These vineyards date back to the days of the Roman conquest when the banks of the River Marne were given over to growing the champagne grape.

As the years passed, French chefs came to realize that this festive wine was not only a superb drink but an excellent addition in the kitchen that put an ordinary dish in the gourmet category. Here's one I had last New Year's called Escalopes de Veau Au Champagne.

4 tablespoons clarified butter
1 pound veal scaloppine
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon chopped shallots
1 cup fresh sliced mushrooms
1 cup extra-dry champagne
1 cup sweet cream
Nutmeg to taste
Salt to taste
Pepper to taste
4 tablespoons salted butter, softened

In a large saucepan gently heat clarified butter and in it brown veal scaloppine that has been dredged in the flour — about 2 minutes browning for each side. Add shallots and mushrooms. Cook 2 minutes. Add champagne. Turn heat up and reduce to half volume. Add cream, nutmeg, salt and pepper. Reduce heat and simmer 4 minutes. Place veal and mushrooms in serving dish. In same saucepan, over high heat, finish cooking sauce by adding softened butter and stir till melted, about 2 minutes. Pour over veal and serve. Serves 2. Good with chilled dry champagne.

Ann Landers

Americans obsessed with being skinny

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to report a new public health menace -- it is skinnyitis. Victims of this affliction are subject to colds, frequent absences from work and severe emotional problems.

Our firm employs 25 females, 18 of whom suffer from skinnyitis. Their symptoms are easy to recognize. They talk about nothing but diets, measurements and how much they weigh. Their sole aim in life is to weigh what they did when they were in the 7th grade.

The mainstay of the victim's diet is black coffee, clear broth, diet pop and cigarets. Of course, these individuals cannot get a decent night's sleep and are dead tired during the day.

Too bad the women in this country don't realize how important it is to keep physically fit. In order to enjoy good health they must give the body what it needs--and this means adequate nourishment. Where did the skin and bones mania come from, anyway?--Mother Of Nine Who Weighs 117 lbs.

Dear Mother: The notion that Skinny Is Beautiful came from the fashion magazines. The models with their sunken eyes, hollow cheeks and protruding hip bones do indeed appear to be undernourished. It's unfortunate that so many women want to look like them.

Another hazard brought on by the craze to be skinny: A cascade of diet books -- each phonier than the last. I hope one day soon America will stop worshipping at the feet of the beanpole.

Dear Ann Landers: I was very disappointed in your advice to the woman who signed herself "Hairy Problem." You said if a wife doesn't like her husband in a mustache he should shave it off. This is interfering with his civil liberties, isn't it? After all, it's HIS face and if he likes a mustache nobody has the right to give him any static.

I love my husband's mustache. In fact, it tickles me to death. Ha, ha, ha. I'll bet you'll never print this. -- Las Vegas Lil

Dear Lil: Well ho, ho, ho. You lose. Civil liberties are not an issue here. The man's wife simply stated her preference. If she gives him the brush because he refuses to get rid of his mustache, he should not complain about the consequence -- which is no lovin'.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's parents put him through four years of college. Now Rod wants to get a Ph.D. in a special field of study.

Problem: His father refuses to pay for any more schooling. He points out that Rod's two younger brothers will be ready for college within three years and the price of education has skyrocketed.

My parents both work and make a good living but they are not rich. Rod feels THEY should put him through these last two years. They have told him they can't do it. Now he is mad at both his parents and mine. Is he justified? -In The Middle

Dear Middle: Parents do not owe their children a college education and neither do in-laws. If they can afford it and are agreeable -- fine, but it's not a moral obligation.

Thousands of students take out loans, obtain scholarships, work part-time and put themselves through. If Rod wants his Ph.D. badly enough he will figure out a way to get it. (P.S. It will mean a lot more to him if he makes it on his own.)

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers's booklet, "Marriage -- What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HEALTH PANCAKES

Cholesterol watchers will appreciate these.

1 cup flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 egg whites
¼ cup nonfat dry milk granules
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon white vinegar
2 tablespoons corn oil

On wax paper stir together the flour, baking powder and baking soda. In a medium bowl beat the egg whites until soft peaks form. Add dry milk, sugar and salt; beat until milk granules are dissolved. Add vinegar and water; beat until frothy. Sprinkle with flour mixture; fold in well. Stir in corn oil. Pour by ¼ cupfuls, well apart, onto lightly greased hot griddle (350 degrees if electric griddle is used). When bubbles appear over entire surface of pancakes, turn and brown other sides. Makes eight 4-inch pancakes.

Black bottom mini-pies lovely

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A group of half a dozen people we know sometimes have a joint supper party. One of them provides the main offering, usually a casserole-style dish. Another brings salad. Still another, rolls and butter. Two people provide wine. And one participant contributes dessert.

If this idea appeals to you, you may be interested in a good take-along dessert — Black Bottom Mini-Pies made in small plastic bowls that may be carried easily and safely because they are lightweight and have tight-fitting covers. For this sweet you can use the 8-ounce size daisy-decorated pedestal bowls in which soft margarine comes.

BLACK BOTTOM MINI-PIES

Soft margarine
1 and 1-3rd cups finely crushed gingersnaps
2-3rds cup confectioners' sugar
1-3rd cup unsweetened cocoa
1 egg
½ teaspoon vanilla
Dash of salt
4¾ to 5-ounce package vanilla-flavor pudding and pie filling mix
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 tablespoon light rum, if desired

Melt ¼ cup soft margarine; add gingersnap crumbs and heat through. Reserve 1 tablespoon of this crumb mixture. Evenly divide the remaining crumb mixture among six 8-ounce daisy-decorated pedestal soft-margarine bowls, using about 3 tablespoons per bowl. Press crumb mixture evenly over bottom and part way up sides of bowls. Chill. Stir together the confectioners' sugar and cocoa; thoroughly beat in 1-3rd cup soft margarine, the egg, vanilla and salt. Spread about 2 tablespoons of the mixture over the cooled crumbs in each bowl. Cook the pudding according to package directions for pie; cool completely according to package directions, but do not over-stir. Whip cream with the granulated sugar and, if used, the rum. Fold one-half of the whipped cream into the pudding; spoon about one-half cup of the mixture over the chocolate layer in each bowl. Chill until firm. Top each serving with remaining whipped cream and garnish with the reserved gingersnap crumbs. Makes 6 servings.

BLACK BOTTOM MINI-PIES—They're made in small "daisy" bowls from soft margarine, covered and toted to a bring-something party. A matching bowl in a larger size can hold a bouquet of fresh daisies.

Kitchen hints for cooks who care

Sour cream and minced fresh chives are a popular topping for baked potatoes. If there are no chives at hand, use ever-available green onion tops.

If a confectioners' sugar frosting is too thin for spreading well, beat in a little more sugar; if too thick, add a suspicion of liquid.

Youngsters usually like melted semi-sweet chocolate swirled through vanilla pudding. For oldsters, make the pudding coffee flavor.

For an economical mixed grill use shoulder lamb chops and baby beef liver along with bacon.

Steamboat oiler likes her works

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mary Kay Ter Haar oils, greases, throttles and wipes for a living.

She's an oiler on the Mississippi River steamboat "Natchez."

"At the Catholic girls' school I attended, we were expected to be either nuns or wives," she said.

Instead, the 20-year-old New Orleans woman is getting ready to study for her third assistant engineer's license. Her boss, Chief Engineer Robert Brewer, said she will be the only woman on the Mississippi with such a license, if she makes it two years from now.

Brewer is Ms. Ter Haar's most vocal fan. "She's exceptionally good; better than average," he said. "I'm going to teach her everything I know. She's really interested in her work and when you get somebody like that, you want to help them."

Ms. Ter Haar came to her unusual job from a much more prosaic calling. She had been a maid aboard the "Mississippi Queen," another riverboat, when it went into dry dock for repairs.

"I like this much better," she said. "That was idle-mind work. There I wore candy-striped dresses and white stockings, which were always black at the knees from kneeling to wash the bathtubs. Here I can't wear anything good because of all the grease."

She grinned. "It's funny. Now I find myself dying to put on a dress after work," she said.

Brewer had wanted to hire a woman as an oiler "because they have an idea of keeping things clean and that spills over to the men. It builds up the morale and creates a better way of doing things."

I love my husband's mustache. In fact, it tickles me to death. Ha, ha, ha. I'll bet you'll never print this. -- Las Vegas Lil

Dear Lil: Well ho, ho, ho. You lose. Civil liberties are not an issue here. The man's wife simply stated her preference. If she gives him the brush because he refuses to get rid of his mustache, he should not complain about the consequence -- which is no lovin'.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's parents put him through four years of college. Now Rod wants to get a Ph.D. in a special field of study.

Problem: His father refuses to pay for any more schooling. He points out that Rod's two younger brothers will be ready for college within three years and the price of education has skyrocketed.

My parents both work and make a good living but they are not rich. Rod feels THEY should put him through these last two years. They have told him they can't do it. Now he is mad at both his parents and mine. Is he justified? --In The Middle

Dear Middle: Parents do not owe their children a college education and neither do in-laws. If they can afford it and are agreeable -- fine, but it's not a moral obligation.

Thousands of students take out loans, obtain scholarships, work part-time and put themselves through. If Rod wants his Ph.D. badly enough he will figure out a way to get it. (P.S. It will mean a lot more to him if he makes it on his own.)

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers's booklet, "Marriage -- What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. HEALTH PANCAKES

Cholesterol watchers will appreciate these.

1 cup flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 egg whites
¼ cup nonfat dry milk granules
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon white vinegar
¾ cup water
2 tablespoons corn oil

On wax paper stir together the flour, baking powder and baking soda. In a medium bowl beat the egg whites until soft peaks form. Add dry milk, sugar and salt; beat until milk granules are dissolved. Add vinegar and water; beat until frothy. Sprinkle with flour mixture; fold in well. Stir in corn oil. Pour by ¼ cupfuls, well apart, onto lightly greased hot griddle (350 degrees if electric griddle is used). When bubbles appear over entire surface of pancakes, turn and brown other sides. Makes eight 4-inch pancakes.

Black bottom mini-pies lovely

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A group of half a dozen people we know sometimes have a joint supper party. One of them provides the main offering, usually a casserole-style dish. Another brings salad. Still another, rolls and butter. Two people provide wine. And one participant contributes dessert.

If this idea appeals to you, you may be interested in a good take-along dessert — Black Bottom Mini-Pies made in small plastic bowls that may be carried easily and safely because they are lightweight and have tight-fitting covers. For this sweet you can use the 8-ounce size daisy-decorated pedestal bowls in which soft margarine comes.

BLACK BOTTOM MINI-PIES

Soft margarine
1 and 1-3rd cups finely crushed gingersnaps
2-3rds cup confectioners' sugar
1-3rd cup unsweetened cocoa
1 egg
½ teaspoon vanilla
Dash of salt
4¾ to 5-ounce package vanilla-flavor pudding and pie filling mix
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 tablespoon light rum, if desired

Melt ¼ cup soft margarine; add gingersnap crumbs and heat through. Reserve 1 tablespoon of this crumb mixture. Evenly divide the remaining crumb mixture among six 8-ounce daisy-decorated pedestal soft-margarine bowls, using about 3 tablespoons per bowl. Press crumb mixture evenly over bottom and part way up sides of bowls. Chill. Stir together the confectioners' sugar and cocoa; thoroughly beat in 1-3rd cup soft margarine, the egg, vanilla and salt. Spread about 2 tablespoons of the mixture over the cooled crumbs in each bowl. Cook the pudding according to package directions for pie; cool completely according to package directions, but do not over-stir. Whip cream with the granulated sugar and, if used, the rum. Fold one-half of the whipped cream into the pudding; spoon about one-half cup of the mixture over the chocolate layer in each bowl. Chill until firm. Top each serving with remaining whipped cream and garnish with the reserved gingersnap crumbs. Makes 6 servings.

BLACK BOTTOM MINI-PIES—They're made in small "daisy" bowls from soft margarine, covered and toted to a bring-something party. A matching bowl in a larger size can hold a bouquet of fresh daisies.

Kitchen hints for cooks who care

Sour cream and minced fresh chives are a popular topping for baked potatoes. If there are no chives at hand, use ever-available green onion tops.

If a confectioners' sugar frosting is too thin for spreading well, beat in a little more sugar; if too thick, add a suspicion of liquid.

Youngsters usually like melted semi-sweet chocolate swirled through vanilla pudding. For oldsters, make the pudding coffee flavor.

For an economical mixed grill use shoulder lamb chops and baby beef liver along with bacon.

Steamboat oiler likes her works

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mary Kay Ter Haar oils, greases, throttles and wipes for a living.

She's an oiler on the Mississippi River steamboat "Natchez."

"At the Catholic girls' school I attended, we were expected to be either nuns or wives," she said.

Instead, the 20-year-old New Orleans woman is getting ready to study for her third assistant engineer's license. Her boss, Chief Engineer Robert Brewer, said she will be the only woman on the Mississippi with such a license, if she makes it two years from now.

Brewer is Ms. Ter Haar's most vocal fan. "She's exceptionally good; better than average," he said. "I'm going to teach her everything I know. She's really interested in her work and when you get somebody like that, you want to help them."

Ms. Ter Haar came to her unusual job from a much more prosaic calling. She had been a maid aboard the "Mississippi Queen," another riverboat, when it went into dry dock for repairs.

"I like this much better," she said. "That was idle-mind work. There I wore candy-striped dresses and white stockings, which were always black at the knees from kneeling to wash the bathtubs. Here I can't wear anything good because of all the grease."

She grinned. "It's funny. Now I find myself dying to put on a dress after work," she said.

Brewer had wanted to hire a woman as an oiler "because they have an idea of keeping things clean and that spills over to the men. It builds up the morale and creates a better way of doing things."

Surgery possible for varicose veins

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a woman, 23 years of age. I have very bad varicose veins and have had for three years. This is very inconvenient since in the warm weather it is too embarrassing to wear shorts, and I can only wear dresses with leotards. They are so severe that surgical hose are not much help.

My previous doctor said surgery was only for older women. My present doctor said if I want it done he'd go ahead with the operation; in fact he suggested it.

What does the operation entail? Are there scars left? Will the veins disappear, including the spidery ones as well as the large ones? Would you suggest that I continue to wear the surgical hose after the operation?

DEAR READER — The real answer to your question has to be based on the condition of your veins as determined by an examination. Your first doctor was right in saying that surgery is usually delayed until a woman is older. Why? Because a young woman in your age group may have one or more pregnancies, and that will usually increase the extent of the varicose veins. It is good to be able to correct the whole problem once and not have to do multiple operations.

Your present doctor is probably right if your condition is really far advanced. If your superficial leg veins are so large that they do not contribute anything to your venous circulation and they cause your legs to look unsightly, there may not be much to gain by delaying the surgery. Current thinking is that correction may even help prevent further changes.

Varicose veins are overstretched veins. You can't correct them any way except by surgery. You can minimize the leg swelling and help improve circulation with support hose, surgical hose or even elastic bandages, but the basic defect in the veins is still there.

The operation is usually simple. A common method is to identify the veins to be removed, make a small incision at the top and bottom of each segment to be removed, then literally strip out the vein. There will not be long unsighty scars from ankle to hip. Smaller branches that can be identified are also removed.

Usually the patient is allowed to walk brief periods the first post-operative day, but elastic bandages must be used. The patient is not allowed to sit around with the feet hanging down. Elastic support to the leg is usually continued for at least two to three weeks after surgery. The sutures are commonly taken out in the second post-operative week.

Small veins that connect the superficial veins with the deep ones that you can't see may be involved, and these may become apparent after surgery. These may then need to be injected with sclerosing agents or tied off.

Whether you will need elastic support after recovery from surgery depends on the individual case. If you have involvement of the deep veins as well, you may need to wear support hose.

To give you more information on what varicose veins are and what to do for them I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-8. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents, with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper P.O. Box 1551 Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — To save a little time and some footsteps while making a bed, mark the center of your sheets, at the top and bottom with a liquid embroidery pen. Blankets can be marked with colored thread. By doing this you can see at a glance the center of a sheet or blanket and know when it is in the proper position on the bed. Really is timesaving when just one person is making up a bed.

Washing dishes is not my favorite chore and it seems to take me so long. I find that if I set my timer for approximately the time I think it will take me to do them I have an incentive to hurry. Otherwise I take my time and feel resentful all the time I am doing them. It really gives me a good feeling if I beat the timer. — MRS. G.D.

Grits a base for Southern breakfasts

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Someone has called grits the potato of the South, and it's a fact that down below they do lean heavily on this early American food as an accompaniment for a host of dishes from bacon and eggs to country-cured ham with red eye gravy.

For uninitiated Northerners, grits are a hot cereal made from ground hominy which consists of hard corn kernels that have been hulled, washed and dried.

Hominy, in case you didn't know, is derived from an Algonquin Indian word which roughly means corn that has to be skinned. The tribe passed on their formula for hulling the pebble-hard kernels to the first colonists from Jamestown and Plymouth, according to a report by the National Geographic Society. Colonial cookbooks carried such quaint directions as the following:

"Boil white-wood ashes in an iron kettle with plenty of water until the mixture is stout enough to float an egg. Drain off the ashes; place the shelled corn in the liquid. Boil the corn carefully until the hulls rub off. Rinse in several waters so that no lye remains. Boil again in salted water until tender." The result was dried and ground to produce grits, an old English term for cracked bran.

Grits soon became a southern institution. The Marquis de Lafayette tried the cereal in 1824 and said it was one of the things he liked best about the South. Ulysses S. Grant was credited with being the first president to bring the cereal to the White House.

America's fondness for grits has not abated. In 1975 Americans ate 140 million pounds of it, mostly south of the Mason-Dixon Line. Today grits find their way into pancakes, waffles, muffins and even souffles. You may find them garnished with shrimp paste or folded into fish cakes. Cold grits, sliced and fried, form a basis for many a southern breakfast or brunch.

Here's a dish to serve for brunch or light supper.

- 1¼ cups grits, uncooked
- 3½ cups boiling water
- 1 roll garlic cheddar cheese
- ½ cup butter
- 2 eggs
- 1 ounce dry white wine
- 1 cup milk
- ½ cup Swiss cheese grated

Cook grits in boiling water, crumbling cheese and butter into cooked grits after they have boiled about 10 minutes. Blend eggs, wine and milk together and mix with grits, cheese and butter. Pour into greased, 2-quart casserole and bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 45 minutes uncovered. Sprinkle with grated Swiss cheese and bake till cheese is melted. Good with chilled dry white wine. Serves 6-8.

High school graduates represented two per cent of the 17-year-old population of 16,000 persons in 1870. The Bureau of the Census reports that in 1970, some 2.9 million or 76 per cent of the teenaged population graduated.

Life is a parade

By ERMA BOMBECK

Do you ever get the feeling that life is a parade and you're standing behind Bill Russell?

While I was watching television the other night, a commercial came on about a shower nozzle that massaged your entire body with four different sprays. The bathee twisted and squealed with such delight that I sat forward in my chair to see what was turning her on.

Finally, she flipped her head and whispered huskily, "Have a GOOD time with your water spray."

I shrugged and figured here was a woman who could make a party out of a tax audit and forgot it.

During the next break, a commercial came on of a man so beat I thought he was going to expire before my eyes. All he wanted out of life was a decent burial. Then he stepped into the shower and began to cover himself with lather. Within seconds, his entire body sprang to life. The last glimpse showed him sniffing his soap in pure ecstasy, and yelling to his wife to get his bowling ball out of the closet.

After that I began to watch the bath commercials closely. They were all the same. Everyone had such a swell time I felt guilty watching them. One woman who looked like a walking ad for sweat, eased herself into a tub of suds and immediately turned into a sex kitten. She snuggled down under the bubbles, closed her eyes and purred, and invited everyone to join her.

What really sent me to the plumbing supply was a commercial for a water spray filmed at a resort in Florida. A hidden camera and microphone recorded the rapture felt by the people who stood under the assault of water. (The last time I saw that look on anyone's face, it was worn by mother at my wedding.)

Maybe that's what was missing in my life. I had tried raucous parties, jet travel, and baking from scratch. Maybe all I needed to create some excitement was a shower spray to sweep me off my feet.

It took 45 minutes for my son to relinquish the bathroom to me. The steam opened up pores that had been closed for repairs. Turning on the spigot caused the shower to drench my head in water as he had forgotten to push down the plunger. The soap was in a liquid form in the soap dish. A bottle of shampoo without a lid spilled onto my feet. The spray was at eye level and knocked me into a wall.

I don't think showers will ever replace volleyball.

CB radios, fuel injected cars clash

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Some Citizens Band operators with European-made cars are complaining about interference — with the car's fuel injection system.

The combination of a two-way radio and a fuel-injected car can pose problems, even if the two aren't in the same vehicle.

"The wiring in the car acts as an antenna," said Bob Radke, chief engineer for Kris, Inc., a Cedarburg, Wis., CB manufacturer. "Any wiring you have, like your house wiring or your car wiring or any wiring will act as an antenna for certain frequencies."

The problem arises when the wiring picks up radio transmissions from the CB or any other kind of two-way radio.

The fuel injection system controls the flow of gasoline to the motor by means of electronic signals from the engine. It cannot, however, tell the difference between a valid engine signal and a spurious signal from a two-way radio.

"It causes it to open too long or out of sequence," said Helmut Buchwald, service manager for Mossner Motors, a Milwaukee foreign car dealership. The fuel injection system, in its confused state, either speeds up or cuts the fuel flow.

The problem is restricted to European cars, said Radke, because they are the only ones equipped with vulnerable fuel injection systems.

For drivers whose radios interfere with fuel injection, Radke said owner's manuals for both radio and antenna are the best place to start looking for the source of the trouble. "Make sure you did everything the manufacturer recommends," he said.

A good antenna ground is mandatory — occasionally it's necessary to run a grounding line between the antenna base and some point known to be connected to the car's chassis. And the radio's power source should be as close to the battery as possible, connected with heavy wire.

The problem might be with the fuel injection system, Radke said. "You might find that over the miles, the fuel injection unit itself, which is in a metal-plastic box, might be suffering from some corrosion where it's mounted to the car chassis," Radke said.

The first step then, he said, is to clean the ground connections and tighten the screws. If that doesn't work, things might get complicated.

For the radio operator, checking those two areas should clear up the trouble. If it doesn't, the operator is in the same, if less common, boat as the driver whose fuel-injection system is thrown into a tizzy by a passing transmitter.

In some cases, said Radke, the problem might be on the transmission end. "The operators are sometimes running far in excess of the power they're supposed to be running."

The last alternative in any case is to have the car equipped with radio frequency filters, a job that almost always must be done by a professional two-way radio technician.

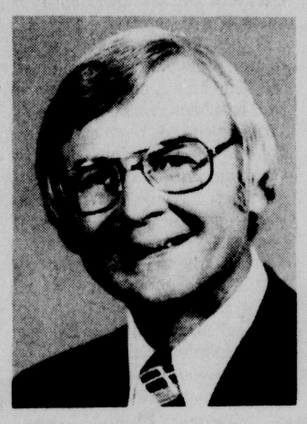
On liberation

By ARTHUR C. FULBRIGHT, Th.D.



Dr. Arthur C. Fulbright

Liberation is a popular word today, and an important value to be sought. There are many persons, even in our free land, who need to be released from limitations which prevent them from living fully.

The fact is that we all need to be liberated-and that's what Jesus is all about. He came to free us from the deepest, most subtle, and most destructive bondage of all.

Both Jesus and Paul knew that our most serious enslavement is what they called sin. The word may not be popular today. But it identifies our condition: We may be driven by compulsive desires, limited by cheap, short-sighted ambitions, frustrated by bad attitudes. Jesus offers to free us from these. And Paul, true to Jesus' insight, affirms the same hope.

Jesus' promise is clear-but let's be careful to read the whole sentence (John 8:31-32): be faithful to me, be my follower; and you will know who you are intended to be, and this knowledge will make you truly free.

Paul ran into a further threat to genuine freedom, one which still troubles us today. Freedom is sometimes thought to mean liberty to do as we please. Many wise persons have known better, and Paul is among them. Freedom is not license for self-indulgence. Freedom is release from false inhibitions within us. It is also liberation from cold, fixed rules of behavior which may be forced on us even in the name of religion.

If we accept God's offer of freedom, we are released to be what he wants us to be: Persons who really care about one another.

60 years ago
January 9, 1917

The life of a young woman, who was loved by all who knew her, came to a close Wednesday when death called Miss Mina Emogene Butler from her home here to the one beyond. Miss Butler was the oldest child of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Butler.

Mrs. Ethel Lacy died at her home on Kendall street early Monday after an illness of about two weeks. Pneumonia was the cause of her death.

The beautiful silver loving cup, which accompanied the winning of the championship in football by the local high school football team, is here and may be seen at The Bijou. On one side are engraved the words: Sikeston High School, football team, championship, Southeast Missouri, 1916. On the other side has engraved upon it the names of the winners and the positions held by each. The names are: Paul Stone, Capt.; Wade Malcolm, F.B.; Carson Wilkey, C.; Pleas Malcolm, L. G.; Paul Witt, L. T.; Loomis Mayfield, L. E.; Steve Schroff, R. E.; Richard Barnett, C.; Harold Macurdy, R.H.; Byron Bowman, Q. B.; Roger Bailey, R. G.; Ned Tanner, L. G.; Arlin Woody, R. T.; Chester Limbaugh, H. B.; and Earl J. Van Horne, coach.

The local high school boys have not as yet succeeded in securing a suitable place for playing basketball. The team was scheduled to play with Caruthersville at that place today, but on account of not having a court on which to practice, the game has been cancelled. This situation may prove to be very disastrous to the work of the local basketball team. It certainly bespeaks for the need of a gymnasium in connection with the school work here.

There have been, on an average, about 200 pupils out of the various grades at the grammar school during the past week on account of an epidemic of measles.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pettiford are parents of a daughter born Tuesday.

An interesting experiment is being tried out in the Sikeston grade school. Twenty-five children have been chosen at random and each morning at 10 o'clock are being fed milk and graham crackers. The experiment will be carried on for possibly a month to note what changes, if any, the children make in weight. And in the meantime, the children like it.

CB radios, fuel injected cars clash

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Some Citizens Band operators with European-made cars are complaining about interference — with the car's fuel injection system.

The combination of a two-way radio and a fuel-injected car can pose problems, even if the two aren't in the same vehicle.

"The wiring in the car acts as an antenna," said Bob Radke, chief engineer for Kris, Inc., a Cedarburg, Wis., CB manufacturer. "Any wiring you have, like your house wiring or your car wiring or any wiring will act as an antenna for certain frequencies."

The problem arises when the wiring picks up radio transmissions from the CB or any other kind of two-way radio.

The fuel injection system controls the flow of gasoline to the motor by means of electronic signals from the engine. It cannot, however, tell the difference between a valid engine signal and a spurious signal from a two-way radio.

"It causes it to open too long or out of sequence," said Helmut Buchwald, service manager for Mossner Motors, a Milwaukee foreign car dealership. The fuel injection system, in its confused state, either speeds up or cuts the fuel flow.

The problem is restricted to European cars, said Radke, because they are the only ones equipped with vulnerable fuel injection systems.

For drivers whose radios interfere with fuel injection, Radke said owner's manuals for both radio and antenna are the best place to start looking for the source of the trouble. "Make sure you did everything the manufacturer recommends," he said.

A good antenna ground is mandatory — occasionally it's necessary to run a grounding line between the antenna base and some point known to be connected to the car's chassis. And the radio's power source should be as close to the battery as possible, connected with heavy wire.

The problem might be with the fuel injection system, Radke said. "You might find that over the miles, the fuel injection unit itself, which is in a metal-plastic box, might be suffering from some corrosion where it's mounted to the car chassis," Radke said.

The first step then, he said, is to clean the ground connections and tighten the screws. If that doesn't work, things might get complicated.

For the radio operator, checking those two areas should clear up the trouble. If it doesn't, the operator is in the same, if less common, boat as the driver whose fuel-injection system is thrown into a tizzy by a passing transmitter.

In some cases, said Radke, the problem might be on the transmission end. "The operators are sometimes running far in excess of the power they're supposed to be running."

The last alternative in any case is to have the car equipped with radio frequency filters, a job that almost always must be done by a professional two-way radio technician.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Jan., 9, the ninth day of 1977. There are 356 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, during the Pacific War, American forces invaded the Japanese-held island of Luzon in the Philippines.

On this date:

In 1719, France declared war on Spain.

In 1788cticut became the fifth state to ratify the Constitution.

In 1861, Mississippi seceded from the Union.

In 1919, Grand Duchess Charlotte ascended the throne in Luxembourg.

In 1942, Japanese reinforcements were pouring into the Philippines at the beginning of the Pacific War.

In 1964, anti-American riots broke out in Panama.

Ten years ago: The Georgia Legislature accepted Julian Bond after twice refusing to seat him because of his criticism of the Vietnam War.

Five years ago: The once great luxury liner, Queen Elizabeth, was destroyed by fire at Hong Kong, where the ship was being fitted out as a floating university.

One year ago: The San Francisco Giants were sold for more than $13 million.

Today's birthdays: Former President Richard Nixon is 64. Singer Joan Baez is 36.

Thought for today: More than machinery, we need humanity. — Charlie Chaplin in his motion picture "Modern Times," born 1889.

Labrador, in northeastern Canada, got its name by mistake when early cartographers accidentally transferred the name from a portion of the coast of Greenland which had been visited by Portuguese landowner ("lavrador") Joao Fagundes sometime between 1492 and 1495.

Success without hit record

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Ronnie Prophet is riddling the maxim that you need hit records for success in the music business.

Prophet is a guitarist, singer and comedian who's not had a hit record but has cultivated a faithful following through a highly rated Canadian country music television show and spirited stage act.

"I'm not a great singer, comedian or guitarist, but I am a good entertainer," Prophet, 38, said in his hilltop home in south Nashville where the Battle of Nashville was fought during the Civil War.

"Most acts have two or three supporting musicians behind them. They fill the stage with bodies. The main approach I've worked for is a one-man show that's more than a vocalist, a comic, a musician. I wanted one man doing all three."

Chet Atkins calls him "the greatest one-man show I've seen."

Prophet sings and plays pop, country-Western, rock and show tunes. He impersonates Louis Armstrong, Lionel Barrymore, Johnny Cash, Eddy Arnold, Elvis Presley and many others. He also imitates a duck singing "Help Me Make It Through The Night."

Another of his routines is an imitation of frog conversations and swamp noises. He's recorded an album entitled "Harold the Horny Toad."

He has an echo unit that repeats any sound he makes in less than a second or as long as several minutes, permitting him to duet with himself.

One evening in his Nashville nightclub, the Carousel, he scrambled up a post onto the balcony railing.

"People said, 'That s.o.b. is crazy,'" Prophet recalled.

He thrives on work and always has. When he was a youngster and his father died, he single-handedly put in 35 acres of oats on their Canadian farm.

"I harrowed and disced all the land and sowed and furrowed it," Prophet said. "I also put in the drainage ditches."

At age 17, he worked a club in Stonefield, Quebec, every Sunday afternoon for only $5. He sold sandwiches on the side for a quarter to make some tips.

He's done much benefit work and once helped raise $36,000 in just one afternoon in St. Louis for St. Jude's Children's Hospital in Memphis where two rooms are named in his honor.

He customizes guitars himself and built a recording studio in the basement of his home to accommodate 11 musicians.

He goes to Toronto once a month for six days to tape four shows for his weekly "Grand Old Country" show. Last year, it was selected the top country show in Canada, and Prophet, who once auditioned unsuccessfully for the Ted Mack Amateur Hour, was chosen top male country singer.

The show is not on American television because he's never been offered enough money to syndicate in this country, he said.

Chestnut dressing

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

DINNER FOR FOUR Roast Chicken
Chestnut Dressing
Broccoli Salad Bowl
Pear Pudding Coffee

CHESTNUT DRESSING

For once there'll be enough chestnuts in the stuffing!

¼ cup butter
Medium-small onion, finely chopped (1-3rd cup)
1-3rd cup (generous) herb-seasoned crumb-type packaged bread stuffing
2 cups coarsely broken moist-cooked chestnuts
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

In the hot butter gently cook the onion until yellowed. Off heat stir in the remaining ingredients. Use to stuff body cavity of a 4-pound roasting chicken, closing cavity with needle and thread or skewers. Roast according to your favorite method. No liquid is added to this stuffing because the juices from the chicken and the moist chestnuts add enough — this is a buttery dry dressing. One pound of chestnuts in their shell should yield an ample amount, after they are cooked, for this recipe.

More than half of the 2.3 billion acres of land in the United States is used to produce crops and livestock, says the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

DID YOU KNOW THAT SIKESTON HAS A WEATHER STATION THAT OPERATES 24 HOURS A DAY?
See Mor Cable TV provides a 24 hour weather scan on Channel 4 that gives time, temperature, wind direction and velocity, rainfall, humidity, and barometric pressure. All the current weather conditions, plus a barometer to tell you if the weather is changing. And background music to sooth your jangled nerves. The 24 hour weather scan with background music is a part of the service to subscribers from See Mor Cable TV in Sikeston.

College for con artist uncovered

Bunco Squad investigators Ben Gordean and Ed Walker uncover a "college for con artists," complete with tape recorded lessons and on the job training but almost lose an undercover agent when they try to crack it in "Bunco," a one hour detective drama on NBC-TV Thursday, Jan. 13 (7-8 p.m. CST).

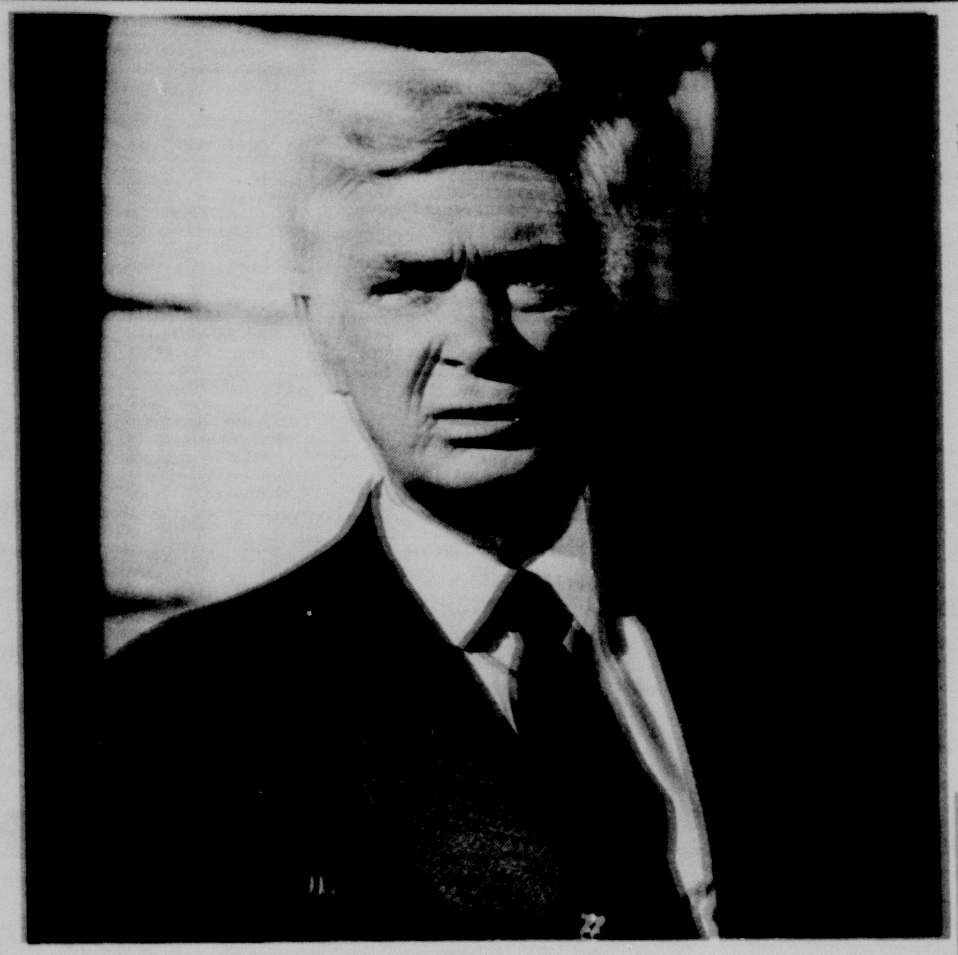
Frankie, an undercover policewoman, enrolls in the school for cons, studies under arch criminal Sonny, then joins him and novice con-man Dixon in a scheme to pass phony payroll checks. When Dixon finds out she's a cop and plans an ugly accident for her, Frankie suddenly discovers that her backup, Gordean and Walker, are nowhere in sight.

NBC presents 'Special Treat'

"The Day After Tomorrow" will be colorcast on "Special Treat," NBC's monthly series of specials for young people, Tuesday, Jan. 11 (3-4 p.m. CST; repeat of 12/9/76).

In the story, a team of five takes off for a trip into outer space in their ship, Altares. The crew is comprised of Captain Harry Masters and his young daughter, Jane, a space cadet; Navigator Tom Bowen and his wife, scientist Anna Bowen, and their young son, David, also a space cadet.

Their trip, which to them seems to take about a year, actually takes 30 years in earth reckoning; the disparity is caused by the space ship traveling at 186,000 miles a second, almost the speed of light. In the drama, this concept, based on Einstein's theory of relativity, is made clear for young viewers.



Buddy Ebsen, as private detective Barnaby Jones, investigates the murder of a wealthy woman, in "Barnaby Jones," Thursday, Jan. 13 (9:00-10:00 PM, CST) on the CBS Television Network. (Rebroadcast)

John Schuck plays Lt. Charles Enright

As he starts his sixth season on NBC-TV's "McMillan," John Schuck's career is gaining on a number of fronts. His series character, Charlie Enright, gets a propotion to police lieutenant; he is starring in the role of the robot policeman Gregory Yavonovich on the series "Holmes and Yo-Yo"; and during hiatus he made his vocal debut with the Amherst Symphony Orchestra in Buffalo, N.Y. singing a selection of musical-comedy favorites.

Schuck's career really took off when director Robert Altman cast him in the role of the impotent dentist in the hit movie "M*A*S*H," after spotting him in the American Conservatory Theatre's production of Jules Feiffer's "Little Murders." Schuck also worked for Altman in such films as "McCabe and Mrs. Miller," "Brewster McCloud" and "Thieves Like Us."

A graduate of Denison University in Granville, Ohio, Schuck has appeared at the Cleveland Playhouse, the Baltimore Center, the Woodstock Playhouse in New York and the Buffalo Studio Arena Theatre.

Series 'Nightmare' and 'Fantastic Journey' to premier in February

The NBC Television Network will premiere two new series in early February in its primetime schedule, "Nightmare," an exciting suspense anthology with O'Henry-like plot twists and surprises, and "Fantastic Journey," a science-fantasy adventure set in the Bermuda Triangle where past, present and future co-exist, and "Quincy," the popular new element of "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" starring Jack Klugman, will be presented weekly, it was announced today by Irwin Segelstein, Executive Vice President, Programs, NBC-TV.

Segelstein also announced "NBC's Best Sellers" will move to the 9-11 p.m. CST time period Thursdays beginning in February, and will feature several more two-hour presentations, including the premiere in February of the adaptation of the best-selling novel "Seventh Avenue," starring Steven Keats.

"Nightmare" will be presented Wednesdays, 9-11 p.m., starting February 2; "Fantastic Journey," Thursdays, 7-8 p.m., beginning Feb. 3; and "Quincy," Thursdays, 8-9 p.m., beginning in February (all times CST).

In "Fantastic Journey," a team of scientists traveling in the Bermuda Triangle is transported by a mysterious supernatural force to what appears to be an uncharted land mass. As the team explores its new environment, it encounters strange creatures and surroundings from periods of the past and centuries in the future, to learn it is trapped in a dimension where all time co-exists.

Starring in "Fantastic Journey" are Jared Martin as Varian, an earthling from the 23rd century who is skilled in ESP; Ike Eisenmann as Scotty, a 13-year-old boy with an unusual capacity to understand para-scientific phenomena; and Carl Franklin as the scientific expedition's medical expert.

"Fantastic Journey" is produced by Bruce Lansbury Productions Ltd. in association with Columbia Pictures Television. Lansbury, who was associated with such hit television series as "Mission Impossible" and "Wild, Wild West," is executive producer.

"Nightmare" will feature major guest stars each week in stories of both the unexplained and real life. The series will be produced by Quinn Martin Productions.

"Quincy" premiered this season as part of the "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" series and was well received by critics: "...a lively 90 minutes of good humor...fun to watch" (Associated Press); "...the best new show to come along in quite some time" (The Sunday Oregonian); "NBC's most pleasant surprise this season..." (The Arizona Daily Star).

Jack Klugman as Quincy is a medical doctor who left private practice to join the City of Los Angeles' Department of Medical Examiners. Using the latest techniques and equipment in scientific crime detection, he moves from the scene of the crime to his lab and unveils conclusions born of his unique tools and persistent approach. "Quincy" is produced by Universal Television.

"Quincy," "Fantastic Journey" and "Nightmare" will replace "Gibbsville," "The Quest" and "Van Dyke and Company" on NBC-TV's prime-time schedule.

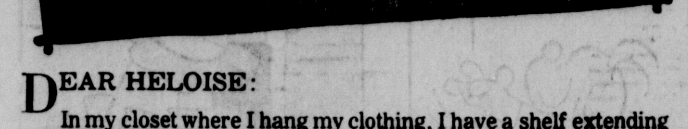
PONYTAIL ◦◦ BY LEE HOLLEY



DEAR HELOISE:

In my closet where I hang my clothing, I have a shelf extending an inch or so over the rod.

And one of the handiest things that I have is a plain old cup hook screwed into the shelf edge.

When I've selected the garment that I wish to wear I hang it on that hook, and I leave the hanger there until the garment is replaced.

To hang the garment there makes it easy to unbutton or button, zip up or down for donning or replacing.

Satie Stout

With a handy hook on the shelf it only takes two shakes of a cat's tail to fasten the dress before I put it back into the closet.

But, best of all, I can let the garment hang on this cup hook to "air out" after I wear it and before I put it away.

Heloise

QUICK BRUSHOFF!

DEAR HELOISE:

When my boys wake up in the morning they look like they just saw a ghost. With the new hair styles, their hair sticks out all over.

I think this hint will help other mothers facing the same problem. Instead of using water and hair tonic, I use the new spray creme rinse. It's amazing how easy it is to use. Just spray it on the hair and comb it. The boys won't get that plastered-down look.

Mrs. J. Villa

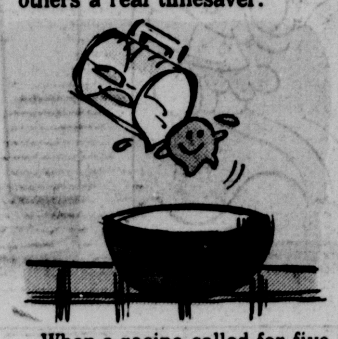
DEAR HELOISE:

I would like to share with others a real timesaver.



When a recipe called for five or six eggs and it said add the eggs one at a time, I always had to stop and break another egg. This was especially hard while using a hand mixer.

I got the idea to break all of the eggs into a measuring cup. Do you know you can pour one egg at a time?

Christine Gelchrist

AN Rx FOR GRITS

DEAR HELOISE:

When I cook grits, I put a pat of butter or margarine into the water to keep the grits from sticking to the pot.

Then I put any kind of cheese I have on hand into the grits and it really tastes deliciously (my own word).

Thought you might like to try it.

Miss Pat Tierney

ALL SQUARED OFF

DEAR HELOISE:

I purchased a large sheet of plexiglass at the discount store. I cut it into nine-inch squares with my sabre saw. Then placed the squares on the floor under my flower pots. I also use small rubber adhesive-backed protector pads under each corner to raise the squares up so that the air can circulate under them.

No wet carpet and no mildew!

Jean Hartman

THAT'S WILD JELLY!

DEAR HELOISE:

Mix a box of your favorite flavored gelatin. Use it on toast, muffins, pancakes, and waffles instead of regular jelly.

You'll like it!

65-year-old "Duffer"

FRACTURED FUN

DEAR HELOISE:

When children are studying fractions in school and have a problem understanding them, take down a measuring cup and show them the one-third, two-thirds, one-fourth, one-half, three-fourths, and one cup markings.

You can also put water in the cup and show them the difference in amounts.

My children found this very helpful.

Mrs. R. M. M.

THE COOKIE JAR

DEAR HELOISE:

Would you like a quick, easy way of making sugar cookies without rolling them out?

Well, I have figured a way of doing it. Use a round measuring teaspoon. Grease it lightly with shortening. Dip in sugar each time before dipping into the cookie dough. Put on cookie sheet and bake. Each cookie is sugar-topped without hand-rolling!

Alice Maxwell

A JARRING NOTE!

DEAR HELOISE:

When I buy baby food at the store, I hate to count out all the little jars, drop them in the cart, and then have to do it all over again at the checkout counter.

Now I pick up three or four extra produce plastic bags, count out the proper number of baby food jars and put them in the plastic bags. It saves me time and I've found that the clerks love this idea too, especially on busy days.

In addition, when I get home I have extra plastic bags to put in my diaper bag for wet diapers.

Janet Bingham

CATCH THE SHADES!

DEAR HELOISE:

Recently when we moved into our home the previous owner left some window shades that were rather worn and torn.

Instead of destroying them, I let my two pre-schoolers color and draw on them.

It was something different for them and kept them occupied for quite some time.

Mrs. T. VanOsterhout

PERFECT PATTIES

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a hint for you that I have found useful.

I have had trouble finding a good paper to use for separating hamburger patties for freezing. So the idea occurred to me to cut circles from gallon plastic milk containers. I can get one circle from the bottom of the carton and two from each side.

There is no more sticking together of hamburger patties, and some use has been salvaged from the cartons.

Gladys B. Forshey

TO COIN A HINT...

DEAR HELOISE:

I was quite impressed with this hint and thought it might help others.

My aunt, who is a senior citizen, stuck one of her address labels in her coin purse. Usually if you have a purse or wallet, there is some identification in it, but I don't think anyone puts any identification in a coin purse.

This might help other people who don't want to carry a purse or wallet with them and use just a coin purse.

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Rake is different. 2. Robe is different. 3. Umbrella is different. 4. Glass is missing. 5. Watering can is missing. 6. Handle is missing.

BULLETIN BOARD

"TAKE A CARD," says the magician. You select one, note what it is, and stick it back in the deck without its being seen. Now, the magician cuts the deck, riffles through rapidly and, lo and behold, produces your card.

Secret: In preparation, the magician places all the odd cards—ace, three, five, etc.—in one half of the deck, and all the even cards—queen, ten, eight, etc.—in the other half. He manipulates the cut so the card is chosen from one half and restored to the other, where it is immediately obvious.

With practice, this makes a fine party trick.

● WATCH STEP! Place a yardstick on the floor. Stand over it. Place a thumb at each end. Now, try to step over the yardstick.

● Easy Does It! Add my two digits and nine you will see, and you still get nine when I'm divided by three. What number am I?

Twenty-seven.

● Find three birds among consecutive letters: 1. Helen Shaw knows. 2. Keith rushed his homework. 3. Harry withdrew rent money.

1. Hawk. 2. Thrush. 3. Wren.

● Riddle-Me-This! What is the difference between a tight shoe and an oak tree? Give up? One makes corns ache and the other makes acorns.

BOTTOMS UP! It's easy to spot a shark and a whale in this scene, but how about 20 small fish? Give it a try.

1-9 1977 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

TUMBLING ACT! Add colors for a surprise picture: 1—Red. 2—Lt. blue. 3—Yellow. 4—Lt. brown. 5—Flesh. 6—Lt. green. 7—Dk. brown. 8—Orange. 9—Dk. green. 10—Lt. gray. 11—Black.
